Centennial 'rolls' on breakfast

BY CHRISTINE BECK

University of Idaho's Centennial Celebration got underway Monday morning as almost 4,000 people attended kickoff activities in the Kibbie Dome.

The "Centennial Fanfare," composed by William Billingsley, thrilled on campus at 8:30 a.m. Monday to call students, faculty, administrators and community members to the free kickoff breakfast. Classes were dismissed Monday morning from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m., so that students and faculty members would be able to attend the breakfast.

Actual ceremonies began at 9:30 a.m. and featured speakers and entertainment.

Governor C.L. "Buck" Otter presented a proclamation from Governor Cecil Andrus declaring the start of the UI Centennial. A similar proclamation was given by Moscow Mayor Gary Scott.

"We (Moscow and the UI) are one," Scott said. "We are, in fact, a single community."

Moscow celebrated its centennial last year, but according to Scott, a successor organization to the Moscow Centennial Committee has been appointed. Its purpose is to orchestrate Moscow's involvement in the centennials of both the UI and Latah County.

Other speakers during the kick-off breakfast included James S. Macdonald, chair of the Faculty Council; Beverly D. Rhodin, chair of the Staff Affairs Committee; and Brad Cuddy, ASUI president.

The speakers represented people from the state, city, faculty, students and the staff.

Performing at the ceremony were the UI Wind Ensemble, conducted by Robert Spivey; and the Vandals, directed by Harry Johansen. The "Centennial Fanfare," and "Sympathy," composed by Robert Dickow and sung during the program by the Vandals, were commissioned specifically for the Centennial Celebration by the UI Centennial Commission.

At the end of the program, 1989 silver and gold balloons were dropped from the roof of the Dome and into the audience. Included among these were Centennial "prizes" including sweaters and pins.

Monday was the first day in a week of kick-off activities scheduled for the Centennial Celebration. This week will feature daily performances of university students and groups. Performances will be daily at 10:30 a.m., 12:30 p.m., 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. All performances will be held in the University Building Auditorium. All Centennial kick-off week activities are under the direction of Dr. Robert Miller, director of the Lind Hampton School of Music.

Accelerated core classes students in favor

BY DWARN BOBBY

Sixty percent of University of Idaho students want accelerated core classes, according to a non-scientific survey taken by the ASUI Senate.

An accelerated core class would take place during a nine-week period instead of a whole semester and would meet twice as often as a regular core class.

At the registration Help Booth, where he says he found the best cross-section of students for a fairly accurate representation, "It's a good sampling of all students, especially the off campus ones," Gotch said. "You just can't get that going to the living groups, unless you have seniors who are really good at getting around to their off-campus groups.

A total of 204 surveys were returned, and the results indicated that a majority of students are in favor of accelerated classes:

-60 percent would take ACs in the first nine weeks of the semester;
-22 percent would take an AC in the second nine weeks (17 percent or 36 individuals checked both boxes, indicating they would take an AC in either time slot);
-29 percent would not take an AC.

"It's interesting that many people who said they wouldn't take an accelerated class indicated on the survey that they had already fulfilled their core requirements or were graduating," Gotch said. "Accelerated classes have something to offer everybody," Gotch said. "It's good for students during the first semester because just when regular classes start piling up, the accelerated classes are over. Your load lightens just when you really need it."

Gotch also said the ACs would benefit the faculty by giving instructors a free nine-weeks to write the papers and books they are expected to publish. ACs would also benefit the faculty by raising student retention levels.
NEWS

Former Cabinet member to visit UI

A news conference has been scheduled Friday afternoon for Terrel Bell, former U.S. secretary of education, who will be on campus to take part in UI's Founder's Day activities.

Bell will deliver the inaugural Founder's Day Address in the University Auditorium at 2:30 p.m. At that time, he will become the first recipient of the UI Founder's Day Award, given for service to higher education.

The news conference is scheduled immediately following the address and award presentation, at approximately 3:30 p.m. It will take place in the conference room of the College of Education, which is adjacent to the Administration Building.

Bell, who served as secretary of education from 1981 through 1984, is probably best known for his leadership in appointing the National Commission on Excellence in Education. More than 13 million copies of the commission's report, "A Nation At Risk," have been distributed since its release three years ago.

