Where does that registration money go?

By Debra Saltz

It probably has a little—let’s be honest—lot of financial sense to think of registration fees. Neither PERS, which is the state’s largest retirement system, or the University of Idaho, which is one of the state’s largest employers, will comment on the registration fees. But they are quite forthcoming when asked about their budget and how it affects the future of the state. The only way to get an idea of what these fees are used for is to ask the universities themselves.

The universities have prepared a list of what they believe are revenue sources that could be used to offset the costs of running the school. These sources include the following:

1. Tuition and fees
2. Grants and contracts
3. Student loans
4. Endowments
5. Gifts and donations
6. Other revenue sources

It is important to note that these revenue sources may not be able to offset the costs of running the school. The universities are currently facing financial difficulties due to cutbacks in state funding and increased costs of operation.

Many question teacher evaluations

By Debra Saltz

Many educators are questioning the fairness and accuracy of teacher evaluations. The state has implemented a new teacher evaluation system in an effort to improve the quality of education in the state. However, many teachers are skeptical of the system and believe that it is based on subjective opinions rather than objective standards.

Teacher evaluations are a subject of controversy since they affect the future of individual teachers and the overall quality of education in the state. The new teacher evaluation system is designed to ensure that all teachers are held to the same standards and that the evaluation process is fair and objective. However, many teachers believe that the system is flawed and that it is based on subjective opinions rather than objective standards.

The new teacher evaluation system is based on a combination of factors, including classroom observations, student assessments, and peer evaluations. The classroom observations are conducted by trained evaluators who are not affiliated with the school or district. The student assessments are based on standardized tests and other performance measures. The peer evaluations are based on feedback from colleagues.

Living group ass'n plagued with money problems

By Dick Adobe

RHA, the Residence Halls Association for Lewis-Clark State, is being faced with two major problems. Money is the major issue, and the problem is the lack of money. The group has been watching the account for the past year, and the trend has been downward. The group is in danger of being faced with a deficit in the near future. The problem is being addressed, and a meeting is scheduled for next week to discuss the matter.

Money is RHA's other major problem. It was suggested that a fund-raising effort be undertaken for the renovation of the new student union. RHA is looking to other sources, but the problem remains. RHA has been asked to consider the possibility of a money-making project, but the group has not been able to come up with a viable idea.

Membership is also a concern. Each member has been encouraged to bring in new members to increase the membership. However, the problem has been relatively minor, and the group has been able to maintain its membership.

The group is planning a variety of activities to help increase the membership and to fund-raising. They are discussing the possibility of a money-making project, and they are also planning a variety of social events.

POW's Nixon Plot

The young people of America have been placed in one of the most miserable political situations ever to be visited upon them. They are caught between their opposition to the war and their need for political participation. This is the situation of American prisoners in North Vietnam.

It is a really true story that the families of these men received presidential backing from Richard Nixon himself, like his own family. It is also true that the Nixon administration consistently fails to inform the American people of the truth about the situation of the American prisoners in North Vietnam.

They are being held in a very primitive prison camp, the largest holding facility for American prisoners. This prison camp is known as the "Ho-bo" camp, and it is located in the central part of South Vietnam. The American prisoners in this camp are being deprived of the most basic human rights, including the right to receive medical care, the right to communicate with their families, and the right to practice their religion.

In the coming days, we will be releasing more information about the situation of the American prisoners in North Vietnam. We are appealing to all Americans to join us in our efforts to bring about an end to this barbaric situation.

Socialism - socialism

Anyone who believes that the abolition of private property and the establishment of a society governed by the working class is a utopian dream should take a look at the University of Idaho campus system.

The university could never get away with imposing socialism. Any school that thought the people of this state wouldn't have a right to food in good order to go living.

In the case of young people, however, socialism is possible. And socialism is fulfilled with no noticeable ill effects. This idea has been tried with no noticeable harm. At that time, according to the proponents, they may simply adopt the system of the old college, and then bring trouble as a result of the new college. This idea, in turn, is an idea of the new college. This idea is the idea that is happening in the new college.

Second, this is the line for the university. The university is not ready to implement socialism. It is an idea that has been thoroughly tested. This idea is the idea that is happening in the new college.

Black students: the situation

The students' advisor, Mr. Leary, is advising students on the matter.

The students' advisor had an article published recently in the Student's Union newspaper. The article was about the situation of black students on campus.

Black students have been facing discrimination and racism on campus. The students' advisor has been working hard to address these issues.

Militant women demand equal treatment

Stirring militant women demand equal treatment in all areas of university

The women's liberation movement has gained momentum in many ways, including within universities. Many universities now have women's centers and women's studies departments. The women's liberation movement has led to increased awareness of gender discrimination and a change in social norms.

Yet this trend, however, is not going to be easy to reverse. Many men are still resistant to the idea of women holding leadership roles in the workplace. This resistance is often fueled by a fear of losing control over the workplace and the economy.

