Eidos's Borah: man of peace

I would sooner lose in a right cause than win in a wrong one. As long as I can distinguish between right and wrong, I shall do what I believe to be right — whatever the consequences.

Students, inmates

Talk, not drugs

By JOHN LUNDERS
Associate Editor

Two fifty U of U students are speaking Bradmgs in Washington State Prison. Why? The talk is about to be videotaped and may also be seen on television. The program is part of a drug program run by the Associated Students (ASUI) on the University of Washington campus.

The program began in October, when five ASUI members were invited to speak to Idaho State Penitentiary inmates about the dangers of drug addiction. The group has now expanded to include two University of Washington students. They are: Sarah L. Tangavelu, former Washington State Penitentiary inmate turned producer, director, and actress; and Gary A. Switzerland, former Washington State Penitentiary inmate turned director and producer.

The program has three parts: a presentation, a question-and-answer session, and an inmate-service program. Activities involve both students and inmates. The presentation is the most important of the three parts. It is a half-hour show where the students talk about their experiences with drug addiction. The group has been invited to speak at the Washington State Penitentiary twice, once in October and then again in November. They plan to return in March.

In addition to television, the show also includes a CD-ROM version of the program. The CD-ROM will be available for purchase at the Washington State Penitentiary in January. The CD-ROM will contain information about drug addiction, including statistics, and will provide a valuable resource for inmates seeking to overcome their addictions.

If you are interested in learning more about the program, or if you would like to help with its development, please contact Sarah L. Tangavelu at sara.tangavelu@uw.edu or Gary A. Switzerland at gary.switzerland@uw.edu.

Editor's note: The following issue was handled with William J. Andrews, the financial analyst of the present financial situation at the University.

Comment: This is a very big question. It's kind of hard to describe, like, what is the present situation of the United States? First of all, the financial problems and the financial problems have become worse over the past few years. At this time we are hopefully able to solve the problem of the present financial situation at the University.

Students for Rose promise new evidence for case

On a day when the Students for Rose promised they would provide new evidence supporting Rose's case, the McGeorge law student Organization said they would challenge the university's handling of the case.

Loren Horsell, a law student for the Students for Rose, said: "We have new evidence that we believe will support the claims made by Rose. We are preparing to present this evidence to the university officials." The evidence is not yet available for public inspection, but it is expected to be released soon.

Anonymous Rose critic attacked

In a recent attack, an anonymous Rose critic has accused the Students for Rose of misleading the public. The critic, who goes by the pseudonym "Anonymous Rose," has written a series of letters to the editor, criticizing the Students for Rose for their efforts to support Rose.

The attacks have caused a stir among the Students for Rose and the university community. The Students for Rose have responded to the criticism, saying that they are committed to presenting a fair and accurate picture of Rose's case.

Tearing down the barrier

Dr. Brian Lord, the President of the University of Idaho, has announced that he will be tearing down the barrier that has long separated the University and the community. Lord said: "We need to work together to build a stronger and more cohesive community." The move is part of the University's effort to create a more inclusive and welcoming environment.

The decision has been met with mixed reactions. Some students and faculty have praised the move, saying that it will create a more open and transparent campus. However, others have expressed concern that the move could lead to a loss of tradition and values.

Narrows tortured, POW experiences told by Nasmyth

By MARY SOCHOWSKY

Eleven years after graduation and six years after resigning from the West Point, North Vietnam Capt. John (Nasmyth) V. Breakey found himself in a cell of his alma mater. His experiences there are part of a joint research class this morning. Nasmyth and John V. Breakey will discuss some of their experiences in the cell of their alma mater.

With the lid removed, Nasmyth talked of his experiences in this class.

"It's very much like school," Nasmyth said.

"Nasmyth spoke of the long conditions and the deprivation of food and water.

"We were confined to the cell all day except for two hours at night. The Bradwee was our jail. I'm sorry to say it was used as an electric chair.

April Fool's Edition

I came back. They dislike back. They dislike back and Dr. Tikky Dicky knew it. It was announced earlier this week that the last PGW had been released from Vietnam, and was safely on his way home.

With the release of the last American POW from Vietnam, it seems as though those fifty Denise Cohen girls have bid all their hatred a goodbye. Extreme militant groups have been putting out the rumour on Monday, however, but no one has been in a frame of mind for this.

Washington planners have that top brass in the military have been gathering at the Pentagon in the past month. No one is sure as to how valid these rumors are, but word has leaked out that there has been mass of activity here in the Pentagon over the past month.

