Idaho student presidents to consider ISL once again

By VIVIANE GILBERT

The Idaho Student Lobby, a group that is 50 years old and has had a significant impact on state legislative processes, is currently facing a decision that could affect its future. According to ASUI President Doug Korn, the group has been working on a new constitution that would allow for greater flexibility and more effective lobbying strategies.

Korn said that the new constitution would include provisions to address the growing concerns of student presidents from other universities in the state. "We want to make sure that ISL is a representative body that can effectively advocate for the needs of all students," Korn said.

The current constitution was adopted in 1961 and has undergone some modifications over the years. However, Korn said that the group has been unable to make the necessary changes to address the evolving needs of the student body.

"It's time for us to take a step back and re-examine our goals," Korn said. "We want to make sure that ISL is a truly democratic organization that can effectively represent the voices of all students."

Public forums planned on parking

By SHERRY DEAL
Managing Editor

Parking problems may be eased by suggestions made in three proposals for improving campus parking conditions, when the third proposal is handed in this week.

According to Vice President of Financial Affairs Joseph Geiger, the proposal, written by an ad-hoc committee, is to be turned in to him by Wednesday.

Geiger said the latest proposal will take into consideration proposals he received last year from the Campus Planning Committee and the Campus Parking Committee.

Geiger will then review the three proposals and choose the most feasible and least costly alternatives.

"Understand that all reports are advisory to me," Geiger said.

Once Geiger reviews the proposals, he plans to hold public forums where students, faculty and staff will have an opportunity to comment on the options.

According to Geiger, there has been talk of turning the campus into an "all-walk" campus for years. Both of the earlier proposals included this idea, along with recommendations for constructing future parking lots on the perimeter of campus and improving sidewalks between lots and classroom locations.

The Campus Planning Committee even suggested constructing skywalks over busy streets in their list of long-term proposals.

On the same list the committee recommended studying the feasibility of moving classes from more popular hours to less-favored times and building a multi-level parking structure.

The cost, financing and feasibility of all recommendations will be carefully considered.

According to the proposal's introduction, the information gathered and conclusions reached are meant to be "integrated with other parking efforts to reach a comprehensive plan for the immediate future and a basis for long-range planning."

Fraternity fixed on faryard frolic

In the Jan. 17 issue of the University of Washington's student newspaper, The Daily, it was reported that two large sheep were taken from the UW chapter of Theta Xi fraternity after police followed up on a report of theft. The sheep were said to have been stolen from a nearby campus. The incident is disturbing, as it seems to suggest a lack of respect for property and the environment.

It is hard to believe that such a thing could happen in a place like campus, where most people value education and the natural world. This is especially true in the Pacific Northwest, where we are known for our environmental consciousness. It is unfortunate that this incident has occurred.

The facts of the case are as follows: A group of Theta Xi members, who were not identified in the report, entered the university property and stole the sheep. They then transported them to a nearby farm, where they were subsequently sold.

The sheep were valued at $2,000 each, and the total cost of the theft is estimated at $4,000. The university has launched an investigation into the matter, and the police are reportedly seeking the help of the public in locating the thieves.

The theft of the sheep is a serious matter, and the university is taking it very seriously. The administration has vowed to do everything in its power to bring the culprits to justice. We hope that the community will come together to help solve this mystery and bring peace to our campus.

As students, we have a responsibility to protect our property and the environment. We should be proud of our university's commitment to sustainability and we should work to support these efforts.

The lively wit of Wilde appears at Value Inn by Cava-ner theater are $14.

Ed Chavez, director of the Moscow Community Theater production, called the play a delightful comedy.

University of Idaho student Rick McKinnon, who plays

Algernon, the wisest character, describes his character as "an eccentric, fun-loving guy who's never worked a day in his life and doesn't plan to."

McKinnon said Algernon is fond of statements like, "I hate people who aren't serious about their work. They're too shallow."

First produced on Valentine's Day in 1895, The Importance of Being Earnest has since been acknowledged as a masterpiece of humor.

McKinnon described the play, which revolves around the concept of double lives, as crisp and challenging.

The Importance of Being Earnest is about Jack, who is Earnest in the city, and Algernon, who is Earnest in the countryside, and Cecily and Gwendolen's search for the perfect male, who of course must be named Earnest. In addition, Jack, who was found in a hanging as a babe, searches for his real identity.

"It's been a lot of fun, but it's been a lot of work, too," McKinnon said.

Chavez said the cast is a good mixture of community and university people.

Four University of Idaho students have roles in the show.

Shane Nilsson is Jack Worthing. Rick McKinnon is Algernon

Moncrieff, Lyrisa Gunderson is Cecily Cardew, and "Soson

Walker is Lane, a manservant.

From the community, Spencer Page plays the Rev.

Canon Chausable, Diamond Western is Merriman the butler.

UI track teams take fourth

By THOMAS BITHELL
Staff Writer

The University of Idaho men's and women's track teams finished third in team scoring Saturday, but performed well individually, including one Lady Vandals qualifier for the NCAA Indoor Championships and members of both teams qualified for the Big Sky Championships.