However, even women who have held traditional jobs in the past are embracing the idea of equality in the workplace. This is evident in the growing number of women who are running for political office and holding high-level positions in government and business.

This trend is expected to continue as more women continue to break barriers and enter traditionally male-dominated fields. The women's liberation movement has played a significant role in this change, and it is likely to continue to do so in the future.

The appeal: "I'm sorry, but we wouldn't want to cause a stir. We're not trying to make a point, but rather to express our concern and a desire for change."...But the generation gap appears to be a significant factor in the appeal, as it has been described as "a vector of change" by many recent studies.

The impact: The impact of the appeal has been significant. It has led to increased awareness of the issues surrounding the generation gap and has encouraged people to consider the importance of understanding and valuing the different perspectives that exist.

The prevention: For prevention, it is important to focus on understanding and appreciating the perspectives of others. This can be achieved through open and honest discussions, education, and a willingness to listen and learn from one another.

The conclusion: Overall, the appeal has been a positive step in the direction of understanding and valuing the different perspectives that exist. It has encouraged people to consider the importance of understanding and appreciating the perspectives of others. Moscow band - Elk River - featured in ballroom

By Tom Morris

Elk River - Moscow band is a recent monthly gettogether at the Student Union Suburbanite, on Tuesday evenings. Doug Hill, who had 900 people in attendance at his Moscow band show last week, brought a group of eight guys who brought their musical talents together in October 1969. All of them were born around 1950 and their band had never played together before. Since Moscow band is a new group, they're working on their music and trying to develop their music style. They've been playing together for about a year and a half, and they've been working on their music style ever since.

The group has always been very. well-received at every concert. There are never any problems with the band and there are always plenty of people. The band's sound system is very good and they've been able to play their music to the audience.

When asked about the band's future, they said that they're hoping to continue playing together and they're looking forward to the next few years. They're also planning on releasing an album in the near future.

They also mentioned that they're planning on playing at the Student Union Suburbanite again in the near future, and they're looking forward to seeing everyone there.

The Moscow band - Elk River show was a huge success and everyone had a great time. The band's sound was excellent and they played a variety of music, from blues to rock and roll. They had a great crowd and everyone was having a good time. It was a great night and everyone was looking forward to the next show.

Grapplers drop EWSC

A quick trip by University of Idaho's wrestling team to the Pacific Northwest for the Whitworth Dual Meet featured Idaho taking one of two matches. The Vandals defeated Seattle 44-6 but suffered a setback with a 17-15 loss to Oregon State.

The Vandals, coached by Larry Sundeen, had a mixed bag of results. "I'm pleased to see some of the young men we have wrestled and experienced some close matches," said Sundeen.

Sundeeen's team consists of individuals such as Ginger Manetta, who was the only one of the Vandals to win over the weekend. "I think Ginger's performance highlights the young talent we have," said Sundeen.

The Vandals have some upcoming matches against Division II schools, and Sundeen is looking forward to those matches. "I think our team has the potential to be competitive against those schools," he said.

Sports Notes

Hendren returns to Palouse

Jerry Hendren, leading passer in the Pacific Northwest this season, is currently playing for the Southern Oregon University Bears. Hendren has been a consistent performer for the Bears and has been a key part of their offensive success.

Hendren returned to Palouse for the first time in nearly a year. He was attending a home game on Saturday and was expected to play.

Hendren was a key part of the Bear's offense last year, and his return is a significant addition to their lineup. "We're excited to have him back," said Bears' coach Bob Johnson.

Matthews returns to Idaho

Doug Matthews, head coach at Evansville, is returning to Idaho to coach the Idaho State Bengals. Matthews, a former Idaho State player, has spent the last few years as an assistant coach at Evansville.

Matthews is looking forward to his return to Idaho. "I'm excited to be back in Idaho," said Matthews. "The Bengals have a great tradition, and I'm looking forward to helping them achieve success."
Vandals drop one to Cougars

By Lance Oswald
Washington State University Cougars, gold on the double layup wasn't down and Montana, Mike Geza and Dave Kupler drove the Montana State one home. But the big start was in the first half and Tim Commons, picking up eight points, composed with a total of 13 for the WSU guard out of Mike Geza and Dan Howard. Williams and Commons are the primary factors this year for the Cougars.

Like his opponent, Commons was a bit short in the Big Sky. The only start on the bench for the 6-foot 5-inch Commons University comes to Moscow. The Cougars are considered a team with an overall threat and gas-and-gas basketball skills in the nation, and are probably higher than Pulpit Sound, whose Idaho had in the Big Sky.

Jucks return to Big Sky action this season after a trip to Missoula last week, where they captured the Cat's and Mutton, but the old court's advantage has always been credited with giving anywhere up to twenty points to the home team.

One of the prime projects will be to cover the defenses, with the number 3, 4, and 5 positions being the backbone of the Cougars' defense, right in the end in the Big Sky at 5:30 tonight.

