Entertainment requests more fee dollars

By Megan Guido
Of the Argonaut

There are three things that need to be done to alleviate the ASUI's Entertainment deficit of $36,000, according to Barry Bonifas, ASUI Productions Coordinator. Two have already been accomplished.

ASUI Entertainment is no longer financially involved with the Jazz Festival, an event the UI has been involved with since 1984.

"$14,000 of the current deficit is from the Jazz Festival," said Bonifas. "We'll still work with the Festival but we won't be financially responsible for it."

The renegotiation of a contract with Washington State University for the cosponsorship of events has also been accomplished. Bonifas said a large portion of the debt can be attributed to events cosponsored with WSU last year, which included the Palouse Performance series. "The big surprise was an $18,000 bill from the WSU Collection at the end of last year," he said.

"Last year, all events we cosponsored with WSU, we shared 50/50 in either the profits or the loss," Bonifas said. "Most of the events were in Pullman and we weren't benefiting from that. Also many of the expenditures were higher than we expected and we had no control over them."

The results of the renegotiations with WSU are that events will still be cosponsored by both universities but all events taking place on the UI campus, UI will be financially responsible for; and all events taking place on the WSU campus, WSU will be financially responsible for. Four out of the ten Palouse Performances cosponsored this year will be at UI.

The third thing that has yet to be accomplished is an increase in the student entertainment fee.

ASUI Outdoor Program offers experience!

By Roger Jones
Of the Argonaut

*"It was continuous white water and it became not only a physical but a mental battle. Everybody was lunatic for that big rapid coming up. You'd look as far as you could around the next corner," said Paul Spivey, who took a kayaking trip with the University of Idaho Outdoor program down Joseph Creek in Oregon, a river that had only been run once before.

"And you're on the edge because you don't know, there could be a log jam up there because this river hasn't been known."

"Recounting the UI Outdoor Mount Rainer climb, Douglas Jones said, "When I came over this lip, about 900 feet from the top, the wind hit me. It was about 40-50 mph. Visibility was about 10-15 yards. You could barely see the man in front of you. Everything you were wearing was getting plastered with ice. I was using my sunglasses as goggles by now, and wiping the ice off them every one or two minutes."

"Anne Ford describes her feelings about the UI Outdoor exhibit up Mount McKinley: "It was fantastic, a real learning experience as far as technical aspects of exhibition climbing. And I saw something very beautiful in the process, a beautiful mountain, a beautiful mountain range.""

Can do is Outdoor Program's motto, said Jim Rennie, program director, "We do about anything relating to the outdoors where it seems like there is some interest."

The UI Outdoor Program is emblazoned by three individual budget departments: the Outdoor Program Resource Center, the Outdoor Rental Center, and the Idaho Educational Adventure

The core department is the Outdoor Program Resource Center in the basement of the Student Union Building. The center houses a large collection of maps, resource files and outdoor information.

All of the trip information is posted on a bulletin board, called the "trip board," in the outdoor office. Except for closed group trips, future trips are always posted. There is at least one and usually two or three trips going on every weekend, said Craig Thomas, a member of the Outdoor staff. "Plus with the rental facility, people can come down and rent and have their own trips. And anybody who wants to have a cooperative trip can put up the (trip) board and say 'I'm going here and whoever wants to go, sign up and we'll split the cost."

During the year, evening seminars, slide shows and workshops are presented. Topics include nature photography, equipment management, kayaking rolling and first aid.

Rennie said the Outdoor Rental Center is the most visible part of the program to the average student. The rental department will rent to anyone, UI students, faculty and staff get reduced rates. The rental center, also located in the base ment of the SUI, rents equipment ranging from rafts, camping and climbing gear to cross country skis and winter clothing.

The third component of the Outdoor program is the Idaho Educational Adventure (IEA) program. It provides instruction and guided river trips. The trips are for all students but the IEA also offers special group trips.

"We (the IEA) do organized trips for groups like dormitories, fraternities and sororities," Ren nie said.

Steve Herzog tells of different ways to take a river trip. "You can just go down and float — it's comfortable, relaxing, lie back on your boat and drink a beer and just float for the sake of floating. Or if you're with some people ... when you get a group together everybody gets kind of playful."

