Idaho netters end streak

The University of Idaho tennis team had its six-match winning streak ended Saturday as it lost to Weber State, 7-0 at Boise.

David Spence, the Idaho coach, said he was pleased with his team's performance. "We needed a good win to give us confidence after losing to Utah State last week," he said.

The loss was the fourth in a row for Idaho and the first in the two teams' meetings.

"We played well enough against Utah State to win," said Spence. "We just didn't win any matches."

Idaho's two losses came to Utah State and Arizona. Its other two losses were to BYU and Weber State, both of which are ranked in the top 20 nationally.

The Idaho team is currently ranked 60th in the nation, while Weber State is ranked 30th.

Idaho's next match will be against Utah State on March 12 at home.

President Emeritus

Leader in education succumbs

Dr. Donald D. Theophilus, 75, president emeritus of the University of Idaho, a heart attack at his home yesterday.

"Donald D. Theophilus was a great loved educator," said Dr. Theophilus' wife, Geneva. "He was a true friend and a valued member of the University community."

Theophilus was a graduate of the University of Idaho and served as president of the University from 1969 to 1979. He was a champion of education and community service.

In recognition of his outstanding contributions to education, Theophilus was honored with the University's highest award, the Distinguished Service Medal.

Dr. Lynn Sherrsa, acting president of the University, said, "We are saddened by the loss of this great leader. Donald D. Theophilus will be remembered for his dedication to education and his commitment to the University community."

The University will observe a moment of silence at 12:00 noon today in honor of Dr. Theophilus. Services will be held at 2:00 p.m. in the Ballroom of the University Center.

In his 30 years at the University, Theophilus served in various capacities, including vice president for academic affairs, provost, and dean of the College of Agriculture.

Theophilus was a champion of education and community service and was deeply committed to the University and its students.

A thank you . . . .

It's all too often the case . . . . the people who do the work are never recognized. Even the most* popular are most often ignored. Yet in this issue, dedicated to the important people behind the scenes, I am dedicated to the students who have gone above and beyond their basic duties, who have worked in the background for the greater good, without which our Campus life would soon whither and die. If you were around long enough, you might even see a few students who have given us all a reason to be proud.

FRANKLY SPEAKING

In front of the eight bag

Times are changing

Joe Allen

Last month an event took place that we never expected to see. An event that was not only unexpected, but also quite shocking to many. The event was the introduction of the eight bag system. This system has changed the way we live and work, and has brought about a new era of simplicity and efficiency.

Many issues

In the past, the eight bag system was seen as revolutionary, but today it has become a necessity. The system has brought about many changes, but the most significant is the reduction of waste. The system has made it possible to recycle and reuse materials, which has helped to reduce the amount of waste sent to landfills.

Editor, the Argonaut

This year we have an unusual situation in the Argonaut. Our student body is made up of a diverse group of people, each with their own unique perspectives and ideas. Many students have been involved in the decision-making process of the paper, and have contributed to the content of the paper.

For the what's worth

Concern and involvement become insufficient

Gary Hammond

Editor, the Argonaut

I have been reading the University of Texas (UT) for five years. During these five years, I have been a member of the editorial board, and I have seen the growth of the paper. The paper has grown in size, content, and overall quality. I have been proud to be a part of this growth, and I am excited to see what the future holds for the paper.

I believe that the paper has grown because of the dedication of the students who have worked on the paper. The students have shown a strong commitment to the paper, and have worked hard to make it the best it can be.

I also believe that the paper has grown because of the support of the faculty and the administration at the university. The faculty and administration have given us the resources we needed to make the paper a success.

The Argonaut has a long history, and I am proud to be a part of it. I am excited to see what the future holds for the paper, and I am confident that it will continue to grow and thrive.

Dr. Boone works on Place Name Language

Dr. Boone, professor of English, has received a Ford Grant to work on a Place Name Survey of Idaho this summer. The project is designed to help the international effort to save endangered languages. In Idaho, Dr. Boone will receive information from several indigenous tribes and use the data for the publication of a Place Name Survey of the United States. This project is sponsored by the National Geographic Society.

The information will be used to create a linguistic map of the United States, which will be published in the future.

Students now eligible for overseas studies

Students and faculty of the University are now eligible to participate in the Northwest International Cooperative Exchange Program (NICE). This program provides opportunities for students and faculty to study and research abroad.

The NICE program includes liberal arts students in the areas of foreign languages and literature, history, English literature, drama, political science, art, architecture, and philosophy. The program is designed to provide opportunities for students and faculty to study and research abroad.

Field trips and travel are also arranged for participants in the program. A representative from the program will be available to answer any questions the participants may have.

“The contents of this program will be available in the future, and students and faculty are encouraged to participate.”

