ASUI Candidates debate fees, credits and budget

Candidates for ASUI offices almost out-numbered audience members at Thursday night's candidate forum. Although only about 20 people came to listen to the candidates debate the issues, the candidates gave their opinions on the issues of student fees, lobbyist positions, budget deficits and surpluses, condom machines and credit loads. The candidates debated for nearly three hours, and most of the time they agreed with each other.

The role of the ASUI president should be kept to educational issues.

— Steve Majer
ASUI vice-president

Senatorial candidates took the stage for the first section of the debate, which included five questions. Candidates were limited to a one-minute response time. All the candidates said they would spend as much time as necessary to fulfill the demands of their office if elected. They all agreed that the five office hours presently required of senators is not enough. Candidate John Bufta summed up the feelings of most senators when he said that this position should be treated like a part-time job, with about 15 hours required each week.

All the senatorial candidates agreed to support living groups that want condom machines, but they also cautioned that they do not "advocate irresponsible sex," in the words of Dr. Keith Christianson.

However, a couple candidates said they didn't want to overstep the bounds of the ASUI office. They said the senators might be under the jurisdiction of the Residence Hall Association rather than the ASUI.

The third question posed to the candidates concerned the candidates' position on Rep. Eugene "Gino" White's minimum wage proposal. At least five senators said they would encourage senators to write letters to their representatives, while others said they felt it was not an issue the ASUI should concern itself with since it is not an educational issue.

The candidates also agreed that students should have the right to use student fee money to hire an attorney or lobbyist. However, when asked by the audience the candidates how they plan to vote on the referendum that asks students whether the ASUI should sue the University of Idaho over the possible misuse of student fees, nearly every candidate said they would vote not to sue.

Most candidates said they needed more time to gather information before making a decision to retain a lawyer and sue.

Candidates also addressed the issue of involving and representing the 55 to 60 percent of UI students who live off campus.

One possible alternative posed by several candidates was to change the structure of the senate.

Instead of selecting senators to represent living groups, one senator could be elected from each of UI's colleges. Presently, the majority of the senate is made up of College of Letters and Science.

Candidates also expressed concern Thursday night that the problem of student involvement is not limited to off-campus students but that it applies to all students, and the low turnout at the forum attested to that view.

The presidential and vice presidential debate centered on the questions of student use of money, lobbying of the state Legislature, budgetary management and credit load requirements.

Presidential candidate Lisa Keopel said she feels it is "entirely appropriate" for the ASUI to attempt to impact the Legislature through the Idaho Student Lobby.

Candidate Lynn Majer also said she wants to see the ASUI influence the Legislature, but that the "role of the ASUI president should be kept to educational issues" and not cover all state issues.

Candidate David Pena said his "campaign centers around issues that are going to affect students every day, like parking, lighting and the food service."

On the issue of credit load requirements for ASUI offices, Majer said she feels an office is an extracurricular activity on top of academic pursuits and therefore, offices should not be given special consideration.

Pena said he is planning to take seven credits if elected to office, but that he would be willing to take more if he were required to.

Keopel said she supports the special credits considerations given to offices because the office of president is a "huge job."

"If someone is willing to postpone their education to serve me, then more power to them," she said.

Snow fight may move off-campus

Fraternity and Residence Hall Association presidents met Thursday night to discuss the possibility of having an off-campus snowball fight to avoid the damages incurred during last year's battle between the dorms and the fraternities.

Although the committee has not agreed on a specific proposal yet, the presidents discussed ideas that could help the groups avoid last year's damage costs. Last year, RHA paid $1,000 to replace broken windows, while the fraternities paid $1,500. "We should try to defer it off campus," said Doug Korn, president of the Interfraternity Council.

"I think we came up with a positive end result," said RHA President Ray Horton. "The announcement is what we are shooting for at this point. Hopefully this will keep damage to a bare minimum."

Korn said Thursday night's meeting began on a bad track because everyone was asking " who will pay?" rather than focusing on deferring the snowball fight on campus.

"We are taking an ugly turn," Korn said.

Chris Wuthrich, president of Sigma Chi fraternity, said the committee was too concerned about finding a solution to the snowball fight and did not feel that preventive unity was an important part. Last year, several students were seriously hurt in the fight.

"I'm pissed about that," Wuthrich said. "They were more concerned about broken windows than losing an eye."

Wuthrich said he would like to see the Moscow Police Department and the university become more involved in controlling the fights and combatting general safety was worth their efforts in the end.

MISS IDAHO SEARCH IS ON. The Miss Idaho USA Pageant will be held at the Morrison Center in Boise Dec. 25. Contestants must be 17-24 years old and residents of Idaho for six months. Interested contestants should call toll free 1-800-872-0289.

PRO-CHOICE MARCH SUNDAY. The Moscow-Latah County Pro-Choice Coalition will hold a march and rally Sunday beginning at 2 p.m. in East City Park. Participants will march to Friendship Square in downtown Moscow, where a rally featuring speakers and music will be held at 3:30 p.m. An informal gathering will take place following the rally.