The UI Outdoor program has been working for 12 years, helping students and others to have adventurous weekends, relax, sightsee, meet new friends and learn new skills.

Money available to cover needs

By Karma Metzler

The rising cost of education has led many students to look for alternative ways to pay for college. Some have resorted to loans and some have taken on part-time jobs. Money is available through scholarships and other forms of financial aid to help eligible students foot their education bills. Approximately $1 million is available in academic and activities scholarship funds, said Dan Davenport, director of Student Financial Aid at the UI.

In order to get these awards, students must apply through the Financial Aid Office. When the applications are received, they are given to the department which corresponds to the student's interest or major. Qualifications for each scholarship depend on the nature and the donor of the award.

Criterias are set by each donor. Davenport said that the school does not accept donors who specify exactly who gets the award, but asks them to simply set down the standards they want met.

Some scholarships look for financial need, academic achievements or awards and honors received:*

Continuing students who wish to fill out applications for UI awards should pick up the financial aid and scholarship application from the Financial Aid Office between Christmas and Thanksgiving.

Students should be aware that scholarships are available only from the school but also from companies, charity organizations, and from their parent's employer.

Davenport recommends that students don't hesitate to brag on their qualifications and accomplishments. He also said that if parents are not paying for their education, a student may be considered independent for the purpose of financial aid.

Economists to visit UI

Six nationally recognized economists, one of whom is an official in the Reagan Administration, will speak at the UI at a conference on enterprise and the constitution.

Economic forecasts, taxes and the local and regional economies will be discussed at sessions on September 30 and October 1 at the Borah Theater in the USB and the Moot Court Room at the UI Law School.

The conference is entitled "Enterprise and Entrepreneurship: Toward a Positive-Sum Society," and is sponsored by the Chair in Business Enterprise at the UI College of Business and Economics.

The six economists involved are said to share a respect for private property rights and the entrepreneur, according to the University.

James Meigs, Chief Economist and Senior Vice President of First Interstate Bank System, will talk about the 1986 economy from the perspective of the nation's financial institutions.

Taxes and the economy will be the subject of talks by Professor Richard L. Stroup of Montana State University and Bernard L. Weinstein, who directs the Center for Entrepreneurship at the Cox School of Business at Southern Methodist University.

James Oates, a Professor of Economics at Florida State University, will speak on what he says are government attempts to redistribute income.

George Gilster, a senior research fellow at the Manhattan Institute, will address the subject of the entrepreneur in Idaho.

The conference is planned as an early event honoring the 200th anniversary of the ratification of the U.S. Constitution in 1789 and the 100th birthday of the UI, which was founded in 1889.

Misuse of F.A. must be stopped

By Karma Metzler

Some students may be taking advantage of the availability of financial aid, said Dan Davenport of the Student Financial Aid Office.

"We need to stop students who receive federal aid and don't need the funds," Davenport said.

Currently, students have to fill out forms that require them to supply tax information. This information is used to establish financial need. If the student is independent, they may be eligible for more money. Davenport said that some students live at college for one or two years and then claim independence from their parents. This gives them more money from financial aid even though they may not need it and may not be able to pay for the students education.

In order to claim independence a student must not have received more than $750 of support from their parents or lived with their parents for more than six weeks out of the year. Davenport said.

The people who receive this unneeded money are taking funds away from those who really need it, Davenport said adding: "As of now, there is not a very effective way of determining who actually gets the money." All students however, are required to submit signed forms from their parents verifying that they are independent. "Even if you're 65 years old, you must sign an affidavit from your parents," Davenport said.

The UI has approximately one million dollars available in non-athletic scholarships. This money is distributed by the school according to scholarships and eligibility. For instance, if a student plans on majoring in engineering then their scholarship application is processed by the School of Engineering.

Homecoming brings back Class of '60

The 25th anniversary of the class of '60 will take place on Homecoming weekend for the UI Sept. 27 and 28.

The class number 970 members and more than 100 are expected to attend the weekend festivities. The reunion kicks off Friday with an all-day open house at the Alumni Office, called Hays Hall 25 and 28.

A campus tour departs from the SUB lobby at 9 a.m., followed by a 5:30 p.m. social hour and a 6:30 p.m. reunion banquet at University Inn-Best Western. Friday's events close with a 7 p.m. reunion banquet at the University Inn.