Pansy Breakfast honors brides, senior women

Approximately 300 guests attended the annual Pansy Breakfast to honor all graduating women, which was held at the Tri Delta chapter house located near 11th St.

Those attending included faculty members, Moscow City Police officers and their families, J.A. women of college, living group presidents and their house mother and members of the Chamber of Commerce.

The breakfast program, which was attended by more than half a room of white and black women, included a traditional election of officers, a keynote address and a short prayer service. The event was followed by a surprise party for the graduating seniors.

The Tri Delta sorority, which is named after the University of Idaho's national sorority, consists of 12 chapters and is sponsored by the University of Idaho. Members of the Tri Delta sorority served as models.

A store, Kathy Thurston, was selected as Pansy Bride to model the bridal gown and Alpha President Jim McFarland was the groom. Models included Janice Ferron, Marian Tank, and Carol Rogers.

The event was hosted by the president of the Tri Delta chapter, who was selected from a group of presidents. The event was held in the chapter house, which was decorated with flowers and lights.

VANDAL STAR END Jerry Hendren gave the fans a lot to talk about this year, both in regular season games and in many post-season games. Hendren, who recently signed with the Denver Broncos, is shown here struggling for one which he didn't catch because of close coverage of this Utah State player.
Williams and Hembera lead the tennis team in quest for title

Two seniors, Jeff Williams, from Idaho Falls, and Mary Hembera, from Sun Valley, are the only doubles team for the Idaho Vandal tennis team. The Vandal tennis team will open their defense of the four-year-old season on Friday when they host the conference meet at the University of Montana. Coach Chad Budge had high praise for the players, saying they have handled themselves admirably and that they will be ready for the season.

The tennis meet is open to all major athletes, both men and women, and is scheduled for the University of Montana. The meet will start at 10 a.m. and will continue until 1 p.m. The season is expected to be a challenging one for the Vandal tennis team.

The meet is open to the public and is expected to be an exciting one for the tennis team.

Eight athletes chosen as tops at Idaho

By Chuck Malloy
Associated Sports Editor

Dick Bengtson

The 1970-71 season is over for the Idaho Vandals and many fine athletes during the course of the year. It is almost impossible to pick a single athlete as the 'valuable.' There are so many of them. There is a lot which seems to be true in the Vandals, whether he be a football, basketball, or track athlete.

Larry Bosma

There are many fine freshmen athletes in and out of sports -- one of them is Larry Bosma, track athlete. Some division III schools have teams in only track and field events, but the Vandals have a team in soccer, too. Bosma is listed in the track and field events, however.

Jerry Hendren

There have been many fine football players that have come to the University of Idaho in past seasons. That fact would include such names as Jerry Hendren, Mike Maloney, Tom Schaller, and Larry Bosma. Jerry Hendren doesn't have broken any pass receiving record at Boise, and he has a streak of six games in which none of his passes were intercepted. That is a marvelous accomplishment and Hendren has had four-quarterbacks throwing him downtown.

Hendren has also been a star of these passing drills this year. His throwing has helped the offensive line of Bob Olson and Chuck Lesh has given the University of Idaho an offensive trend to the spread.

Hendren could be the greatest player ever to wear out of Idaho, and his name will be the fourth-best draft choice of the Denver Broncos.

Vandals Men's basketball meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the SUB. Everyone is invited to meet the remaining members of the Vandals men's basketball team. All members are urged to attend.

Tennis

There are three times when a freshman can once come onto a line tennis team and become one of the better players for the team. This freshman was Jerry Bouldin, the Idaho Freshman tennis team.

Bouldin is a good player, but his shorts are too baggy and he is not really a good athlete. He has been to the state tournament, but he has yet to break into the top of the line. Bouldin, however, his shorts are that long and much too baggy.

Jerry still another four years left, and he could very well become another of our Idaho tennis players in the nation.

Swimming

Perhaps the most durable of the Vandals athletes is co-captain Dan Kellers. Kellers has a swim in the individual medley, the freestyle, and the butterfly, and in none of those events does he average a point in dual and resistance meets.

Kellers has a great deal to his name in swimming. He has done a great deal to his name in swimming. He has been the co-captain of Chuck Malloy's entering team for the past two years.

Track

Coach Doug McFarland and the Idaho track team has had a minute time to try to do this year. One event that he does have to worry about is the 440 yard sprint. This event has been more than adequate of that team.

The Idaho track team won at Idaho. New York best his first important showing at a track meet in Montana. At that meet, Warner was timed at 14.6 in the 110 yard hurdles for a meet record and an Idaho Vandals track record.

Mark Cooper is not the only better athlete there, but he could also be the best athlete on the Idaho track team. Cooper, who is a junior and a two-year varsity athlete, won at Idaho in the 100 yard dash last year, and he is expected to do well again this year, which is scheduled for Friday and Saturday.