The march, organized by the Moscow-Latah County Pro-Choice Coalition, will start at East City Park, continue through Moscow and end in a rally at Friendship Square downtown.

The rally will feature music by local folk singer Dan Mar, according to organizer Lee Gaylord. Scheduled to speak are Marie Vogel, a concerned citizen from Troy, and the Reverend Mike Burr from the United Church of Moscow.

The coalition is one of thousands of pro-choice groups staging pro-choice events Sunday. One of the largest events will take place in Washington D.C., where the National Organization for Women is staging an assembly at the Lincoln Memorial. Thousands of supporters are expected to attend.

The marches, rallies andforums are a reaction to the Supreme Court's recent Webster decision, which gives states the power to restrict abortions.

"1990 will be the pivotal year in the American people's struggle for reproductive choice," said Betsy Thomas of the Moscow coalition. "Not only will our state legislature and courts begin to decide whether the women of Idaho have a right to determine their reproductive lives, but the Supreme Court will decide three more cases in which it could overturn Roe vs. Wade."

In addition to the march and rally here in Moscow, a pro-choice forum will be held Monday in Pullman. The film "Abortion for Survival" will be shown, followed by an open discussion, said organizer Libby Walker.

Palouse area residents will show their support for abortion rights by holding a "Mobilization for Women's Lives" march and rally Sunday.

WHAT'S COOKING?

Cassie Tartoue has prepared free Thanksgiving dinner, including turkey, dressing, cranberry sauce, vegetables, and dessert, for students and community members. Cassie said it's a tradition she began years ago. On her way home for Thanksgiving, she met an elderly man in the street who was going home alone to fix a frozen dinner.

"I decided then that no one should have to be alone on Thanksgiving," Tartoue said. Tartoue, who enjoyed big community Thanksgiving celebrations as a child, said many have forgotten that Thanksgiving originated as a community festival to celebrate survival.

"I wanted people to know that Thanksgiving is a true community festival," Tartoue said. She said international students should also learn about the true meaning of Thanksgiving.

So every year Tartoue hosts a dinner at St. Mary's Family Center, where 35 to 65 people celebrate Thanksgiving together.

"I love it when it's such a mix of people," she said.

Pro-choicers to march in Moscow

"We will have resource people available to answer questions, including legal professionals, doctors and a woman clergy member," Walker said.

The forum is designed to help people become aware of their reproductive choices.

Idaho state Sen. Ron Beitelspacher will visit Moscow Monday for a public hearing on abortion legislation at 7 p.m. Beitelspacher has scheduled hearings in each county of his district.

The hearings have given Beitelspacher the opportunity to hear what his constituents have to say about the recent Supreme Court and congressional decisions on abortion. A bill designed to limit abortion availability will most likely be introduced in the next Idaho legislative session.

Sunday's march will begin at 2 p.m., and Monday's forum will begin at 7:00 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Thanksgiving is fast approaching. Have you made plans for dinner?

If you are not returning home, do not have a place to go, or just want to share your day with others, Cassie E. Tartoue has a treat for you.

The topic for this year's Symposium UI, "The New Europe," was selected at Thursday's Board Foundation Committee meeting.

The topic was selected over "Austroacy In Asia" and "War and Peace At Century's End."

The Board Foundation Committee strains each year to present an opportunity for people to learn more about the world and how it affects them. Past symposiums have featured events such as a panel discussion between University of Idaho students and Soviet students via satellite.

The Board Foundation Committee also structures the members of the committee. Committee members include Chairman Ken Gallant, William Breadhead, Barbara Groover, Kase Crindic, Ed Michelson, Ivan Peterson, Richard Spencer, David Stiller, Jeff Walker, Amos Yoder and Brett Howard. There are students, faculty and community members on the committee.

Each committee member had the opportunity earlier this year to submit topic ideas, which were then presented to the committee and discussed. Thursday the topics were discussed again and voted upon.

Criteria used to judge the top-10 speakers included availability, local needs, relevance and media exposure.

"The things that are going on in New Europe are some of the most significant things historically going on," said committee member Amos Yoder, who presented "The New Europe" topic to the committee.

"The opening up of East Germany is so exciting," said committee member William Breadhead.

According to committee members, the topic of "The New Europe" could include discussion of the impact of economic union of all of Europe and possible political union.

Now that they have chosen the topic, committee members will work with campus speakers. Several interesting possibilities were discussed, including seniors and Eastern European scholars.

"We will be using people who will decide on a format for the symposium."

LATE CANDIDATES ALLOWED IN ELECTION
ASU candidates who turned in late petitions will be allowed to run for positions in Wednesday's ASU General Election.

The candidate David Perco and senatorial candidates Jackie Schoener and John Buff appealed to the Political Concerns Board earlier this week. The board overruled chairman Bill Breadhead's earlier decision to render the petitions invalid.