On Saturday, Sept. 28, Main Street Dell will be the site of Homecoming "Warm-Up" breakfast buffet from 7:30-9:30 a.m. The class of '60 can then step outside the Dell to view the Homecoming Parade starting at 9:30 a.m. Grand Marshall will be the band football and Idaho alumna, Jerry Kramer. The Vandal Dell is scheduled for 11 a.m. at the University Inn-Best Western followed at 1 p.m. by the Idaho vs. Nevada-Reno football game in the Kibbile Dome.

Living group and academic open houses are planned, following the game. The weekend festivities close with the Homecoming Dance at Moscow's Elks Club from 9 to 11 p.m.

For more information, contact the Alumni Office at (208) 385-6154.

Marching bands to compete

The UI will sponsor the Northwest Regional Marching Bands of America Competition Oct. 12.

Contest organizers expect between 600 and 3000 high school musicians in 18 marching bands to vie for recognition as best in the Northwest.

After preliminary competitions, the bands will be whittled down to the top 12, which will perform Saturday evening for the final event. The bands will be judged by professional musicians from all over the country.

Last year's national champ, the marching band from the University High School in Spokane, is expected to participate.

According to Robert Spavecek, professor of music and director of the band, the competition has been held at the UI twice before, in 1979 and in 1980, and that Moscow audiences turned out for the show.

Admission for the preliminary round is $4 for senior citizens and students under age 18. Admission for the final competition is $6 and $8 respectively.

ROTC Commander returns to UI

Colonel Gary L. Thompson, a 1960 University of Idaho graduate, is the new Commander of the Air Force ROTC units at UI and WSU. To the estimated 170 cadets Thompson brings 24 years of command and staff experience.

Thompson, who was born in Lewiston, graduated from Craigslist High School in 1955. He then obtained a bachelor of science degree in education from the UI and a master's degree in business administration from Central Michigan University. Thompson completed Squadron Officer's school in 1965. Air Command and Staff College in 1972 and was a distinguished graduate from the Air War College in 1979.

After completing pilot training, Thompson flew on world-wide missions and later served as an instructor, flight examiner, Transportation Officer and director of NATO studies for the Armed Forces Staff College. Thompson was stationed overseas as the commander of the 628th Military Airlift Support Squadron before he became Deputy Base Commander at McChord in Washington, his last assignment prior to assuming his new position.

Thompson's awards and decorations include the Bronze Star, the Defense Meritorious Service Medal, the Air Medal and the Air Force Commendation Medal with one oak leaf cluster.

Colonel Gary L. Thompson, assigned as commander of the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps at both the UI and WSU, is a 1960 graduate of the UI.

International Food: 'review not fair'

I just finished reading Mr. Michael Haberman's article "Food Fair Lacks Preparation, Enthusiasm." (Argonaut, Tuesday, Sept. 17.) I thank him for his interest and opinions on this year's International Food and Craft Fair in Downtown Moscow.

I always enjoy comments and constructive criticism on the events sponsored by the Moscow Downtown Association. As an association, our objective has been to produce quality events that will enhance the character of Moscow's heart, the downtown area, and provide entertainment for area residents as well as the visitors to our community (like last weekend's Vandal Boosters). The original emphasis for our Food Fair was to provide an avenue for exposure and a fundraising event for the variety of cultural organizations on both campuses. The logical expansion of those efforts has been to include craft and food vendors all the way from Spokane to Lewiston and beyond. We feel that quality events like Evening with Summer Theater, Mardi Gras and International Food Fair help make our downtown a viable center for entertainment and business.

Thus we appreciate Mr. Haberman's comments about the "spread out" nature of this year's fair and the lack of seating in the stage area. These appear to be points well taken. This year we were anxious to include as much of the downtown area as possible in the festivities, so we spread the normally crowded booths (two ideas, less than last year -- "feta less" than last year over a three-block area, thus diffusing some of the excitement.

We also felt that seating was not a priority item at an event where browsing and snacking on a variety of foods was the emphasis (possibly an oversight on our part). Certainly in next year's planning for this event (which begins right after the event is over and climax hes with regular weekly meetings for two months prior to the event) we will take these points into account.