Currently, Bell is professor of education at the University of Utah.

His book, Thirteen Men, A Reagan Cabinet Memoir, was just published. It caused a national stir when advance copies were previewed last fall. In the book, Bell writes that mid-level White House staff members told racist jokes, including references to the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., as "Martin Lucifer Coolin.'"

Bell is a 1954 UI graduate of an Idaho native.

Automated financial aid system slated for summer purchase

BY M.L. GARLAND

University officials announced earlier this month their search for a complete financial aid automation system. According to Student Financial Aid Director Dan Davenport, the system will be advantageous to students.

"WE'RE behind the times. It's time for us to get caught up." - Dan Davenport

"It allows us to give students better information of where they are in the process," Davenport said. "We're behind the times. It's time for us to get caught up." The system should allow the financial aid office to inform students of their aid at an earlier date, combine this information with their registration process, cut the process time in half and allow financial aid counselors more time with students.

"We do not want to make the financial aid office a computer," Davenport said. "The automation

ITAD sponsors slide show and panel discussion

A brown bag seminar sponsored by International Trade and Development and the CED-WID Office will be held on Thursday, from noon to 1:30 p.m. in room Ex 102.

The seminar is entitled "Understanding Women in Development: Technical Assistance Opportunities." An informal slide presentation will be followed by a panel discussion led by Harvey Meester, CED WID Coordinator; Dorothy Zarkajr, ITAD Associate Director, and Doris Williams, campus WID Coordinator.

Contra rally comes to Moscow

Coalition for Central America supporters will rally together at 4:30 p.m. at the Palouse Mall next to the Goodwill Trailer. The group will walk in a two by two procession from the mall to Fifth Street Square. Their rally is to focus public attention on the "cruel war being waged against the people of Nicaragua" and to generate letters to Congress with the message of "No more contra aid. University of Idaho College Republicans are sponsoring a rally in support of continued United States aid to the Nicaraguan Frente Popular de Liberacion. Participants will meet in the SURF's Vandall Lounge at 4:30 p.m. and proceed to Friendship Square to stage a demonstration to support the Nicaraguan Democratic resistance in their efforts to bring peace and freedom for the people of Nicaragua.

Calling on Moscow

KUOI, FM 89.3, will host a debate on Contra Aid Wednesdays at 7 p.m. Tim Kelly and Dennis West will be on hand to present their opinions and answer questions concerning the topic.

New Senators
Experience varies, enthusiasm does not

BY DAWN BOBBY

They might be greenhorns to the ASUI, but at least three of the five new faces around the Senate Chief's table are old pros in the world of politics.

Sen. Leslie Danielson and Sean Wall pull their duties in "grunt work" for U.S. Rep. Larry Craig's office in Washington D.C. last summer as well. "Leslie and I worked together for a couple of weeks, mostly doing constituent-type work," Wall said. "Representative Craig gets a lot of mail from constituents-complaints, problems, questions, that kind of thing. The information is available to them; most of the time it was a matter of tracking it down, getting it on paper and sending it out. I did a lot of research and returning letters."

Danielson's two big projects now are helping Sen. Molly Weitenkopf find a Communications Coordinator to put together the Senate newsletter and compiling a weekly master list of ideas and projects senators can discuss with their living groups.

An even tougher nut to crack, though, might be the ASUI budget; Danielson has the dubious good fortune of appointment to the Senate Finance Committee.

Craig McCurry, a junior in political science, has never served an internship with the U.S. Congress, but he holds numerous high-level office in campus organizations; vice chair of the UI College Republicans, Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity president and Inter-Fraternity Council secretary.

"I was really happy with my appointment to Rules and Regulations," McCurry said. "When you're making up a committee, you have to choose the best mix of people to work together. I've known Sean (Wall) since we were both 16."

The two other new senators, Christina Hendricks and Brett Kieffner, are not quite as experienced as the rest in the observation of real world politics, but what they lack in experience, they make up for in ability and eagerness.

Hendricks was appointed to the Senate Jan. 13 in the first meeting of 1988, giving up her shot at a paid position with student radio KUOI.

