The Vandal will face neighboring state rivals, Washington State University in Pullman tomorrow. Idaho enters the gridiron battle with a 3-4-2 record, while the Cougars claim a 2-7 tally.

Argonaut today

The Argonaut devotes this issue to the candidates running for ASUI election. The politicians give their statements on the various issues they deem important which effect the students of the University of Idaho. The statements begin on page 10.

The editorial pages of the Argonaut are more plentiful today, as students and Moscow citizens speak out on the controversies concerning the Gem of the Mountains, and the ASUI elections. The opinions are burning hot and heavy on pages 4, 5, 6, and 7.

The Idaho Vandals take on the Washington State Cougars in the battle of the Palouse tomorrow at Pullman, Wash. The distance between the U of I and WSU is eight miles, but the score is expected to be much closer. John Anderson has the story on page 8.

Rene LaGrone, vice presidential candidate, had perhaps the most novel solution. She suggested building a "row housing" on "miles of countryside" funded by selling liquor by the drink in the SUB.

The Communications department finally approved accepting Kim's bid because, according to department manager Mike Gallagher, the department did not have the legal proof necessary to reject the low bid. Kim would not comment on why the bid was finally withdrawn.

His attorney, Winfred Moorer, said the photographer had a "legal right" to withdraw from his contract.

Moorer would not comment on why Kim decided not to take the photos. "It is best," Moorer said, "that the reasons stay within purview of what Mr. Kim and his attorney knows."

According to Olsen, the photography contract will now go to Keith Cole, Co., a California developer, who had bid on the Kim's project. With Cole as Gem photographer, pictures will be priced at $1.50 apiece as opposed to $1.45, which would have been charged by Kim, Olsen said.

Olsen, who expressed dissatisfaction in the earlier article with having Kim as the photographer, would not say if he was happy with the way the situation turned out, commenting only that he was happy the contract did not have to be bid again.

Gallagher said he was surprised when Kim withdrew as photographer, saying "we were ready to move ahead" and pointing out that the provisions worked into the contract with Kim to provide for good pictures which would be delivered on time.

Provisions for Gem editors' approval of all pictures and substantial penalties for missing deadlines would have assured good quality and efficient publication of the yearbook, he said.

Five Year Plan

Colleges enact Hartung's ideas

This is the final part of the series by Blaine Bertsch on President Hartung's Five Year Plan.

The recent approval and denial of a doctoral program in clinical psychology necessitates the reorganization of the Psychology Department to place its primary strength in undergraduate education, according to Hartung.

He also said the department suffers from a faculty overload, poor physical plant, lack of a sense of identity, and inadequate ancillary facilities.

Dr. Robert Solso, new department head of psychology, agrees with Hartung.

"We are in bad shape," he said. Solso said he was scheduling a meeting with Hartung for the first week in December in order to present a plan for the psychology department.

"This is not only in response to the five year plan, but also a self-initiated improvement plan for the psychology department," he said.

The plan is quite ambitious and offers some radical changes, according to Solso. The department has been very poorly funded and supported in comparison to other departments in LGS, he said.

According to the report, the entire College of Letters and Science has the greatest need for more and proper physical housing.

Hartung said the School of Communications was in the greatest need. Don Coombs, head of that school, said plans call for occupying the new communications building, the old Ag Ed building, in June of 1973.

Presently, the building is occupied by the alumni of the School of Business and the Art Department while their facilities are being remedied.

Coombs said the middle floor is scheduled to be remedied starting in January, if the President and Department are out by then. Last year, the top floor will be worked over and the following year the basement will be remedied.

Coombs expressed hope that the schedule might move up to allow for a much needed earlier occupancy by his school.

Serious consideration was given to incorporating the divisions of this college within the other colleges of the university, according to Hartung. This was rejected because the minimal financial savings would be far outweighed by the loss of identity with related industry.

Acting Dean John Bond said, "It is pretty well established that Mines will remain a separate college." Hartung said there would be too many problems and negative aspects to incorporating the College of Mining into a regional school unless we were the central base and not just a contributing entity.

Bond said there are already several exchange programs operating with other northeast universities.

An agreement with Oregon State University has mining, geological and metallurgical engineering taught there, while Idaho State University and the Nuclear Engineering along with Food Science, are taught at OSU.

An agreement with the University of Washington, whose last mining student graduated in 1971, allows for the same courses to be taught here as with OSU and the astronautical, aeronautical and ceramic engineering to be taught there.