I do believe Mr. Haberman was right-on in describing the "inspired sounds and dance of Gwinyl-Sukiishi" the martini-ba (well worth the out-of-pocket expense it took to bring them from Seattle), and the other "talented performers," the Old Time Fiddlers, Robinson Lake Revival, and Mary Hartman.

He did, however, forget to mention the Moscow Symphony Quartet with their touch of class instrumentation and vocals; Dick Wolf, an excellent folk singer who performed with some exciting Appalachian bagpiping. After all, "That's no way to treat talented performers doing their time and ability," and inviting them to be a part of a responsible article, I mean.

I am sorry he found our event "hit disappointing." Possibly his taste for food did not include one of the 15 food vendors on the street including Asian food, Oriental food, Polynesian food, Southern barbecued ribs and beef sandwiches, Creole cooking, West African food, Mid-East delicacies, Italian soda and gelato, pocket bread dishes, barbecued Hawaiian food, Mexican food, pizza or a German beer garden, or a variety of jazz, not to mention the many establishments on Main Street that normally serve a variety of excellent menus. (Possibly too mundane Mr. Haberman?)

"I'm not sure" but he may not have been in the market for farm produce (from honey to flowers and baked goods) at our noon Farmers Market; or carved wood products, windsocks, pottery, jewelry, leather goods, scenic photographs, alder twig furniture, stained glass, wood folk art, wood toys, or pine-needle creations offered by the craft vendors; nor possibly the quality merchandise regularly offered by downtown merchants.

Maybe not enough variety, for that I apologize.

Yes, we members of the Moscow Downtown Association welcome constructive criticism on our sponsored events, to make them better for you. We encourage Mr. Haberman or any interested party to convey ideas or suggestion to our nearby 100 members or the officers of our voluntary organization. We're here to serve.

In the spirit of fair play I would like to make a few suggestions to Mr. Haberman. I would like to suggest that he put only his objective reporting on the "news and events" pages of the Argonaut, give his constructive criticisms directly to someone who can do something about it, and write his opinions. His "I'm not sure"'s" and his references to "shoddy" or "poor" to the opinion "letters" page where it belongs.

President
Moscow Downtown Association

Banality lives on in South Africa

I have not seen the article which prompted Mr. Charles M. Harrison to write a letter to the editor expressing his views on South Africa and apartheid, but I would like to respond to his comments.

I too have lived in the Republic of South Africa, although not as recently as Mr. Harrison. In fact, I am half-African (my mother's heritage dating to 1730). Though some small changes have been made with regards to the rights afforded South African blacks, I do not feel that we can in any way diminish the gravity of the turmoil in South Africa and the media presents us with a "distorted one-sided view of the Republic of South Africa."

I have often sat on park benches now, but millions are sitting in the cells and internment camps of the Republic of South Africa. These are the citizens of the land of their birth and ancestry. The voice of the independent South Africans that have in the national government until recently been heard occasionally but it is seldom listened to -- they essentially have a separate and token parliament.

The relatively small number of blacks may be receiving government training for jobs formerly reserved for whites, millions of black workers are working in the mines, and for those few families forced to live hundreds of miles away from "homelands" which are not necessary their original tribal lands. It is obvious from these few examples that in spite of small changes, the injustices in South Africa are sure becoming.

I agree with Mr. Harrison that the universe of our library should subscribe to the South African Digest. The magazine will provide the reader some insight to the workings of the South African government, its people and country. However, the articles are carefully selected for the English-speaking world -- the Afrikaans edition of the same issue will often be quite different.

In part, it is true that the media presents a one-sided view of South Africa. South Africa is a beautiful country with a rich and complex history. It has conquered cities, a beautiful coastline, mountain deserts, cultural diversity and is a rival that of east Africa.

However, the Republic is embroiled in its violent struggle against apartheid the image we do not wish to show to the world, but it is important for people to realize that the banality of the apartheid system, to continue to speak and fight for human rights not only in South Africa, but all over the world.

Walking/Walking fun

This letter is to express my appreciation to all the people who participated and to the staff of the Campus Walk/Walk of September 6. I would especially like to thank the Argonaut staff for their interesting and informative coverage of it. Although the low turnout was disappointing, I feel that we all did a good job of giving the Campus Walk/Walk a try. The walkway Beautification Fund may need some encouragement. The Argonaut coverage of the Campus Walk/Walk showed its purpose, but it also showed why it was necessary and why it was important, and all the people who participated should be commended, as well as those who did not.