"The candidates outlined for the board the legal appeals under the current ASU Rules and Regulations," Breadhead said. "It was decided to accept their applications."

Editor's Note: The article in Tuesday's Argonaut incorrectly reported that J. Ed Christensen, rather than Jackie Schoener, had turned in a senatorial petition late. We regret any confusion this may have caused.

SWEETS MAY CAUSE PLAQUE BUIILDUP, HIGH CHOLESTEROL

By MARY A. SCHWANTZ Guest Columnist

"Do you know your cholesterol reading?"

This year the National Cholesterol Education Program, sponsored by the National Institutes of Health, is asking that question of every American woman and man.

But why should a college-age young person need to know her/his personal cholesterol level when most people who suffer heart attacks are middle aged and older?

Athorsclerosis (plague deposits inside the arteries made from cholesterol, fat and other materials) is sometimes initiated in childhood and especially during college-age years.

Plaque occurs not only from eating too many calories from fast food, but also saturated fats from meats and cheeses, but lots of sweets like ice cream and baked goods such as cakes, cookies, donuts and sweet rolls.

The American Heart Association recommends that we eat no more than 30 percent of our day's calories from fat in order to prevent blood cholesterol from climbing. Thus it is useful to know where some of the highest amounts of fat come from in our diets in order to make substitutions that will lower fat intake. If you're not careful when cutting back on fat, you may still be consuming fat foods without knowing it.

Do you know how much fat is hidden in these foods?

Each v = 5 grams of fat

1. Raisled Doughnut
   2. 1/2 cup Gonsola
   3. 1/2 cup "Gourmet" Ice Cream
   4. 2 slices ed. 1 1/2 ounce Bologna
   5. 1 small Hot Dog
   6. Minimum Croissant
   7. 5 Snack Crackers
   8. 3 Chocolate Chop Cookies
   9. 1 slice Apple Pie
   10. 1 ounce Potato Chips

One strategy you might use to alter your diet is to start changing what is easiest for you. Identify a fatty food you are willing to change without too much resistance. Here are some easy examples:

1. Use "lite" mayonnaise or leave it off your sandwich altogether.
2. Cut your toast spread down by half.
3. Use whole grain French instead of a croissant.
4. Have a small hamburger instead of a quarter-pound cheeseburger.

See how these simple changes can make a big difference not only in total fat not eaten, but in calories saved:

FOOD ITEM

Caloires Calories from Fat Cholesterol

Toast with 1 tsp. butter 120 38 10

Toast with 1/2 tsp. butter, peppered 120 24 5

Croissant with chicken salad sandwich

Crisped chicken sandwich with whole wheat bread, lettuce, mayo, veggies

Sliced chicken sandwich with whole wheat bread, lettuce, mayo, veggies

Quarter pounder with cheese

Small hamburger

Have your blood cholesterol checked this school year. If it is higher than 200 mg/dl, confirm it by having another test. And make an appointment to visit the registered dietitian at Student Health to tailor a healthy diet based on your lifestyle and eating preferences.

Decorated general to visit UI campus

Brig. Gen. Richard S. Siegfried, commander of the 4th Army ROTC Region, will visit the University of Idaho campus Wednesday.

Siegfried will meet with cadets from the UI Army ROTC department to discuss their future service in the United States Army.

The general will receive briefings from the UI Cadet Battalion staff on the training conducted at UI and the status of the Army ROTC department.

He will also attend a formal dinner conducted annually by the cadet battalion.

Siegfried assumed command of the 4th Army ROTC Region in October 1989. He was previously assigned as the Assistant Division Commander (Maneuver), 5th Infantry Division at Fort Polk, La.

The general has earned many awards since his commission from Officer Candidate School in 1963. He served in Panama and Vietnam.

Siegfried was inducted into the Officer Candidate School Hall of Fame in October 1985.
Show your support at the pro-choice march

T here isn’t anything most of us would like to see more than the day when all children born are wanted and welcomed into the world. The day when rape and incest aren’t everyday occurrences — even in Idaho. The day when thirteen-year-old girls don’t “get knocked up.”

But until that day comes, a woman’s right to make decisions about such a personal and private issue as abortion and her right to safety must be preserved. The July 3 Supreme Court decision has angered and outraged those who support a woman’s right to her own reproductive freedom.

Sunday we have the chance to let Idaho lawmakers and anti-choice groups know that women in Idaho can make private decisions for themselves, as they have been doing legally for the last 17 years.

Now is not the time to passively sit by and let others make these decisions for us. It is vital to take every opportunity to let our voices be heard. Attendance at a pro-choice rally in Pullman last year showed strong area support, but it was discouraging to see only a handful of University of Idaho students show up. The Webster decision allows states to tighten restrictions on abortion. States may now make laws banning any public employee from performing abortions or using any public hospital for abortions. The ruling also allows states to prohibit the use of any tax money for “encouraging or counseling” women to have abortions not necessary to save their lives.