The enrollment decline has also made a drastic turn around. Last year the college had 365 students, this year 398 are enrolled. Bond said he expected last years enrollment figure to double within three years.

He said credit for much of this improvement upon the doorstep of industry. He said the increase was directly attributable to industries efforts to spread word of the college to potential students.

The college is presently expanding in areas of geophysics, metallurgy, geological engineering and cartography.

A new dean, Dr. Maynard M. Miller from Michigan State University, was scheduled to take over the college yesterday.

Hartung endorsed the goal of the Board of Regents to establish "minimum uniform levels of undergraduate instruction" at all of the institutions of higher education in the state through equity of funding.

By the same logic, he said, special budgetary considerations should be given where the Board has dictated roles that are not comparable among the institutions.

"If the University of Idaho is to be the principal educational research center for the state, then the financial means for discharging this responsibility should be made available," he said.

At present, Hartung stated, this role is only being modestly carried out because research funding is "catch as catch can."

The report states that tenure has been denied to professors because they had failed to do research, be published, or do otherwise advance scholarship in their disciplines. Hartung called this an injustice as the school provided necessary teaching facilities and aids but "provided them little or nothing with which to carry out their research function."

Hartung also called for creation of a vice presidential position to oversee research, thus separating the Dean of the Graduate School and Coordinator of Research which are now held by the same person.

That person is Dr. Ronald Stark who was unavailable for comment.

Editor's note: Late last summer, Hartung said that, following consultation with various deans and other top ranking university officials, the new vice-presidential position will probably not be created. He said there are organizational problems connected with this role.
Support elections

Editor:

Do you maintain any degree of contact with the Argonaut? Last week in your editorial, you discouraged persons from writing you a paper about the upcoming election. This past Tuesday you're now complaining about the lack of activity in the campaign.

You seem to want to dissociate the Argonaut from that mess called student government elections. Grendingly you give a news coverage, but attempt to limit the other less important campaign material. In my mind, the student paper has a role in elections to encourage good government, which may be achieved by helping create some interest in the election.

Your position seems to indicate the desire for more campaign activity, but not allowing the use of the student paper for some of that activity. A position, I think, which is contradictory, and shows an unrealistic attitude on your part. Whether or not this is your position is what you are reflecting in your paper.

I would hope you realize that the Argonaut is the medium most available and widely read on this campus. I think you should attempt to promote better student government by whatever means at your disposal. At least, will you encourage students to vote? I'll do my part, but will the Argonaut do theirs? Mark Beatty

Give the credit

Letter to the Editor:

In recent months, I have been aware of a lot of negative sentiment about the Argonaut. Indeed, I have expressed some this myself. However, because of the efforts of a few reporters for the Arg, I am starting to change my mind.

First and foremost, as everyone should know by now, there is an ASUI election coming up, and the Argonaut has been extremely instrumental in making the issues and candidates known. The Political Reporter, Debbie Nelson, a heretofore unknown member of the staff, has been a great asset to the Argonaut. She has presented the candidates to the voters at a most unbiased and objective manner, simply stating the facts as the candidates saw them.

Absequent ballots are available in the Argonaut offices for those students who are unable to vote during the November election.

Students may either write or phone the ASUI offices to obtain their ballots according to Mark Beatty, chairman of Election Board.

Speaking up for Rudy's

Argonaut Editor:

"It is not written to upset any particular person" is a cowardly opening for a slanderous letter. David Vest threat of a Ruth Garth garage into a crowd essentially saying, "I hope it doesn't hit anyone." Mr. Vest was talking to speak his mind until he smeared his subject with futile slogan again.

Mr. Vest contends his fellow senators and the Gem Staff is picking out of state photographer for their annual. And... the U. of I. Purchasing Department, the entire Missouri business community and a local photographer CONSPICID against this choice to "Rip Off" the student body. Bill (Argonaut staff writer) wrote an article strongly disfavor this contention (co-incidentally on the same day). Am I a businessman? I along with my peers have been called "Rip Off" by the likes of Mr. Vest. Being called a rip-off because you sell things out of line with your competition's and determines the University Purchasing Department is a mere fluke.

I contest the crooks and the conspiracy.