The Campus Planning Committee has a difficult task ahead, not only in providing a good time, but also in providing something that is not too easy, or boring.

The Argonaut accepts letters to the editor until noon on the day prior to publication. They must be typed, double spaced, signed and must include the name, address, phone number and university affiliation. Letters should be edited for length, clarity and mechanical mistakes. Letters should be limited to 250 words. The Argonaut reserves the right to refuse letters that are libelous or of bad taste. Letters will be published as they are received.

The Argonaut welcomes the submission of letters to the editor. The editor reserves the right to reject letters for any reason. The editor reserves the right to edit letters for clarity and length. The editor reserves the right to indicate the source of letters. The Argonaut reserves the right to run letters anonymously at the discretion of the editor.

UI defense brings 27-3 win in Big Sky opener

By Greg Klein
Of the Argonaut

One down, six to go.

Denis Erickson tossed and hauled his band of Vandals put number one in the record books in their hunt for their first Big Sky crown with a 27-3 victory over the Northern Arizona Lumberjacks Saturday night.

What was different in this one was the Vandals rose stole the spotlight. "Our defense played exceptionally well, we put a lot of pressure on," Erickson said of his defensive crew. "Our front people did a fine job of penetrating."

Erickson was referring to his defensive front of Joe Taft, Mark Schereth and John Andrews. The threesome managed three of the Vandals five sacks and had 'Jack quarterback Craig Austin on the run most of the night.

Erickson was also pleased with his linebacking crew.

"Tom Hennessey has a very good ballgame," Erickson said of his middle man's team leading 15 tackles. "Dave Parker and Nolan Harper also did tremendous jobs."

In only giving up a third period field goal, the Vandals gave up only 222 yards total net 35 more on the ground and 127 yards through the air.

NAU's Austin managed to hit 13 of 20 attempts to get the total through the air while 'Jack running back Jonas Eldridge was held under 100 yards for the first time all season with 75 yards on 20 carries.

While Erickson was pleased with the Vandal defensive unit, he wasn't entirely happy about his team's offensive show. "Offensively, we didn't play all that well, we didn't adjust and execute well," Erickson said.

"We couldn't sustain a drive in the first half, we made mistakes but not quite as big as the ones in the Oregon State game."

"We made adjustments at halftime," Erickson said. "I feel we did a pretty good job then."

Erickson felt the same for his starting quarterback Scott Linehan. "He had about an average outing," Erickson said. "Statistically he didn't have a very good night but he didn't turn it over. When you do that and win, it's fine."

Linehan finished the night the night hitting 50 percent (under his 68 percent average) of his passes for 157 yards with a touchdown and no interceptions.

Pointe favorite receiver for the night was tight end Scott Auker with six grabs for 61 yards. Wide receiver Eric Yarber finished the night with five catches for 66 yards but that wasn't where the Vandal speedster did his most damage to the 'Jack's of NAU.

Following a 42 field goal by Idaho's Brian Decito, Yarber took a NAU punt at his own 38 and did his thing for a 62 yard TD gallop.

"The return was blocked very well," Erickson said. "But Eric did a lot on his own, he had to make a few moves on his own to get there though."

Erickson also had good reviews on his kicking expert Decito, who is four for four this season.

"I've been coaching him well," Erickson joked. "Really though, I'm really pleased with his performance."

"I'm pleased with our entire special team units," Erickson added. "Ernest Sanders did a great job for us."

The Vandals scoring on the night along with Decito's two three-pointers were Linehan's third quarter dive from two yards out and a rush-dazzle 52 yard reverse play by Brant Bengen.

Bengen's run, along with a Yarber's 35 yard reverse run were drawn up in the Vandal locker room at the half.

"We saw that they were moving their DB with our running back in motion," Erickson said of Yarber's run. "We knew that each side play."

"The touchdown run was a third and short play," Erickson said of Bengen's six-pointer. "They were really hunched in the middle."

Idaho must now prepare for Idaho's supposed toughest hurdle for the BSC crown, the Nevada-Reno Wolfpack.

"We have to improve in many phases," Erickson said. "They are a very good, physical team."