Many lawmakers have stated their views concerning the issue, and Idaho’s future looks bleak.

Poor women in Idaho will be most affected if lawmakers tighten restrictions. We must protect ALL women in the state and help preserve their right to safe and legal abortions.

By restricting poor women’s access to abortions, do lawmakers think women with low incomes will suddenly stop getting pregnant? Do they expect rape and incest cases to decrease? Do they think these women will not try to seek illegal abortions anywhere and everywhere they can get them?

Roe was established to protect women, to give them the right to privacy and the discretion to control their own bodies. Reproductive freedom is vital. We must protect individuals’ rights to make decisions and their rights to safety.

A May 1989 survey conducted by the Boise State University Survey Research Center for Planned Parenthood of Idaho revealed that 55 percent of Idahoans oppose a constitutional amendment to ban abortions, and eight out of 10 support extending Medicaid coverage to rape and incest cases.

Still, lawmakers continue to ignore what the majority of the people think, and listen to the vocal minority in this state. The same minority that blocks access to abortion clinics, uses violence and intimidation and tries to impose their morals and religious beliefs on everyone else.

How can anyone make such a private and personal decision for a stranger? Only the individuals themselves have the right to make that decision.

Take the time Sunday to show your support at the pro-choice march and rally. The time to stand up and be heard is now.

— Stephanie Bailey

Gotch as VP unites senate
Editor: I would like to lend my support to a few of the candidates running for ASUI office this fall. Mike Gotch has served in this senate for three years and, in my opinion, Gotch has been a positive influence on the senate and would be an excellent choice for ASUI vice president. I believe he will be able to unite the senate by coordinating projects with the senate, such as the parking forum he has been working on.

I would also like to lend my support to the following senate candidates: Patty McCray, Julie McCoy, John Doceich, Mark Boyer and Doug Korn. They have also served the students well, and I encourage students to support them Nov. 15.

Supporters rally for Pro-Choice
Editor: I was disappointed today to see that the Pro-Choice March and Rally posters I hung earlier this week had been removed. It is discouraging to think that those who oppose a woman’s right to choose are unwilling to let us who support that right to advertise an event. I do not remove posters of events or issues that I oppose.

In an effort to let supporters of pro-choice know about the march and rally, I am writing to you.

On Sunday, supporters of pro-choice for reproductive rights should gather at East City Park at 2 p.m. We will march to Friendship Square for a rally of speakers and music, which will begin at 2:30 p.m. There will be an informal gathering following the rally. All supporters are invited to stand up and be counted.

Argonaut Election Letter Policy
The Argonaut will publish two letters endorsing each candidate. After the two-letter restriction, letters will be published only if all candidates in that race have had their allotment. Candidates will be allowed to rebut anonymous attacks made against them in the Nov. 14 Argonaut, if space permits. This is not, however, intended as a forum to make accusations against other candidates or to urge constituents to vote for certain candidates.

Letters to the editor will be accepted until noon on the day prior to publication. Letters should be limited to 500 words in length, typed and double-spaced. Shorter letters have priority and will probably require less editing for length.

Letters to the editor should be submitted in ink and include the writer’s name, address, phone number, and student identification number or driver’s license number. Letters from multiple-authored letters, the above information will be required for each writer. Proof of identity will be needed at the time of submission. Letters received by mail will not be run unless confirmation of name and address is obtained. Letters of 25 words or less may be edited for length, mechanical errors and spelling errors. The Argonaut reserves the right to refuse to publish any letter.

The above rules are intended to give all candidates a fair opportunity to state their positions.

Krepel: candidate of ideals, principles

Editor:
As the ASUI election date draws near, the competition grows into anxiety; much the same sort a criminal feels on the eve of his sentencing. What does the coming semester hold? How will the newly elected governing body affect us? What is the fate of the student body?

Whatever perspective one holds concerning the ASUI at present, if you've been reading the Argonaut trying to figure out what has been going on throughout the semester, no doubt you'd agree that the calmfulness is much too short to hang such a banner of dirty laundry. God bless democracy that it allows its constituents to periodically elect, or (could we say) revamp their governing groups. This brings me to my point.

Lisa Krepel is running for ASUI president. Beyond being my close friend for nine-year's, Lisa has been a friend to each of you as well. Her commitment to political action and excellence has masteredmind several proposals, and (let me emphasize this part) she's not just a lady of verbiage, but one of whatever work and action is necessary to see projects through. Her experience is varied and quite productive.

Lisa Krepel works with the Martin Luther King Day Committee and has been involved with fundraising for the United Way for two years. She has recently been involved in the organization of an environmental committee for the students. Lisa is aware of recycling and energy conservation.

Lisa Krepel has also had much experience with the ASUI. She was a member of SIC and in charge of the budgeting for UI's communications departments. As Comm Chairperson, Krepel was able to help provide the Argonaut with new computers, KUSI with a complete remodel, the Gem of the Mountains yearbook with a new computer, and come out $19,000 under budget. Krepel rewrote the Communication Board's bylaws. Now there are 12 pages that lay out the rights and responsibilities of the Comm Board.