For the Vandals to win this weekend as a team, we really need to be able to score and play good defense, with the lead going to the Cougars in both these categories.

The University of Montana coach Louis Babcock said below the game in Moscow that was considered Montana's first Big Sky game and that the Cougars have to score more than their opponents to score any points at all.

Gunther grabbed as only head with a win in the 40-yard dash first; 1 point and a hit in the grab the victory. The Vandals failed to grab a quick point, and the team was limited to only one point scored in the open contest.

Marv Hunsaker is the starting offensive player, however, being tied by Frank Bloch of Idaho, Idaho, in the Big Sky Invitational in Ogden. They also dropped two to Washington and Washington State in a match in Pullman January 12.

Tamarack issue dead after Senate refuses study

One of the grievances that concerned the Tamarack Ski Company's owners and supporters in the University of Idaho was the lack of financial support from the state government. The university's original agreement with the ski area resulted in the state's oversupply of ski tickets and a possible loss of funds. Despite this, the state's funding was not considered sufficient.

Nixon pledges no draft

President Nixon has vowed to end the war in Vietnam by the end of 1973, and to phase out the draft by 1975. He has also promised to end the war in Cambodia and Laos, and to withdraw all American troops from the area by the end of 1974.

In order to phase out the draft by 1975, Nixon has proposed extending the draft to all men and women in the armed forces. This would mean that all American men and women would be required to serve in the military, regardless of their age or gender.

In addition, Nixon has proposed making the draft compulsory for all American citizens, regardless of their race or creed. This would mean that all American citizens would be required to serve in the military, regardless of their background.

Aliens poised for Laos invasion

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

U.S. Commanders in Vietnam today said 30,000 troops are engaged in a massive ground offensive in the northwestern Saigon-Vinh area. They are poised for a gigantic push by the Viet Cong, who have been attacking American and South Vietnamese forces for weeks, the obvious aim of which is to "overpower" the government in Saigon.

U.S. and South Vietnamese forces totaling 9,000 were fighting除夕 throughout the middle of the night for the Saigon-Vinh axis, a key road in the middle of the province.

10,000 South Vietnamese troops of the American-led forces were reported rushing to the area, raising the total number of U.S. and South Vietnamese forces involved in the offensive to 30,000. The big push was expected to "overpower" the government in Saigon.

In his annual report to the 11th National Assembly in Hanoi, U.S. President Johnson explained that the Viet Cong is "a danger to the lives of our soldiers...and to the people of South Vietnam." The report was presented to the National Assembly in Hanoi.

Communist leaders in the south have been charged with attempting to "overpower" the government in Saigon and "overpower" the people of South Vietnam. The report was presented to the National Assembly in Hanoi.

New degrees offered

Effective immediately, both bachelor of arts degrees and bachelor of science degrees will be offered in several Letters and Business college courses, as a result of Mr. McGraw's recent appointments.

Biology, history, economics, political science, psychology, mechanics, applied mechanics, international studies, journalism, mathematics, philosophy, sociology, political science, psychology, radio-television, swimming, speech and sociology are the subjects included in the new degree options.

The major differences in these requirements for the degrees are that two years of study are required before the student is eligible for the bachelor of science degree, while it is possible for the Bachelor of Arts degree to be completed in three years also, according to Dr. Elmer K. Fairchild, dean of the College.

QUESTION: Do you know where the $150 fees that students pay each semester go? You feel that the university should inform students beforehand?

Jane Anderson, junior, off campus: "Pretty much all of it goes to the Bobst library. Students' didn't study about it, yes. I do know where the $150 fees go but not in detail. I think the administration should tell the students more about it."

William Peers, senior, off campus: "Not all of it. Yes, they should at least make sure that all of it goes. I feel that the books in the right are some sort of a waste. I have heard of the Bobst library, the Bobst library is good but I really don't know where the $150 fees go."

The administration is the one that should be telling the students about it."

Gawain, junior, off campus: "No. Yes, it may be used for anything but in the last year they've raised it so much it was about $150 per year and it was kind of ridiculous."

Carlyla Whitaker, sophomore, Coast Guard: "Yes. We pay for textbooks, that's the main thing. We've only been paid so far and we have to pay for textbooks."

Pat Hare, special education major: "Yes, I think that you should pay. It should be channelled to other places. We're not interested in having all of that money go for textbooks."

Mercy Felmeyer, sophomore, Hawaii: "Yes, we have to pay for textbooks. We have to pay for building fees. I work at a part-time job. I'm going to be a part-time student next year. I have to work even harder."

Philip Flanagan, sophomore: "We have to pay for textbooks. We also have to pay for another course of study, which is a little hard."

What are the fees being used for? You feel that students at state-funded institutions such as the University of Texas should be required to pay for fees?

The fees are being used for textbooks, which are expensive, and for maintenance of the building. The fees are used for the administration of the university.
