Health inspection 'disappoints' boss

By JILL CHRISTINE BECK
Editorial Staff

Marriot's University Dining Service could use a little help in the kitchen, according to a recent Latah County Health inspection report. Marriott scored 78 out of 100 on the Feb. 27 inspection of its Wallace Cafeteria facilities. No follow-up inspection is planned for the facilities. Lynn Morrison, director of Marriott's University Dining Service, said Monday most problems present during the inspection were immediately corrected. Morrison said:

"This is disappointing to me," Morrison said of the inspection report. Although the score was lower than Morrison would have personally hoped, she said inspector Richard Gabriel did not feel there were any major problems. "He was comfortable when he left," she said.

Problems which showed up on the inspection included students drinking in the kitchen, food containers lying on the floor, dirty utensils such as can openers, and meat thawing out in the open.

Morrison said that steps have either already been taken or would soon be taken to correct the problems. For example, a policy is being drafted in which students will be given a verbal warning if found eating or drinking in the kitchen. The second warning will result in suspension and possible termination upon review of the situation.

The food, which according to Wallace Cafeteria Manager Dane Holick, was standing on the floor because of shelf remodeling, was immediately placed on pallets.

And areas which were described in the report as dirty have been cleaned.

Morrison said she would work to avoid future problems through employee training.

"We need to get through it with training and the right tools and equipment," she said.

Officials could not locate copies of past inspection reports, but according to Holick, Marriott's score was lower than past university scores. Holick said many of the problems indicated were not new, however.

For example, cafeterias officials have been warned in the past about keeping the can opener clean.

Morrison said the results of the inspection would not have been any different if the university was still in charge of the cafeteria.

Pro-Greek speaker says she's anti-hazing

By JON ERIKSON
Editor

Fraternity and sorority hazing will not be stopped by legislation or lectures, says the founder of the Committee to Halt Useless College Killings.

But only the individuals living within a house can prevent it. Ellison Stevens told nearly 300 people attending this weekend's Rocky Mountain Greek Conference:

"We aren't going to change anything, only you can do that," Stevens said Saturday.

Stevens founded the anti-hazing organization, CHUCK, in 1979 after the hazing death of her 20-year-old son, Chuck. During her talk Stevens recounted the events leading to her 20-year-old son's death.

On the afternoon of Feb. 21, 1978 Chuck pledged a local fraternity, Klan Alpine. Later that night, Chuck and two other pledges were told to get into the trunks of three cars. They were each given a six-pack of beer, a bottle of wine and a pint of whiskey and told to drink before being released.

For nearly 30 minutes the pledges were driven around in below freezing weather conditions.

After arriving at the fraternity house, an unconscious Chuck was removed from the trunk. According to Stevens he was put to bed to sleep it off. However, when members checked on him later his blood had died. The other pledges were hospitalized in critical condition for more than 72 hours. An autopsy report said he had died from alcohol poisoning, exposure to cold and an overfilling of his lungs with fluid.

In the ensuing months Stevens sought answers to Chuck's death. She started CHUCK and began lobbying state legislators for anti-hazing laws.

Newest Zinser job offer out today

Elisabeth Zinser rejected the Idaho Board of Education's latest job proposal Monday, and instead suggested that yet another round of negotiations could lead to her acceptance of the UI presidency.

Meanwhile, a local newspaper reported Monday that Zinser has been offered a total yearly salary package of as much as $110,000 to accept the UI presidency.

Zinser responded to the board's latest job proposal Monday by sending the board a counterproposal outlining her employment concerns.

The sole remaining finalist for the UI presidency, Zinser is expected to receive a revised job proposal from the board by 3:30 p.m. today.

The board met by conference call Monday afternoon to discuss Zinser's counterproposal, which addressed funding for the university, the UI president's salary and the mission of the university in Idaho's higher education system, said board Executive Director Rayburn Barton.

The board faxed its original job proposal to Zinser's office Friday morning. The original proposal included all Zinser's terms of employment. Bill Hargrove, board public affairs officer, said Thursday:

Bookstore construction limits parking

Steve Rees said the motif was chosen to make the bookstore as architecturally compatible as possible with the St. Augustine's Phase I of the construction, awarded to Motley and Molloy, Inc., of Pullman, involves site preparation, including pouring the foundation and installing the utilities.
Reese said bids for the second phase of the project, including actual construction of the building, will be advertised in mid and March and opened by the end of the month.
Present plans call for the current bookstore facility to be remodeled for use by the university's Student Financial Aid and Career Planning and Placement offices.

Contract protects $10,000 pay raise for UI assistant dean

Gibb wants job search reopened

From Staff Reports

No wage cut is planned for a university official who received a $10,000 pay raise this summer in a process that may have violated procedures in the UI Faculty-Handbook.