Lisa Krepel was one of the founders of the Idaho Student Lobby and was elected by the ASUI Senate as UI's lobbyist. Lisa has also worked with President Zinn at the State Board of Education and Idaho's Legislature. She is able to act professionally, but she is at heart a student concerned.

Lisa Krepel is a candidate whose whole and honest intentions are to build an accessible forum within the ASUI, a support of political respect to confirm a productive, collaborative body of representatives for the good of the student body as a whole. How I'm asking all those concerned with excellence at the UI to vote Nov. 15. This is our opportunity to voice our desires and satisfaction (or lack of it) concerning how the associated student body is being represented. Let us choose our representatives carefully, taking into account who are indeed the 'movin' and 'doers' of this university.

To Lisa Krepel, I salute, much luck and many grateful thanks for hanging on to noble ideals and political passions. I've been a member since I have long since forgotten.

Elect officials to represent, not to take twelve credits

Editor:
Recently some students, including Doug Korn, IFC president, and ASUI Senate candidates, have advocated the implementation of a credit requirement for all ASUI elected officials specifically, the push is to force our student representatives to take a full-time credit load.

Currently, there is no credit requirement for holding ASUI office — and rightly so. The ASUI is one of the most powerful and autonomous student government in the nation. The ASUI is strong because we have elected representatives who are willing to give more than what is required and allowed them to give us the full benefit of their time and effort. I certainly hope that the students at the University of Idaho are wise enough to see that the imposition of a credit requirement on their elected representatives will not be in their best interest.

We elect our ASUI officers to represent and serve us, we do so as if they were our employeers, to perform their duties and answer our requests. To require them to take time away from their jobs — that we are paying them to perform — is ridiculous. I find it interesting that people who have not held an office before, like Mr. Korn, are the strongest advocates of creating restrictions.

Many ASUI officials, as UI students in general, must carry 12 credits for one reason or another — and that is O.K. But if an ASUI representative is willing to forego credits in order to better serve our needs, more power to him or her. I appreciate that sort of dedication. The ASUI has come a long way from the days of losing facilities to the administration and running deficits every year. If we continue to elect dedicated representatives and allow them to give all that they can to OUR

Major dedicated to UI, students

Editor:
The University of Idaho is built on tradition, perseverance, loyalty, devotion, knowledge and excellence, and those are the qualities that a future ASUI president, Lynn Major, symbolizes.

Lynn Major’s dedication to the UI is clearly evident and well-earned. Having been ASUI vice president, a two-term senator, a member of the University Financial Aid Committee, a two-term ASUI scholarship chairwoman, 1989 homecoming royalty chairwoman and Marci Grad student representative, Lynn Major has proven herself as an individual with a wide spectrum of interests and concerns of which the ASUI has benefited greatly. Her involvement spans far greater in terms of major university concerns, which include the recently presented proposal to the University Curriculum Committee on fair credit requirements for ASUI officials and the development of pre-registration for the UI.

I feel that her ability to communicate effectively with the UI Board of Regents and her goals of returning the ASUI offices to a service organization for the student is evidence that she wants and has the capacity to serve this university better than any other candidate. I admire the dedication she has toward keeping the UI working with qualified people from all areas of this campus.

Lynn Major possesses the character, professionalism and integrity that I feel we, as students, need to endorse as the most qualified candidate for president. Her contributions have repeatedly made a difference on this campus, and to enable her to continue that effort would be in the ASUI’s best interest.

I’ve seen Lynn in action and have always felt that she was a leader who continually gave 110 percent, and with others’ best interests at heart. As a student leader myself, I’ve interacted with her on frequent occasions and have been impressed by the thorough work she does.

So, as from one student to the next, I ask that you join me in endorsing Lynn Major as our next ASUI president. Your vote is surely greatly appreciated.

organization, the ASUI will persevere in its efforts to better serve and represent us.

Do not buy the con job! In the upcoming ASUI election, do not support candidates who are trying to get out of serving you. Make them earn the wages you pay them; we don’t elect them to carry 12 credits.

ASUI Senator

Korn qualified

Editor:

It is time for a change in our student government. Questions of ethics and morality which have recently risen force us to question the abilities of our elected officials. Students who were elected to serve and to represent our needs have taken it upon themselves to speak their own opinion on our behalf. During this election there are many new and highly qualified candidates who will relay the opinion of the students back to the student government.

One of the most highly qualified candidates to do this job is Doug Kern. As a candidate for ASUI Senate, his extensive involvement in all other facets of student activities gives him a broad and solid base of knowledge on student needs and concerns. He currently serves in one of the highest student leadership roles on campus as president of the Interfraternity Council. He also serves as a representative for the Western Regional Greek Conference, a Delta Chi undergraduate national officer, and is involved with the newly formed Residential Living Relations Committee. In his past involvement he has served on the University Parking Committee and the University Judicial Council and Tribunal.