Fist... the crooks... Missouri merchants support the University with direct cash contributions... the largest contributing bodies to the Athletic Programs; sponsor scholarship programs for the University; send their children to the U. of I; support student publications, projects and charitable drives; go to Bohon and Veep contender Rene LaGrone who has arbitrarily offered her undying support to Bohon, who probably would be happier with none.

Mimicry is the highest form of compliment, but the act of plagiarism or taking the work of another is not only despicable, but is surely a crime. I hope this letter convinces you of the need to try and keep students at the University, and I do my part when the Argonaut does theirs. Mark Beatty

Some strange bedfellows

Be it known to all that in any political season certain coalitions arise. Low-key those being paid are to appear to be, this election year is no exception. Unlike its verbally but nonetheless there is a strong link between ASUI incumbent president candidate Kwan, Russel and student president candidate Bohon. Kwan's emphasis on political circles as the ultimate in politically efficacious associations.

Having worked together on many ASUI committees and off-campus professional policies are inversely similar. As a careful student of campaign techniques taught by his politically seasoned supporters, Kwan is smoothly dropping Wampack's name in connection with his plans and ideas if elected. Let there be no doubt that these two would fall in line if both were voted into office.

Of lesser importance but greater sadness is the hard core political movement who heretofore have seen Bohon and Veep contender Rene LaGrone who has arbitrarily offered her undying support to Bohon, who probably would be happier with none.

Mimicry is the highest form of compliment, but the act of plagiarism or taking the work of another is not only despicable, but is surely a crime. I hope this letter convinces you of the need to try and keep students at the University, and I do my part when the Argonaut does theirs. Mark Beatty

Editor's note: The California studio's bid was the lowest for second bidding. The third bid was Rudy's getting the lowest bid and consequently the contract. There were only four bids, and the final one was accepted; however, Rudy's chose not to accept the contract.

During the bidding it was the U. of I. Contracting office who refused to honor the second bid, not the GM editors.
Furor expressed over GEM issue

Letter to the Editor:

The individuals responsible for the recent derogatory comments and insinuations directed at Rudy's Photographic Studio and at Mr. Al Kim, have been acting in an extremely biased and irresponsible manner, painting a picture of a few individuals.

I have personally worked with Al Kim and have been very satisfied with his handling of customers. I have found him to be extremely conscientious about the images he produces for the community.

One individual that I talked to stated that the articles probably would not affect Rudy's business since the Asuargut was never taken seriously anyway. I tend to disagree, because a lot of our former customers read the Asuargut and would most likely be discouraged from purchasing a portfolio from Rudy's. The Asuargut's quality photography was never directly stated in the paper, but was couched in such a way as to make it appear that quality was questionable.

It's a shame that the reputation and integrity that Al Kim has built upon is being jeopardized by libelous statements directed by a few individuals.

Had there truly been a question as to the quality of Rudy's work, it would have been presented to the University of Idaho photographic department and a contract would not have been awarded to Al Kim. Since this was not the case, those interested in increasing the quality of the department got together with those determined to have the last word and the written attack on Al Kim was conducted by individuals who don't care what the truth was of little importance.

As a result of the attitude expressed in the Asuargut, Al Kim has decided to withdraw his contract bid. The date deadlines dictated by the Gem staff would make it impossible for him to get the cooperation that would be an absolute must to satisfactorily complete the terms of the contract. The cooperation that the Gem staff would make it impossible for him to get the cooperation that would be an absolute must to satisfactorily complete the terms of the contract.

I personally believe that a lawsuit should be brought against the Asuargut for the libelous accusations made directly about the quality of Rudy's work and Al's personal integrity. Perhaps such a lawsuit would serve as a reminder that responsibility is an integral component of the freedom of expression. It's obviously futile for it to do Al Kim any good, but it might bring about controls that would stop other irresponsible acts such as those that would allow him to be made a man's livelihood by printing false accusations, in situations in which I don't think for whatever the personal reasons.

Not only is Al Kim hurt unjustly by the articles, but the student who has his/her picture taken for the Gem will be seriously compromised.

These actions may seem extreme, but they are warranted by the injustice that has been perpetrated against Al Kim and the student body as a whole.

1. Demand that Marshall Hall resign as editor of the Asuargut.
2. Demand that Warren Olson resign from the Gem Staff.

The above actions, the students of the University of Idaho take the following action in their own best interest.