James Bauer, assistant dean of students for residence living, was promoted to that position and received a yearly salary raise to $33,053 from $30,091.

College Bowl team wins national berth

By M.L. GARLAND

UI's team will travel to Illinois next month where their team will compete in the National College Bowl Tournament.

A team of four and one alternate will travel to Egan, Ill., after winning the Region 14 College Bowl Championship in February.

According to Judy Wallace, director of the Tutoring and Academic Assistance Center and advisor of the team, the UI's winning streak continues.

For the fourth time in six years, an UI bowl team will attend the national competition. UI student team members are Ray Horton, Alane Olson, Tracy Feil, and Charles Rice.

The College Bowl National Championship Tournament will be held at the College of DuPage April 21-23. Competing schools include Cornell University, Princeton University, Rice University and Georgia Tech.

This year's UI team continued a traditional rivalry by defeating the University of Washington team in the championship round of the regional meet Feb. 25.

In the knowledge games, college bowl teams answer questions from a wide range of disciplines — mathematics, the sciences, literature, philosophy, history and current events.

"It's a good use for all those trivial facts you pick up and never use," Horton said.

Two teams of four students each match wits against each other in 14-minute competitions.

"It's tense," Tracy Feil said. "You have to answer the question before it's finished."

A campus intramural tournament was held in October with teams from living groups and organizations to determine who would represent UI at the regional meet.

HELP HAJIB GET ADVANCE DEFENSE

Said Hajib is a U.S.-supported graduate student from Nicaragua, currently enrolled in the College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences, studying paramentment. As a Peace Corps volunteer serving in Nicaragua, he worked with the Nicaraguan Ministry of Education. Department of Waters and Forests. During this time, he became close personal friends. He is one of the reasons I chose to pursue my graduate work here at Idaho.

On Feb. 28, he was arrested, charged by the Moscow Police Department with three very serious crimes and held in jail for three days, pending bail.

For myself, and those of you who know Said well, this is a very disturbing and upsetting story. The charges made are very serious, and I don't intend to discuss them further. However, I believe, there is absolutely no doubt in my mind of his innocence, or the ability of our legal system to protect his rights and provide a fair defense. (If you feel Said is given adequate representation in court, please let us know.)

Unfortunately, in the United States, this requires huge amounts of money. Latah County has one public defender, who has been assigned to defend Said, but he is overloaded with work. We are extremely worried that Said's case will not be sufficiently handled.

One woman I have worked with is a private lawyer, who can devote 100 percent of her free time and energy to Said's defense, and we have a tentative agreement with her. We would like to extend this offer to other well-regarded firm here in Moscow to take the case, if sufficient funds can be raised in time.

The total cost will be approximately $20,000. Finding this money is proving to be incredibly difficult. If we could raise $10,000 in one month, we would already committed several thousands of dollars, and we are now assigning Said to one of the university community to help raise the money. We are dealing with individuals. As a student, he is placed in an especially difficult position. We are aware of his political and cultural differences and lack of personal means and family ties here.

Consider these problems carefully, and keep in mind what it would mean to you to be given adequate representation in a foreign country. Your contribution will help ensure that Said's innocence is completely shown.

The preliminary hearing will be held in the Latah County Courtroom in Moscow, but if the defense is not satisfied with the postponement, the jury trial will be held in 4-6 weeks. You are invited to attend, and the support will be greatly appreciated. Checks are preferred, made out to "Said Hajib Defense Fund." They can be brought or sent to myself, Mohammed Dair or Ahmed Faih, the Graduate Student Resource, College of Forestry, Wildlife, and Range Sciences.

SMASH ON YOU, ticket-happy Moscow police

Editor:

One would like to think that the people of Moscow would be glad to have 8000 students and faculty press and pump up 56% of Moscow's economy in the course of nine months. That amounts to $48 million.

It is too bad though that the U of I provides such little parking for those students and faculty. For instance, so the city of Moscow feels the need to squeeze out an extra ten banks from every student they can. Get the Parents Weekend, when there are double the amount of cars on campus, the police again feel the need to pump out tickets on campus, they can, if the parents are not paying, now.

Moscow should be ashamed that, knowing the parking predicaments that exist there is not even fewer legal in the on-campus parking lots. I feel for those students if we have to make it harder to drive to school. Also, if we destroyed and ripped away the morale of the Contras. Made up of small bands, the soldiers who had become reliant on U.S. aid and weapons supplies; We took it away. Now the forces, not only small, is in need of a lack of power. Without U.S. military involvement, soldiers and advisers, the Contras are basically little guerrillas, and all the they want is democracy. And we cannot help them. Our money and moral ethics are so screwed up that we are blind to what is going on. Everyone, everyone screams "Vietnam," at me, I want to respond with "CURA." We asked for the trouble in Vietnam. This time we should avoid the same type of situation.