If you don’t have the time and interest in the ASUI, at least elect someone who has and who will continue to voice and seek out students’ concern. Your vote for Doug Kern as one of your six newly elected ASUI senators will definitely make your voice heard.

Hilltop is the tops

By SHIRLEE CARBAUGH

Staff Writer

You would never know from looking at the outside of the Hilltop that this restaurant is a beautiful place. The outside looks like a gray, touristy campground office. But inside, you will find one of the nicest places in Pullman.

Ron and Barb Wachter have owned the restaurant since 1979.

"Although the restaurant was built in the 1940s, it has gone through many changes," Ron Wachter said.

The original restaurant was a small tea house consisting of several booths and a bar. The Hilltop has been completely remodeled and can seat more than 100 people.

Atmosphere: If this restaurant had nothing else to offer, the atmosphere itself could win prizes. Huge windows create a wall at one end of the restaurant. The decor is in soft purple hues, there are candles everywhere, and jazz plays over the intercom. Looking through the windows as a full moon rises creates a romantic evening.

Service: Jackie, our waitress, was very pleasant, and we received excellent service. "Taste: The wine list is Ron Wachter's special project. "We don't put anything on the wine list that we wouldn't serve at our own house," Wachter said.

We had a half bottle 1987 Sto. Chapello chardonnay.

Wachter also said microwaves and can openers are not used in the kitchen. He requires extreme freshness, and each meal is specifically prepared for the customer.

The Hilltop is definitely the place to be for that special, romantic evening or important event. On a scale from 1 to 4, I give the Hilltop a 3.5.

Collette gears up for double bill

By BETH BARCLAY

Staff Writer

The University of Idaho Collette Theater is gearing up for the semester's first double-feature performance.

The theater will feature Mary Gallagher's one-act play Chocolate Cake and Tennessee Williams' The Strange Kind of Romance.

Beth Rumple, director of the Strange Kind of Romance, said she is looking forward to a successful performance.

"The actors work well as a unit," Rumple said, adding that the interaction between characters in the play requires this of its actors. The Strange Kind of Romance tells the tale of drifters trying to find an identity "in a world of loneliness driven by silent fright."

The play features Jean Lund, who performed in the recent Hartung production of The Marriage of Bette and Bo and in last year's Cabaret. Lund plays毕la, who, along with the Old Man (played by Brian Boyd), acts as a narrator in the tale of isolation.

Other actors featured in the play include John O'Hagan as Little Man and Michael Porter as the Boxer. The Collette production of Chocolate Cake is directed by UI theater arts student Valerie Engles, who has worked on several UI productions, including The Marriage of Bette and Bo and Cabaret.

The play will also feature the acting talents of Lyria Gunderson, who played Sally Bowles in Cabaret, and newcomer Elisa Cannon, a freshman in the theater arts department.

Admission to the play is $3. Tickets may be purchased at Ticket Express or at the door. The performance begins at 8 p.m. Nov. 16-18, and at 2 p.m. Nov. 19.

Apathy, ignorance blamed for KUOI's lack of comm students

By ANDREA CHAVEZ

Contributing Writer

KUOI thrives on the diverse group of people who make up its on-air staff, but that diversity may be hurting the students who want to work in radio professionally.

KUOI has more than 70 volunteers to keep the station on the air. About one-fifth of the disc jockeys are from the community. The rest are students representing almost every major on campus.

One major not well represented is telecommunications.

"It's an amazingly small number," said Ken Fete, KUOI station manager. "I know telecom seniors who have never touched a microphone. It's ridiculous."

Fate blames the students and the communication faculty for the telecom students' apparent lack of interest in KUOI.

"I hate to say it, but it's either student apathy or student ignorance," Fate said.

Not so, said sophomore telecom student Tamara Shidlauski.

"I know all about KUOI, but with classes and other required productions, I don't have the time," Shidlauski said.

According to Shidlauski, finding a DJ shift that would fit her busy schedule was close to impossible.

"The people who have worked for KUOI for a long time get the best time slots," Shidlauski said.

She was offered a time but turned it down.

"Two in the morning just doesn't fit into my schedule," Shidlauski said. "I've got to sleep sometimes."

Still, Shidlauski is only one student. Fate believes lack of communication between students and faculty is also to blame for KUOI's lack of comm students.

Get Me to the Church on Time

By BETH BARCLAY

The wit and satire of Lerner and Loewe's adaptation of George Bernard Shaw's Pygma- tion is headed for the Palouse Sunday in the form of a New York touring company's production of My Fair Lady.

According to Joann Muneta, of Moscow's Festival Dance and Performing Arts Association, Inc., this production has played across the country to enthusiastic crowds.

This company has previously performed at the Palouse in such hit plays as 42nd Street and A Chorus Line, Muneta said.