"I wasn't planning on this job," Hendricks said, laughing. "I have to do some research and visit my departments as soon as possible."

"Eventually, I want to serve as a communication line with my college, the College of Mines. I want to get some information flowing back and forth."

Kieffner, a senior from Moscow, wants to serve a similar purpose.

Kieffner and Danielson are the only two Senators who don't have political science majors (Commercial Recreation and Secondary Education, respectively), and Kieffner doesn't have the benefit of Danielson's experience. He says, however, that won't stop him from being an effective Senator.

Curry named manager

BY JILL CHRISTINE BECK

Stephanie Curry was recently appointed the new Operations Manager for ASUI Communications of the Student Publications offices, located on the third floor of the SUB.

Curry replaces John Pool, who resigned in September after almost 12 years as operations manager.

As Communications' operations manager, Curry is in charge of all of communications departments on the third floor. These include the Argonaut, the Gem of the Mountains yearbook, KUOI, ASUI Advertising and ASUI Communications Services.

"I coordinate all of the actions that happen on the third floor (of the SUB)," Curry said.

Curry graduated from Western Washington University in Bellingham with a B.S. in Visual Communication Education with an emphasis in Journalism and Graphic Production.

"Curry's work experience includes a position as production manager for Scientific Publishing Company in Bellingham and graphic technician in a print shop.

should update the process and leave more time for counseling," Davenport said. "We have plans to review proposals in March and possibly purchase an approved system during the summer. An estimated two years is required for complete implementation for the automation."

"We will implement the system and continue processing financial aid at the same time," Davenport said.

The financial aid department has been researching financial aid automation for the past three years. The implementation of this program is a crucial part of a future Touch-Tone Registration process, according to Registrar Matt Telin.

1 MILE S. OF MOSCOW ON HWY 96

ARGONAUT Tuesday, January 26, 1988 3
Once again the United States is approaching an historically critical decision.

On Tuesday, March 3rd, Congress will once again take up the debate of whether or not to continue the Contra-revolutionary guerrillas forces based in Honduras and Costa Rica. The upcoming debate gives us an excellent opportunity to examine the effectiveness of our policy, which we have pursued during this five years of the Reagan Administration.

While it can be argued that it is in the U.S.'s best interest to halt the spread of Soviet communism in our hemisphere, Reagan's strategy should be abandoned as it can only serve to push Nicaragua further into the Soviet camp and destroy current regional peace efforts.

The future of an entire region of the world and Nicaragua's future depends on both the U.S. and the Soviet Union will depend on whether or not we can prevent the mistakes we made 27 years ago in our relations with Cuba.

Whether the outcome of Nicaragua's future in a friendly manner is very limited, both because of the disastrous results of 40 years of U.S. support for the Somolota dynasty, and by the nationalistic nature of the Nicaragua's 1979 revolution.

It appears, however, that our ability to successfully influence Nicaragua's future policies, and an effective peace initiative, is virtually unlimited.

The Reagan Administration's hostile policy towards the Sandinista government in the last seven years has almost totally alienated Nicaragua's political moderates who once called for closer economic ties with the U.S. Moreover, it is most important, the U.S. economic, diplomatic, and military support for the Contras is forcing Nicaragua, on the threat of extinction, to align itself with the Soviet Union.

The three issues which have prompted Reagan's hostility are:

1. Nicaragua's military assistance to guerilla movements in El Salvador;
2. Nicaragua's establishment of relations with the U.S.S.R.; and
3. The pact of social change in Nicaragua.

One real strategic concern has prompted us to force Nicaragua to embark on a campaign of exporting revolution to its neighbors. This fear for the security of U.S. allies (most of which are conservative, militaristic, or right-wing, such as Honduras, El Salvador and Guatemala) is a realistic one, but shortsighted in nature.

Yes, Nicaragua has offered sanctuary and arms to other revolutionary groups. But Managua has repeatedly offered to halt such assistance if the U.S. would stop funding the Contras.

Douglas Jones
Commentary

agreed to terminate all such activities under the peace plan that he signed several months ago. That plan calls for all outside (e.g.: U.S.) forces and assistance (i.e.: Contra funding) to stop. This is the same peace plan that Reagan supported just six months ago.