Kees latest winner

Persistence paid off for this week’s winner of the Tri-State/Argonaut “Pick the Winners” contest. Don Kees of the Student Council for the University of Idaho correctly picked 17 of the possible 20, “It’s the first time I’ve won in all the years I’ve been trying,” Kees said of his winning entry. Kees only missed Oregon State’s loss to Fresno State, Boston College’s victory over Pitt and a game about everybody missed, Baylor’s victory over USC.

Kees barely edged four entrants who missed four of the picks. The four were Roger McAfee, Brian Faulkis, Mike Tallo and the winner’s wife Shirley.

“I won’t be too happy with me when she hears that,” Kees said.

Argonaut sports editor Greg Kilmer improved slightly this week, picking 13 correctly, “I don’t care if I missed them all,” Kilmer said. “As long as I got that Eastern win over Montana State, I wanted that one bad.”

Kilmer now 37 for 58 on the year, selected this week’s game with an emphasis on the Michigan/Maryland game, “It’s a lot of luck picking that one,” he said. “That one that couldn’t be picked in a tie.”

Every entry can be dropped off at Tri-State on the Sporting Good counter before Friday noon. Good luck.

Been a rough couple weeks lately. Murphy was right, "Anything that can go wrong, will go wrong.

It was a matter of getting out of here.

The last two weeks have been ones of markup and print... a "sextic," an "il-ri-at," and a few others I can't put in print. I've been sufficiently disagreeably cold that has left what's left of my nose red. The decapitated egg and whatever talent I once possessed at picking football games has yet to rear its pretty head.

So with all these fantastic things going my way, I escaped the confines of the Palouse.

Accompanied by a fellow Argonaut, who was equally lonely, we packed up the rig with all the necessities and ventured south to ease the hurt.

Our destination was Cascade, Idaho, a very pretty little town just south of McCall. A very young Vandals, I always feel great after spending a few days at the folks' cabin. If it worked once, I figured it'd try it again.

My plans were to get a few worms wet, sip a few, take a couple morning walks and all and all get back into nature. And you know it worked, even though the fish were all on diets and I did more slapping than fishing. I think I drank good.

Feeling as good as I did Sundaay morn, I figured I'd check out how the rest of the world had spent their last two days. And being an avid sport's freak and your sport's editor, I wanted to check to see how the Vandals fared and how the Holmes/Spinks stallouts turned out.

I hustled down to a quaint little mom and dad store to get a issue of Idaho's largest paper, the Idaho Statesman.

After forking out a one spot, I was excited to see on the top of the front page, "Spinks Shocks Holmes, Page 1B."

I quickly jumped through all the Boise news and gossip and found section B, my beloved sport's section.

Sure enough, there was smiling Michael Schu in on the cover page along with Boise State's grant 57-10 loss to Reno. I quickly jumped through pages two, three, and finally the Big Sky section.

Montana, Idaho State, Montana, Weber scores but no Idaho. Come on guys, what state do you live in?

It brought back some memories, when our roundballers were moving up the AP and UPI ranks, the Statesman wouldn't give us the time of day. My Boise cronies were always calling me and asking how many lost Keleman and Owens dished out.

Granted we are way up here in the backward pashandle but check the recordbook guys. The U is 5-1 against Boise and Idaho State since Dennis Erickson & Co. have been throwing the ball around up here. There are a horde of Boise boosters in the Twin Falls to do what do to get you to mention the Vandals.

It wasn't until McCall and the Lewiston Tribune that I found the Vandals were 1-0 in the Big Sky race.

A fast warming to the sport's desk down there; you've got to give me one way up here this year and following your effort last year, (what is it 57-07?) you'll have my best effort.

I'm blessed for being a you good all thoughs, you'll have plenty of filler for your sport's pages. We'll be playing football into December.

See ya in Tacoma guys.

The University of Idaho Rugby team traveled to Pullman to play the Washington State University team this weekend.

The result was the match was a disaster for the UI ruggers as they were trounced in both games played.

The first game was played in the first five minutes as opposing the normal 40 minutes but the UI squad still lost by a score of 22-6.

Most of the scoring for WSU came within the first eight minutes of the half as the UI team seemed disinterested without team leader Deedee Peterson.