The role of Henry Higgins, made famous by Rex Harrison in the movie version of the play, will be played by Australian native Marc Urquhart.

According to Muneta, Urquhart has carved a niche for himself with talented performances such as the lead in the London production of Ziegfeld.

The role of Eliza, the flower girl who becomes the focus of Dr. Higgins' attention, will be played by Christine Boger, a former performer with the Manhattan Light Opera.

The show features several well known hits including "Get Me to the Church on Time," "I Could Have Danced All Night," "On the Street Where You Live," "The Rain in Spain," "I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face," and "Wouldn't It Be Lovely."

Tickets for Sunday's performance are available for $25, $30, $15 and $10 at the Beasley Coliseum and the Depot in Pullman and at Cavanaugh's in Moscow.

Runners head to Salt Lake for Big Sky, District VII Championships

By AMY JAMISON
Staff Writer

This is it. This weekend the University of Idaho men's and women's cross country teams will compete in their final meet at the Big Sky Conference and District VII championships in Salt Lake City, Utah. "We're ready," said Scott Lorek, women's head coach. "We're definitely ready to run our best race." Lorek said one runner must remain in Moscow due to a disciplinary violation, however. "Missing a person will hurt us, but we will come through any- way," Lorek said.

Women runners include Karl Kostbach, Kim Dembam, Kristy Klason, Monica Langfeldt and Diane Knudson. "Diane will run tough for us," Lorek said.

Men's head coach Mike Keller said he needs all five of his athletes to run well but that he will especially rely on good performances from his fourth and fifth runners. "Our success depends on those two guys," he said. Keller said the team's performance has improved, and in general the runners are in better shape, although Dimick has a cold and Mark Lynch has an injured foot.

Outdoor action: Students gear up for Wapta Mountain climb

By GREG NUNES
Contributing Writer

While many of us will enjoy the holidays indoors with plenty to eat, a few University of Idaho students will challenge Wapta Mountain in the Banff National Forest of Alberta, Canada. The unusual mountain climb, which will last the entire Thanksgiving holiday, consists of an 8,200-foot climb and a country skiis because of the bindings that allow the heel of the foot to be free. This cooperative effort trip allows participants to split the costs. Group members will need to guide one another to the top of the mountain since a professional guide will not be directing them. Why do these adventurous people want to go back to Wapta Mountain?

"It can be real cold." -- Todd Baush Program intern

powder skier's paradise journey down the peak. Climbers involved in this adventure must be experienced in the ways of the wilderness and in cooking outdoors and sleeping in tents. The weather will also be a factor during the trip. "It can be real cold," program intern Todd Baush said. Participants must be good mountain climbers, as well as excellent skiers, to complete the journey down the peak through virgin powder, a powder skier's dream come true.

Mountain skiing is a cross between downhill and cross country skiing. The mountain skis are not as wide as downhill skis; they have metal edges and are similar to cross country skis because of the bindings that allow the heel of the foot to be free. This cooperative effort trip allows participants to split the costs. Group members will need to guide one another to the top of the mountain since a professional guide will not be directing them. Why do these adventurous people want to go back to Wapta Mountain?

"We're just have to keep our fingers crossed," Keller said. "With only five guys running, we have to hope all five will be in top condition.

Saturday's district competition is a qualifying meet for the NCAA tournament. Top UI runner Bernardo Barrios could qualify for the NCAA if he finishes first or second at the conference meet and in the top 10 at the district meet, according to Keller. "He's in better shape than last year," Keller said. "He's going into it with a good frame of mind. He needs to be more aggressive, however," Keller said he also has high hopes for Lynch, who could be the best freshman in the league. Competing for the men's team will be Barrion, Lynch, Dimick, Chris Leibrandt and Wayne Bunc.

 Brigham Young University and the University of Montana are expected to claim the top spots in the men's District VII meet, and Montana and Weber State College are predicted to battle for top Big Sky team honors.

In the women's contests, Northern Arizona University is expected to win the conference meet, and BYU will likely capture the district meet. Keller and Lorek said they are hesitant to predict where the UI teams will place. Although Keller and Lorek are looking forward to this weekend's contest, both said a combined district and conference meet is a definite drawback because it eliminates attention and publicity for the Big Sky Conference. District VII is the only region in the nation to hold a joint district and conference meet.

"I hate it," Lorek said. "We're sponsoring a motion to separate them." The site for the conference meet was previously alternated every year in an attempt to give each team and community a fair advantage. UI hosted the conference championships in 1986. Salt Lake City, considered a central location within District VII, was chosen for this year's combined meet.

UI and several other schools will be at a disadvantage in Salt Lake City due to increased travel expenses and a higher altitude, Lorek said.

"It's a big difference running at a higher altitude," Keller said. Runners will compete at the lowest spot in Salt Lake City, however, on a flat course.

Despite altitude and expense obstacles, Keller and Lorek expect good performances Saturday.
Lady Vandals finish with EWU

By RUSS BAGGNE
Sports Editor

The University of Idaho volleyball team will end its season Saturday night against the Eastern Washington University Eagles in Memorial Gym.