Probably more to the point, Nicaraguan support for other groups has not end and will not produce revolution in El Salvador or Honduras. If Cuba's attempt to "export revolution" in the last 1960s proved anything, they proved that revolutions cannot be exported, they are always homegrown products.

Reagan's "I told you so" response to Nicaragua's establishment of normal diplomatic and trade relations with the socialist countries was an overreaction.

Such relations should not, on the other hand, be interpreted as hostile or detrimental to U.S. Interests. That is simply the natural policy for a non-aligned neutral state, India, Canada, Mexico and dozens of other countries that the U.S. enjoys normal relations with also have normal relations with Soviet Russia.

The last issue is the unwillingness of the Reagan Administration to accept long overdue social reforms advocated by the Sandinista government.

To be sure, such reforms have damaged the interests of the U.S. investors in Nicaragua, but they do not damage our national interests.

Neither the fact that Nicaragua is less than understanding to the U.S. interests, or that the Sandinista regime put the interest of its general populace ahead of the interests of the upper classes, threaten the vital interests of the U.S. Neither, in and of itself, leads to Nicaragua aligning itself with the Soviet Union.

What we should be concerned about is inadvertantly limiting Nicaragua's options so that it only has the Soviet Union to turn to, such as the U.S. did in the late 1970's.

A moral thought for aid in the contra issue

February 3rd will mark the day major class in Congress over an issue so vital to United States' national security interests in Central America.

On that day the House of Representatives will vote "yes" or "no" on whether to approve the Reagan Administration's request for $50 million dollars in military and economic aid to the Nicaraguan Contras.

History teaches us several lessons about Marxist-Leninist regimes.

First of all, the support of a Marxist-Leninist government is the only way to win some concessions. The Contras, on the other hand, are always cast as being untrustworthy, and therefore are always almost always of coalition government, and the dangers of political pluralism to assume greater control. The lead party will usually extrajudicial control over the major parts of a government: the political party, the state government, the interior, and a Ministry of Agriculture.

Moreover, although Marxist-Leninist regimes promise their citizens a greater prosperity and more equal distribution of income, they usually only make promises. There is, of course, is not more freedom, nor more democratic institutions, but less freedom. This trend can be seen in all of the Soviet Union's "barest nations."

It is perfectly moral to do everything possible to prevent the masses from being made suckers to such a seductive form of government. From that point of view it would be moral to do everything possible to liberate the captive peoples of Marxist-Leninist regimes everywhere. However, I do not pretend to be an idealist and do recognize limits to what can be achieved.

"Florette" a stunner

REVIEW BY KERRY LAUGHLIN

Tragedy, greed-driven evil and the foibles of man's existence are pretty heady themes for any film to take on, let alone one that has the added problem of depicting French rural life circa-1930.

Claude Berri's Jean de Florette handles all its points with dead-on authenticity and moves deftly along with its 'in' style straight plot energized with poetic images and expertly realized performances.

The plot centers on a patch of land which the Souheyran family wishes to possess and which is owned (via an inheritance which comes about as the hand of the Souheyrans) by Jean de Florette, his wife and his daughter Jean's family finds that the land is also the site of a former tax collector and his illegitimate son (he resides how to raise rabbits in a manner for repeated) by the village farmers of Provence. Insensitivity, in fact, comes off in Jean de Florette as a kind of existential horror fueled by cruelty and tragic consequence. The two Souheyran family members, Cesar (Yves Montand) and his nephew Ugo (Daniel Auteuil) use a disease of friendship to win the farm out from under the feet of Jean. The actions snowball out of control due to circumstances unforeseen by the initially respectable Souheyran and also due to the blood-rended ends and stance of Jean.

Gerard Depardieu's performance, as Jean, is brilliant at his happiness as leading an authentic life away from the civilized world into madness.

The Souheyrans, especially due to the deeply satisfying performances by Montand and Auteuil, where it soon becomes tempting to create harshly trenchant characters, come across as justified in their own stance. Winter's overwhelming pity is called for as a case of Jean. Berri also supplies some unanswerable character, this relationship is a sacrifice. De Florette's, for the success of the family's family life for the success of the farm.