If we plan ahead, calculate our movements and avoid rash decisions, we could have an air of rationality over any other course has been read in recent years. It is in our duty to assist the Contras who are fighting for the cause of democracy. We involved ourselves at one time, and in doing this we provided ourselves with an obligation to Nicaragua, whether we like it or not. We would like to believe any American would be proud to do this, but it is wrong to go on fighting against the control of U.S. aid. We are just asking for wrong... Maybe not one really knows what running way from Idaho... Central America? Where's that? The scariest part of the whole chain of events is that President

Daniel Ortég'a has stated that he plans to move his country toward a democratic and peaceful future. This man is from a man who has an influential history of publicizing precisely this and quickly doing that. He could move to democracy by pushing all the undesirable elements out of the country. That could be accomplished quite simply. If he wishes in Washington could he feel his concerns. What hap- pens after Nicaragua? Hay. "I hear Honduras has some scenic spots..."

Then I would recommend Mexico and, once there, just roll on up through Texas. This rigid radical Central American dream could just as easily become an American nightmare. What person would rather see a battle raging in their front yard than on our television screens? This has been a person in Nicaragua who would rather turn on a television and see his war being fought on U.S. soil so that he could turn it off and forget about it. Yet he cannot, and he also sees himself as someone to forget either.

It's about time we had one battle raging over there... We can have gone around creating enough trouble and stir others' yards. Our duty is not to step up the challenge and get involved in the restric- tions of Nicaragua, we will be far more off than the morals and pen-pushing others/you have to be cared.

Crowd challenges Idaho cheerleaders

By RUSS BIAGGINE
Sports Writer

1-D-A-H-O, Idaho, Idaho, go, go go is a cheer that all supporting UI students are used to hearing.

But has anyone ever thought about the people who tirelessly lead us in this cheer and others every football and basketball game?

For those who sit in the stands oblivious to everything but the game they are the 14 individuals who enthusiastically, yet sometimes frustratingly, lead Vandal fans in cheer after cheer. They are the UI cheerleading squad.

Enthusiasm is easy to understand, but frustration?

"It gets very frustrating when we try to lead the crowd in a cheer, and we don't get any response," said song-leading captain Angie Hasenoehrl. "We usually have to ask a football or basketball player to help us get the crowd motivated when that happens."

Team member Gina Musgrove agreed. "It's very hard to keep up cheering when no one is responding."

Hasenoehrl, who has been on the team for four years now, described her experience in three words: 'It's been fun.'

She said that the experience has helped her budget her time better and has allowed her to meet new people and get involved with the university.

In her fourth season as a cheerleader, Hasenoehrl has noted various changes the university has made to aid the program. During her first year, all members paid $100 for their own uniforms. The following year the university bought the team's uniform forms. This year the university gave each member of the cheerleading squad $150 per semester equaling an annual $300 scholarship.

The cheerleading program has benefited not only from the university but from the coaches as well, namely men's basketball coach Kermit Davis.

"Coach Davis has played a big part in our enthusiasm this year," Hasenoehrl said. "He has inspired us with his open appreciation of our efforts, and for that we would like to thank him," Hasenoehrl said.

Earlier this year, when the basketball team held its Midnight Madness basketball game, Davis expressed his appreciation by taking the squad and the UI band out for pizza.

Despite the infrequent moments of non-participation, Musgrove and Hasenoehrl said they were very excited for this season.

"We had great crowd support this year, especially during the basketball games," Musgrove said.

"The support has been great, notably the SAEs, who were consistent in their enthusiasm all year," Hasenoehrl said.

But what about the crowds at the away games?

"It was fun to travel, but the crowds at the games were very frustrating, especially the crowds at LSU and UM. We were always hearing comments," Musgrove said.

"I liked the comments from the opposing team's crowds. They inspired us to perform better, enabling us to take on a 'take this' attitude," Hasenoehrl said.

As the cheerleading season winds down with only the Big Sky Basketball Championships remaining, the squad is preparing to hold tryouts April 22-23. Although she is graduating in May, Hasenoehrl said she hopes to see more men try out for the team.

B-Ballers travel to Big Sky playoffs

By SCOTT TROTTER
Sports Editor

The UI women's basketball team boarded the plane and placed their worries aside while the Big Sky regular season co-champions met and faced the survivor of the battle of the Montanas in the Vandal regionals for the Big Sky Conference Tournament this weekend.

The Lady Vandal beat the Eastern Washington Eagles 66-56 last Saturday, placing them against No. 3 seed Boise State Friday night at 8 p.m. in Missoula. The winner will face either the Lady Vandal with an 17-10 overall record for the 1988-89 regular season and a 11-5 Big Sky mark.