Although the Lady Vandals will not participate in postseason play, UI Head Coach Tom Hilbert said they are ready to play.

"Even though we are out of postseason play, the girls are ready to play," Hilbert said.

Hilbert hopes that the team will end on a positive note by serving better, playing tough defense, and achieving side-outs.

The Lady Vandals defeated EWU earlier this season, and Hilbert said he feels good about playing the Eagles again, especially at home.

"I'm glad to play the last game at home and in front of the home crowd, especially against Eastern Washington," Hilbert said.

The match will begin at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Baseball club holds marathon

By GREG NUNES
Contributing Writer

Although the wind was blowing and the clouds threatened to produce rain, the University of Idaho baseball club played its annual marathon Sunday to earn money for the team's traveling expenses during the upcoming season.

The marathon was to consist of 25 innings, but it ended after just 15 innings because of rain later in the day.

Despite the shortened game, the participants were tired from the experience.

"Even though it wasn't much longer than a normal game, the weather conditions made it feel longer than any other marathon game I've played in," team member Mike Weber said.

But some players, such as Tom Shields, enjoyed the final game of fall practice.

"The whole thing went over pretty well," Shields said. "I think everyone enjoyed it."

The outcome of the game was not important, but the players were able to collect money through sponsors. Coach Wade Wilson said he hopes the collections will reach $1,500.

Most of the game was played for fun, and the play became a bit sloppy at times.

"It was worthwhile because it was a fundraiser," Wilson said. "I don't think the marathon game was that bad."

Through other fundraisers this fall, the baseball club has earned approximately $1,100, and Wilson hopes that the club will collect twice as much from the marathon game.
UI meets Simon Fraser in opener

By RUSS BIAGONE

Vandal basketball has returned.
The defending Big Sky
Champions begin their 1989-90
season in an exhibition game against their archrival, Simon Fraser University.

"I'm putting a lot of emphasis on the season," Davis said. "Although it's an exhibition, we want to win the loss column."

Davis said the returning players, including Riley Smith,
Richard Boyd, and Curtis Prelow, are the backbone of the team going into tonight's game.

"The team has not been as consistent as I would like them to be in practice so far," Davis said. "The team will really be depending on the returning players to make things happen early in the game."

Davis said that losing the likes of Raymond Brown, Mauro Gomes, Lorenzo Nash
and James Fitch from last year's team could hurt this year's team's ability to work together.

"We'll try to work in
as many players as possible, but this could hinder the guys' ability to work together as team," Davis said. "The four or five older guys
will have to pull everyone together."

Tonight's contest will be Simon Fraser's ninth game of the season, and Davis expects them to be tough.

"They are very big and real physical, plus this is their eighth or ninth game of the season, so they should have all of their problems worked out," Davis said.

Davis said the Vandal's speed and quickness should be the overwhelming factor in the game.

Because the game is being held in Memorial Gym, Davis said the place should be filled. Because of fire codes, only a certain number of fans will be allowed in Memorial Gym, so Davis urges everyone to come early.

Davis said he hopes attendance will be up to par with last season's attendance.

"We owe a lot of credit to the students for our success last year," Davis said. "Their involvement in the games
made the University of Idaho
a very hard place to win
in the Big Sky Conference.

Hopefully, that will be the case again this year."

The Vandals are 4-0 against the Simon Fraser Clanmen, including last year's 76-50
victory.

BUCKS, BUCKS, BUCKS
I haven't stopped thinking about rut-ing, calling and sneaking up on a buck this fall.

I've been looking for routines while scouting my favorite canyons and trees, and

there's always a possibility in
the outlook.

Using binoculars to pick apart the brush can make a difference between spotting a buck before he sees you and spotting

himself.

Not using binoculars will cost you a shot at a mature five-pointer last year. I picked up the buck's track at dawn in the fresh snow
and

slowly tracked him

by moving inside circles to periodically check to see if I was still on his trail. On one of these circles

I came to a stop when his tracks had been

but weren't. Immediately I figured he had changed direction and to a wasn't anywhere around. When I started moving back underbrush

the brush,

I

saw

a

road

that led away. By the time I regained my senses, I saw a

white

flag

waving

in

the brush, and

I

realized he had dropped out of sight.

I had to

clear the surrounding brush,

I

would find

him

bedded,

watching his brush.

I

was very productive if you are hunting

with groups

of

people or if you don't like the one on one,

of

still looking at a distant

object.

common conception is that drivers have to drive

to reach towards

the stander's

head

the deer.

This

does nothing

more than cause

the deer

to drift

side

the road

block

your view.

better

way

is to start

at

the head

the deer.

With

the wind

t

the stands,

the

deer

will smell

and nose

out

ahead,

resulting

the stander's

having

a situation

a toothing

towards

deer.

Next

week

I

will discuss

two-man

drives

and how to score

using them.