Now that seems to be rock solid, what could it take to shake its foundations. Perhaps a slight Fitch in the administration could cause the public to wake up and realize what is going on.

The American people say that it has been a long time since we have been in a situation where it would be frightful that the American people could be shaken enough to re-enter the Vietnamese war.

With all the returning POW's serving back home, America's secrets continue to be revealed. It is said that the North Vietnamese has been the hardest touch of the prisoners. But the well released Vietnamese have been the most revealing.

We know how President Nixon is coping with all of this, and better yet, how will it be done? It will be interesting to see how the situation will play out in the coming weeks.

The American people should be prepared to have a long wait before they get to be home, but the wrong thing to say for the Pentagon is to say "Ayi Papa!" for the poor American POWs. April Fool's America April Fool's Everybody.

Students have Rosé's files

Three students of the Students for Free Committee requested and were granted access to Allen Rosé's personal files held by the foreign language department, Monday, April 1st.

Mark Bickler, chairman of the committee, Bill Bowers, member of the committee and Amy Bledsoe, member of the committee were granted access to the files. Each chairman of the committee were granted access to the files. Each chairman of the committee were granted access to the files. Each chairman of the committee were granted access to the files. "We will be able to get data and information on how the language department is governed," Bickler said. "We will also be able to see how the foreign language department is run, and what goes on in the department."

The students requested access to the files, according to Bickler, in order to "get a better understanding of how things are run in the department."

"We hope to get some answers to questions we have," Bickler added. "We hope to get some answers to questions we have."

PIRG to be initiated at U of I

What is a PIRG? The Illinois Public Interest Research Group will be a student-organized, student-funded, and operated service to citizens and community groups. The purpose of the Illinois-PIRG is to offer the citizens of the state a reliable, effective, and effective means through which to deal with issues affecting the local community and state and national affairs. The Illinois-PIRG will be sponsored by Ralph Nader who believes both the need and ability, and resources available to students.

Operated for 18 years, the first PIRGs began in Oregon and Minnesota and have been spreading to other states. Some have been recognized as vital and valuable bulwarks against the general disregard for what the student community can do for the community.

The formation of the Illinois-PIRG is a result of two separate, but somewhat similar problems of our time: the need to educate and train students for action before administrative and regulatory agencies and to gain access to the policy process. Our main purpose is to help students gain access to the process of government and in the process to have the action they wish to take so that they can do the best possible job for themselves and others.

Efforts will be limited to those actions that can be taken through a concerted effort of all the campuses and students in the state. Past experience has shown that by the time one campus has taken a lead in support and resources, the Illinois-PIRG would have fallen apart with the support of the majority of campus and administrative officials and would not be worthwhile. The Illinois-PIRG will be organized into four sections: a steering committee, a steering committee of the steering committee, and finally the steering committee of the steering committee.

The local campus organizations will be located on all campuses and will be established as the steering committee of the steering committee in conjunction with the steering committee of the steering committee. The last two will be the steering committee of the steering committee.

Night on the town

Movies: two for one

There exists a strange trend of cinematic similarity that seems to be the double feature currently showing at the Beverly Center. In this case the shows are "Young Women," a historical epic about Charlotte's life from age three to twenty-one, and "Neptune's Daughter," a psychological drama. The trend of chronological order of these movies is not the same as the chronological order of the films themselves.

The second film, "Neptune's Daughter," is a 1947 film about a young girl who becomes a star in the big city after she is found by a movie studio. The films are shown back to back in the same theater. The second film being shown is "Neptune's Daughter," which was made in 1947. The first film being shown is "Young Women," which was made in 1946. Both films are being shown at the Beverly Center on December 11. The show is open to everyone. The audience, in fact, will sound better if it is not the best. The fact that it was recirculated two years after it was made is enough to make it clear that it was not shown in any other theatre. The film is being shown at the Beverly Center on December 11. A proposal was made to the students regarding bond and rent costs that is tied as an incentive for the bond issue. This is necessary because of the increasing land prices and the increase of labor costs and such. The bond issue will in the future ensure that our students will not have to pay a much higher price for any living accommodations.

In order to reduce the cost of the living accommodations, we must construct more housing. We have a limited amount of housing available now, but we plan to expand the housing facilities as soon as possible. This will allow more students to live in comfortable and affordable housing.

In conclusion, I urge you to support this bond issue as it will provide the necessary funds to expand our housing facilities and provide a better living environment for our students.

Sincerely,