Jackie Ross of the women's team broke UI and ASUI-Kibbie Dome records in the triple jump with a 43-1 1/4 leap that qualified her for the NCAA meet.

"That standard is set to be very, very tough, so very few people make that mark," said women's Head Coach Scott Lorek.

Ross' teammate, Stacey Aslund, broke her own UI record and made the NCAA's provisional qualifying mark in the high jump with a jump of 5-10.

"Out of those people who qualified, I think that the lady that made the mark, they (NCAA) will select the top people of the group and fill out the field at the NCAA meet," Lorek said.

"I thought things would go well, but they actually went better than I thought they would," Lorek said. "We had several people who qualified for the indoor Big Sky meet." Lorek said with the team's results, four or five of his athletes should now be leading the conference.

Although no men qualified for the NCAA meet, Head Coach Mike Keller said he was pleased with the results.

"They only want the top 15 or 16 in the U.S.," Keller said of the NCAA, whose qualifying marks are much higher than those for the conference. "We were out to get qualifying marks for the Big Sky. We picked up 10 conference marks.

Some of the Vandal men picking up marks were Eversley Linley in the 800-meter run, Patrick Williams in the 5,000, Bernard Bariros in the 3,000, and the 1,600 relay team. The Vandal finished first overall in the 800, the 3,000 and the 1,600, and second in the 55-meter run.

In team scoring, both the men and the women finished fourth.

In the men's competition, Washington State University finished first, the University of Washington and Boise State University were second, the University of Montana finished fifth, Eastern Washington University placed sixth, and the University of Portland finished seventh.

For the women, UW finished first, WSU placed second, BCU finished third, UM placed fifth, EWU finished sixth, and UP placed seventh.

The Vandal teams continue their season Saturday when they host an all-comers meet in the Kibbie Dome.

Women defeat EWU 70 - 58

By RUSS BISEONE
Sports Editor

The University of Idaho Lady Vandals basketball team strengthened its third place spot in the Big Sky Conference by defeating fourth place Eastern Washington University 70-58 Saturday.

The Lady Vandals (15-5, 5-3) were led by Sabrina Dial, who sank 20 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, and by Krista Smith who made 15 points.

Dial made six of her eight shots in the second half.

The women only led 38-30 at halftime but shot 68 percent (17 out of 25 attempts) from the field in the second half and pulled away from the cold Eagles.

The Lady Vandals shot 30 percent from the field for the game.

With the loss, Eastern Washington falls to 7-11 and 4-4 on the season.

The Lady Vandals return to the ASUI-Kibbie Dome Friday to face Portland State University at 7:30 p.m.
Vandals alone at top of Big Sky

By JOHN CARTER

The University of Idaho Vandals basketball team took sole possession of first place in the Big Sky Conference (7-1) with victories over Weber State College (76-62) and Eastern Washington University (70-61) Friday and Saturday.

In Friday’s game against WSC, the Vandals built a quick 14-point lead on three-point shots by forward Ricardo Boyd and guard Ron Shields and never looked back.

University of Idaho Head Coach Karlert Davis said he felt Friday’s contest with WSC had all the makings of a good game.

“It was a good college game and we were the most consistent that we’ve played all year,” Davis said.

Boyd played his best game of the year, scoring 22 points and playing tenacious defense.

“Ricardo played like a first-team, all-league guy,” Davis said.

Friday’s victory set Saturday’s UW-UW battle for the number one position in the conference. About 7,500 EWU and UI fans poured into the Kibbie Dome Saturday to watch.

Tension was thick from the start as both teams came out tight in the first half, but later they played a championship-style game. This battle for first place had alley-oop dunks, fans taunting each other, and acrobatic shots throughout the game.

The Vandals, 173-overall, showed poise and determination down the stretch and eventually wore the Eagles down in the second half. The Vandals’ front line of Clifford Martin, Riley Smith and Boyd combined for 56 of UI’s 70 points. The three scored 110 points during the weekend.

“Clifford keeps getting better and is taking the pressure off of Riley,” Davis said.

Martin finished with 22 points and seven rebounds Saturday. Ols Livingston, UI’s catalyst, continued to lead the Vandals with 14 assists and held Eagle guard Ron McManus to just 5-11 shooting. Livingston, who was listed as questionable because of tendinitis in his knee, came running onto the court and appeared to be at full speed.

The victory sure has made the Associated Press Top 25 for the first time since Davis can remember. Davis said he was worried about the thought of cracking the poll.

“It seems every time we go close, we lose one,” he said, referring primarily to the loss to Montana State University earlier in the season.

“I feel we are one of the top-40 or 50 teams in the country for sure,” Davis said.

WSC coach Denny Hutson and EWU coach Bob Hoffman are not so modest on the Vandals’ behalf.

“Both agree that the Vandals are in a class of their own,” Davis said.

Davis said he feels UI’s real test will be the upcoming road games.

“We’ll have to prove that UI is the top Big Sky team on the road,” he said. “The road in this league can ruin a lot of things.”

The Vandals travel to Weber State Thursday and to Idaho State University Saturday.