Jean de Florette does not produce a running conclusion with its story of evil versus ignorance, it is merely shown with its beauty.

Vandals sweep Montana road trip

BY MIKE LEWIS

The Vandals survived a late-game Grizzly rally and held on to sweep Montana 64-63 in a tense Big Sky battle Saturday night in Missoula. Idaho’s Wayne Tinkle hit consecutive three-pointers in the last 49 seconds of the game, and the Vandals missed the front of six one-on-one bonus opportunities in the final four misses to contribute to the eviction of a 13-point Vandal lead. With 15 seconds left in the contest, a scramble for an inbound ball saw freshman Ricardo Fitch recover it, and he was only fouled. Eight seconds went on the game clock as Boyd led the one-on-one attempt, getting Montana the ball and the chance to win. Fortunately for the Grizzlies, the Vandals were not to get away with a final shot once the ball went down the floor.

"We had an opportunity; now we got to go back and take care of business at home," Floyd said.

Hopefuly, our team can grow from this that these girls are never over," said Idaho Head Coach Tim Floyd. "I think that club has a heck of a lot of character and showed it.

The loss was the Grizzlies’ third in a string of conference victories, all with their third straight loss at home court Adams Field. The first time that has happened since 1971. Idaho guard Kenny Luckett had a string of high honors with Idaho leading game-high honors with Floyd. Tinkle entered the gamo, hit four previous three-pointers, and his sight of ten from the field. It was Luckett who led the Vandals to their first road game of Montana State and Idaho in 20 years. "We’ve always liked Kenny, he’s a lot of poise and understands what is that we are trying to do," said Montana Coach Stew Morrill.

"I don’t think the Vandals deviated from the usual one-man or two-man defense that become their trademark as of late," said Morrill. "I think they are, partly due to foul trouble. We’re not a zone team, we like to get out and pressure," said Morrill. "But we didn’t want to put them on the one-on-one early and it helps us on the road."

Wells fouled that led to the early 11 for Idaho leading scorer James Brown. He scored 25 of his 30 points on the free throws.

"I think he’s a terrific player," said Floyd. "I think he’s a terrific player." He continued to light it up the floor, shooting 35 of 47 percent. However, Ricardo Vidal’s consecutive free throws came to an end at 22, only 42 of the Vandals.

The Vandals will return home Friday night to host the Weber State Bobcats in the Kibbie Dome, and Coach Floyd welcomed the homestand. "The road is an opportunity; now we’ve got to go back and take care of business at home," Floyd said.

Vandals sweep Montana road trip

BY MIKE LEWIS

The Vandals survived a late-game rally and held on to win, 84-77 at Montana State, snapping the Bobcats' season-long winning streak and leading the Vandals to their second straight road victory.

The Vandals will return home Friday night to host the Weber State Bobcats in the Krahe Dome, and Coach Floyd welcomes the road trip.

"The road is an opportunity; now we've got to go back and take care of business at home," Floyd said.

The Lady Vandals faced two defeats over the weekend as Montana State and Montana. However, Coach Ford welcomed the opportunity and the Lady Vandals claimed the home game over the Bobcats.

"The road is an opportunity; now we've got to go back and take care of business at home," Ford said.

The Lady Vandals trailed 33-23 at the half, and in the second half led the Bobcats on to establish their 13th win of the season, keeping their record perfect.

Idaho's Lori Enicks led the Vandals with 13 points and five rebounds. Weekend scoring total points.

Saturday's game against Montana proved to be the final game for the Lady Vandals this season.

Idaho trailed 39-15 at the half, and the score was 47-17 with 13:13 to play before Montana began to substitute freely.

Leading the Vandals in scoring was Chrissy Van Pelt with only 3 percent hitting from the floor, equaling 12 points.

The Lady Vandals take on Nevada-Reno Friday, and Northern Arizona Saturday in the Krahe Dome. Both games get underway at 7:15 p.m.