Peterson was unable to play in the match and the team suf-fereed for his absence. After the rough start the ruggers played much better on defense and tackled well although their offense was still lacking.

Ruggers drop pair of matches to WSU

WSU controlled the ball most of the game and gave Idaho litttle chance to run the ball. The second game went even worse for the squad as many new players were substituted in and WSU took advantage of this by scoring five touch downs in one half.

The Cougs proved more than the Vandals could handle as they dumped Idaho 15-5, 15-0.

After Friday's contest, coach Pam Bradetchick said, "B/RU bit around us, over us and through us. We're learning from each match. Our comeback against Chapman showed the character of this team, though.''

On Saturday, Idaho captured consecutive matches, one in straight sets and the other in overtime. In the opening match, Idaho defeated MOWA rival Weber State, 15-4, 15-9 and 15-10.

This advanced Idaho to the match for fifth and sixth against New Mexico State. In this match the Vandals played perhaps their best match of the tournament, knocking off New Mexico in straight sets 15-12, 15-6 and 15-13.

Coach Bradetchick added after the contests, "We played better each match as a team. Our transformation game was especially strong.

Saturday's stars for the Vandals were Debbie Jordan with 22 kills, Gant with 27 digs and Neel-ly with 71 assists.

Goddard and Joyce Sasaki each had five service aces in the final competition.

The Vandals are now 8-7 and return home to Memorial Gym to host Gonzaga on Wednesday night.

Back Richie Moore, who sat out the game with a bad leg, said that the new players needed a little more experience.

Meanwhile, forward Buddy Lewis said that more aggressiveness was what was needed.

Kelly charged
A University of Idaho computer science major and Argonaut advertising staff member, Glen E. Kelly was charged with a misdemeanor for illegally attempting to access several UI computer accounts.
He was charged by Moscow police after UI computer service workers noted several attempts were made to access the Kibbie Dome and two other university accounts on Sept. 9.
Last May another student, Patrick Kohler, was charged with tampering with a UI computer, and gaining access into the Kibbie Dome ac-with hacking count. He was charged with a felony.

Kohler, after getting access to the account, he billed it for computer time he had used in March and hadn’t paid for.
He eventually pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor rather than felony charges.
A misdemeanor charge is incurred if the sum-involved less than $1,500.
Kelly’s case will be sent to the school’s judicial review board.
If convicted in court of the charges, he could face a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $500 fine. His ar-remonies will be on Wednesday.

"THE NAKED TRUTH: ADVERTISING'S IMAGE OF WOMEN" with Media Analyst Dr. Jean Kilbourne.

"Jean Kilbourne’s excellent slide presentation demonstrates that what is done to women in the imagery of advertising is a kind of violence; the female self is not simply objectified but literally disintegrates into a collection of disparate and relentlessly judged components."

Northwest history goes on stage tonight

By Mike Long
Ori Argonaut

Northwest history will come to life tonight in the University of Idaho’s Horton Theatre at 8 p.m. when ASUI Productions presents “Abigail and Harvey.”

“The content of the play will be very interesting,” Barry Bonifas, program coordinator for ASUI Productions said. He’s “related to women’s issues which are definitely a major concern these days.”

Bonifas said, the play “shows how one of these women’s problems was handled in the early part of the century.”

The story revolves around a brother and sister who devoted to each other throughout their lives, clash politically. Now this would not be of importance, except that each one played a very valuable role in the history of the Northwest.

Set at the turn of the century in Oregon against Abigail Scott Duniway joins the struggle for women’s rights, while her brother, Harvey Scott, the influential and conservative editor of the “Oregonian” decides to end support, convinced that a larger number voting will not guarantee wise choices.

These are representative of the tensions that surrounded capable, hard-working women and a society steeped in the tradition of automatically assigning power and opportunity to men.

According to Bonifas, the three people involved in the play “are people with really excellent reputations in the Northwest.”

Those three are actors Jane Van Bokkirk (Abigail), Bill Douglas (Harvey) and Charles Deemer, playwright of the piece.

Bonifas has seen Bonifas perform before and says “she does good work. Several of the plays she has done in the past have been historical dramas. She’s very good.”

She became respected throughout the area for performing in one-woman historical dramas, such as “The Northwest Woman” which has been through 300 cities and is still going strong.