Ross leads UI in intramural track

By GREG NUNES
Sports Writer

It was the Jackie Ross show Sunday afternoon in the Bob Mathias Dome during the University of Idaho, Washington State University, Intramural Track Meet.

Ross, a UI student, was one of the few bright spots for the Vandals, as WSU dominated much of the afternoon.

In the field events, Ross won the long jump and shot put with ease and was equally impressive in the track events.

Ross leaped 16'8" 3/4" to capture the long jump title and easily won the shot put with a toss of 46' 17/".

Showing her all-around athletic skills, Ross took three running events, the 55-meter dash, the 55 hurdles, and the 200.

Ross, who is red-shirting this year and plans to join the Vandal track team next season, was especially impressive in the 55 meters with a time of 7.08 seconds.

In the 55-meter hurdles, Ross clocked in at 10.95 seconds, while another Vandal, Sonja Schlosser, came in second at 11.7 seconds. Ross' 200-meter time of 26.8 seconds was well in front of WSU's Michelle Winder at 27.9 seconds.

The Vandals struggled in the men's events. The only bright spots were a first in the 400 meters for Dwayne Ferguson and a second in the 800 meters by Matt Muller in the 200 meters.

Ferguson easily won the 400 with a 52.9. WSU's Josh Wirth finished a distant second at 54.9.

In the 200, Muller (23.2 seconds) was beat out by WSU's William Knight (22.6 seconds).

Winners of each event received an Intramural Championship t-shirt for their efforts.

guys on the team," she said. "They are beneficial to the team in many different ways." Hansen could also like to note that not all the guys are not per-vets when they appear to be looking up the girls' skirts. They are rewarding on their own time.

"We have a lot of people ask us how it feels knowing the guys are looking up our skirts. That is not what they are doing. They are just making sure that they don't drop us," Hansen said.

If you have any ideas for the cheerleaders or don't like what they are doing, the squad encourages you to try out for the team. They are always looking for new ideas.

If you have any questions about the tryouts, contact Hase-noot in 882-0816.

The Boise State—UI matchup will follow the No. 1 seed Montanana and No. 4 seed Weber State clash, and the winners of the first two games this Friday will meet Saturday at 6 p.m. to determine the conference championship.

On the men's side of the court, UI faces the survivor of the Montana and Montana State game Thursday in the Big Sky Pavilion in a battle of the No. 3 and 6 seeds. UI, entering as the No. 2 seed but as the Big Sky regular season co-champion, plays the winner on Friday at 6 p.m. In the other first-round game Thursday, No. 4 seed Nevada-Reno takes on the winner playing host ISU Friday. The two winners meet in the championship

The bold Sky Championship game Saturday at 8 p.m. The Vandals enter the tournament 23-5 overall and 13-3 in Big Sky after last week's thumpings — 76-68 over BSU in Moscow, and 113-70 over Idaho State.

UI closed their season impressively with the ISU loss, and Lawrence Nash had a career-high 11 assists to give him 157 this season and the UI single-season record for that category. Mauro Comes broke the Women's record for three-pointers with three against ISU, giving him 43 for the season, and 13 of the Vandals' 14 players scored against Idaho State.

Soviets rock SUB tonight

People are the same the world over, according to a Soviet rock star.
"It's the same there as it is over here," said Alexander Losev, lead singer of the Stas Namin Group, one of two rock groups from Moscow, USSR that will perform in Moscow, USA tonight. "People are the same everywhere."

The Stas Namin Group and Ron- do, two of the Soviet Union's most popular rock music groups, will perform in the SUB Ballroom tonight at 8 p.m.

The band members held a press conference in the SUB Monday night. The press conference was aired live on KUOI-FM. WSU student Joseph Berger acted as interpreter for the conference.

The groups' representatives, Losev and manager Ludmila Bratash, stressed similarities between the Soviet and American peoples.

One of these similarities is the seemingly worldwide reaction of parents to rock music. Losev said that they have the same problem in the Soviet Union with parents blaming the problems of the teenage culture on rock 'n roll music.

"As long as the teenagers are doing it, the parents don't like it," said Losev with a laugh.

The bands hope that by touring in the U.S. they can familiarize Americans with Soviets on a more personal level, and, according to Bratash, show that Russians aren't as scary as they're seen in the movies."

The Stas Namin Group has sold more than 40 million records since 1972. This is the group's third visit to the U.S. Rondo Kpsai's sold 1.5 million records since its formation in 1986, and is visiting America for the first time.

KUOI-FM and One More Time Productions are co-sponsoring the event. Tickets are on sale at One More Time and Ticket Express for $6 and will be available at the door for $8.