Men win nailbiter, Vandals sweep Montana road trip by Mike Lewis

The Vandals survived a late Grizzlies rally and held on to Montana's lead in a tense Big Sky battle Saturday night in Moscow. Wayne Tinkle hit consecutive three-pointers in the final four minutes to contribute to the eventual 72-54 Vandal victory.

Vandals, who led by 14 at the end of the first half, missed the front of one-on-one bonus opportunities in the final four minutes to contribute to the eventual 72-54 Vandal victory.

"The road is an opportunity; now we've got to go back and take care of business at home," Floyd said.

If so, apply for the newest paid position at the asu, the communication coordinator; you'll be responsible for the senate newsletter and other communications for the asu, pick up applications from the senate offices and turn in by Monday, February 1.

Women come up short in Montana by Julie Hoebach

The Lady Vandals faced Montana State on Tuesday at the Great Dome, and Coach Floyd welcomed the hometown crowd.

"The game was a real opportunity; we've got to go back and take care of business at home," Floyd said.

Idaho trailed 13-23 at the half, and in the second half the Bobcats went on to establish their 13th win of the season, keeping their record perfect.

Idaho's Lori Elkins led the Vandals with 13 points and five rebounds with Jennifer Bellenger scoring 10 points. Saturday's game against Montana proved to be an opportunity as the Lady Vandals lost 75-3.

Idaho trailed 32-18 at the half, and the score was 60-55 with 14:13 to play before Montana began to substitute freely.

Vandals sweep Montana road trip

MIKE LEWIS

The Vandals survived a late furious rally and held on to win Montana 64-63 in a tense Big Sky Conference night in Moscow.

Jennifer's Wayne Tinkle hit a consecutive three-pointers in last 49 seconds of the game, the Vandals scored the first of six one-on-one bonus opportunities in the final four to contribute to the evaporation of a 13-point Vandal lead. Eight seconds left in the game; the team was a 2-2-2-2 to the show on the clock and the win. Fortunately for the Vandals, the Grizzlies were not able to set a final shot on the ball down the floor. It was an opportunity; now to go back and take care of business at home." - Tim Floyd

The Vandals will return home Friday night to host the Weber State Bobcats in the Kibbie Dome, and Coach Floyd welcomes the homestand.

"The road is an opportunity; now we've got to go back and take care of business at home," Floyd said.

Tracksters blaze in home meet

BY MIKE LEWIS

Boise State's Troy Kemp and Idaho's James Tennant highlighted Saturday's Kibbie Dome Indoor Track and Field Meet with impressive early season efforts. Kemp established a new Kibbie Dome record in the high jump with a leap of 7' 5 3/4", breaking the previous record of 7' 4" shared by Greg Jones, Brent Hacker and Brett Lowery, while Tennant beat out BSU's Danny Holmes for the victory in the mile, crossing the line in 4:13.2.

"I thought the best one (performance) was James Tennant in the mile, I think he was about 4:13," said Idaho Head Coach Mike Keller. "He's ready to be Big Sky Champion this year indoors for us."

Another impressive performance was turned in by Idaho's Carys Choate in the 55-meter dash, in which she turned in a 7.9, good enough to rank as the second best 55-meter time in Idaho indoor history.

According to Keller, about 400 athletes competed in the meet, which is more than usual for a first meet. However, many Idaho athletes did not compete "mainly because we're not quite ready yet," said Keller.

Other Vandals turned in notable performances, including Anne James Tennant held off the Boise State competitor to win the mile event in 4:13 in the dome last Saturday. (ARGONAUT/Stephanie Worley)

Scott, winner of the women's 55-meter high hurdles and 4th place finisher in the 400 meters, Kelsey Carmody who placed 2nd in the 800 meters by less than a second in 2:21, Bobbi Purdy, the 2nd woman in the 200 meters in 26.72, and Jeff Collins who leapt into second place in the long jump with a 23' 9 1/2" mark.

Winter Wilderness Skills Series

The popularity of winter wilderness activities over the past decade has increased at an astounding rate. While the winter season offers an array of spectacular opportunities, successful participation in the winter environment requires an increased knowledge of techniques and skills.

The UI Outdoor Program recognizes a void in winter skills education. The Winter Wilderness Skills Series includes evening presentations and outings in a progression from the basics to more advanced skills.