Douglas has studied with Marcel Marceau in Paris and studied at the American Conservatory Theatre in San Francisco. He has also directed, and is a playwright and critic.

Playwright Deemer has worked closely with four different scholars to fully understand the story of Abigail and Harvey: Ruth Barnes Moynihan (Rebel for Rights: Abigail Scott Duniway), Lee Naish, historian and biographer of Scott; David C. Duniway, historian, archivist and grandson of Abigail Dunway; and emeritus professor of Pacific Northwest history at the University of Oregon Edwin Bingham, who is also a pioneer in the use of documentary drama as a tool to teach regional history outside the classroom.

With over 20 of his plays produced professionally, Deemer has also received awards from the Oregon Arts Foundation and the Oregon Arts Commission.

The play will be touring 15 cities and it and the tour are made possible by partial funding from the Idaho Association for the Humanities.

Tickets are available at the UI Student Union Information Desk and also tonight at the ticket office before the performance, $8 for students and senior citizens and $5 for general admission.

This page contains a calendar of events, including a section on the role of women in various contexts, such as in science and advertising. It also advertises a homecoming dance and other events. The text is a mix of bold and normal fonts, with some sections highlighted in green for emphasis. The calendar entries include dates, times, locations, and brief descriptions of the events. The layout is consistent, with events listed in a logical order and formatted in a readable manner. The page seems to be part of a larger document, possibly a newsletter or a program guide, given the variety of topics and the structured presentation of information.

In Seattle, her stories were limited to 30 seconds and could range to 50 at the most, while at Idaho she has a minute to a minute and a half. "I enjoy it," she said.

Being around the Seattle area, Brown was also kept up on the news happening in Idaho and needed to familiarize herself with it. She also finds work at Idaho not quite as busy with only an average of two news stories coming out of the Idaho Bureau a day, along with two different versions of each story for different broadcasts during the day.

In addition to gathering the news however, Brown also teaches two classes at the Idaho campus, Newswriting and Radio Production. She disciplines herself to correct homework, which she says she loves.

According to Bonifas, Entertainment has been working with the Senate's finance committee on a new proposal for an increase in the fee and a bill will probably be brought up at this week's senate meeting.

"We'll probably be close to the original," he said.

The original proposal stood as $3 per student entertainment fee increase and $7 for ASUI in general, which was passed by the State Board of Regents in March.

This proposal was then sent to senators for a vote by mail ballot last summer. It passed but was vetoed by ASUI Vice President Mike Trail.

A second ballot was then sent out proposing a $2 fee increase which again was passed by the senate but later vetoed by ASUI President Jane Freestad.

Bonifas said, "Entertainment wants to increase this to $5 to $8. This seems to be what the Senate's finance committee has agreed to but we'll see. Jane has already said she might veto."

He said the $2 per student per semester entertainment fee was instituted five years ago with the purpose of subsidizing performances.

"Over the years there has been a small enrollment decline and a lot of administrative expenses were charged to that account, over $9,000 from last year," said Bonifas. "So the amount that actually goes to subsidizing went from $30,000 a year to $14,000.

Bonifas explained why Entertainment needs more money.
"People want us to put on concerts in a geographic area that's not in the mainstream.

We have three big problems," he added. "The UI has no adequate facilities for performances, so any major shows have to take place at WSU. Second, most major shows go only up and down the Pacific Coast. It's difficult to get major shows to come into this area. Third is our small population base.

Because of these factors, we can't expect acts to come in here and break even, therefore we need the subsidy," he commented. "For long term, I'd like these roughly $50,000 a year in the account to help subsidize performances."

Despite the limitations of the Palouse, Bonifas said, "We've been successful in getting major shows to come to the coliseum."

Last year, five major acts came to the E-House: Huey
Lewis, REO Speedwagon, Bryan
Adams, Neil Diamond, George Burns. "Most schools can't say they've had that many," According to Bonifas, revenue from these acts was $700,000.

"I know people would like to see Bruce Springsteen, Prince and Tina Turner but who exactly doubt any of those artists will come to the Palouse."

Bonifas also said that the debt's effects on relations with the senate. "It's a difficult situation but I think we've been able to stay on good relations with the senate and executive officers and hopefully we'll have some resolution pretty soon."