To the Editor:

On October 30, the Friends Unlimited of Latah County invaded the halls of Theta Chi Fraternity for a rite of hazing known as the Halloween Party. The event started out with a dinner which was followed by games and skits with various prizes being presented. There were no traditional gags such as apples, pins in the hand, or any other. The Friends Unlimited Program is designed so that boys and girls can have fun and get to know each other and help out when problems arise while growing up. The Program serves ages 4-18, and extends throughout the Latah County area.

On behalf of the members of Theta Chi Fraternity, I would like to take this opportunity to "THANK" the Latah County Friends Unlimited for all their hard work and contributions to the Friends Unlimited Halloween Dinner. There is no doubt that Raffeto's, Bryne's Moscow Meats, C.L. Locker Co., Modern Truck, Tri-State Distributors Inc., Warehouse Foods Inc., Clydes 16 A, and Safety, our future, and this great event.

As a result of all this generosity we were able to host the Halloween Party which was well attended by the participants in the program, many who are University students.

The following students of the University of Idaho have been involved in the following actions in their own best interest:

- Budding interest in education.
- Desire to continue the tradition of cooperation.
- Commitment to the university and the community.
- Recognition of the importance of education.
- Appreciation for the support of the university administration, and the Idaho legislature for overcoming these problems.

Help appreciated by friends

The right to an unrestricted education is an inalienable right, and because of various barriers, architectural and otherwise, the handicapped student is denied this right at the University of Idaho. We, the undersigned candidates in the upcoming ASU election November 19 pledge our support to the efforts of any student organization working to overcome these problems, and ask for the support of the University administration, and the Idaho legislature to overcome these problems.

To the Editor:
I'm not sure what to say, but I think it is high time I said something. The whole proposal is long and drawn out, and the whole question of process, emotions, and decisions have definitely gotten way out of hand.
I have tried to stay as neutral as possible throughout this whole process, as my sister works at Mr. Kim's Studio. I will try to account the different notes and opinions, but I do not wish to be identified. The presentation was handled by the committee, and I was not present.

Mr. Kim found out that he had been sent to Moscow. His argument was that he had been sent to the photographers who had bid on the photographs in the past. After receiving only one bid, it was decided to reject the bids on the grounds that we cannot be compared to the photographers who had bid in the past years. After receiving only one bid, it was decided to reject the bids on the grounds that we did not feel that we had anything to compare it to as far as prices were concerned.

When we received the second set of bids, Bacht's Studio from Boise, Keith Cole's Studio from California, and the Point of San Juan were from Moscow. The arguments were that the photographers who had bid on the photographs in the past were the ones who had bid on the photograph. After comparing the photo sitting prices of all the studios, it was decided that the purchasing agent should be the lowest bidder, with all the others being eliminated.

Upon finding out who had received the bid, Mr. Kim asked to meet with Warren, Dean, and myself without a witness. We agreed, but I don't think a lot was accomplished. Mr. Kim was upset about not receiving the bid and wanted us to reconsider. The meeting ended with us agreeing that we would look over the bids again, but Mr. Kim and Warren in that short time had developed a large personality conflict. A list of pros and cons for Rudy's and Keith Cole was compiled and it was a consensus not to change our decision to have Keith Cole do the Gem pictures.

When Mr. Kim found out that we had found out, he called Warren and I, and at the end of my phone conversation he mentioned the possibility of me taking legal action. Shortly thereafter, a meeting with the purchasing agent was set up and Warren and I attended it. The purchasing agent pointed out to us that some of Keith Cole's reorders were prices higher than Rudy's, so in his opinion, Keith Cole was not the lowest bidder.

We felt that the only price we as a yearbook staff were concerned with was the sitting fee price, as long as the reordering price was reasonable and the students didn't get taken. Since the purchasing agent was comparing one thing and we were comparing another, an agreement as to who really was the lowest bidder cannot be reached. Consequently, the purchasing agent advised us that the best thing to do to avoid any legal action was to reject all the bids, rewrite the bid specifications and rebid. We took his advice and started working on new bid specifications.

The new bids specifications were a complete rewrite of the old bids. Rudy's bid was the low bid, with Keith Cole's bid being 5 cents over Rudy's for a black and white photo sitting. The big difference came when comparing a color photo sitting there was a $1.45 difference between Keith Cole's color sitting and Rudy's color sitting, Rudy's being the highest. We felt it would defeat the whole idea of our new free black and white photo sitting policy if a person was willing to pay such a high sitting fee.

The Senate was also concerned as to whether they were the ones who gave us the money. Also, during the last two bidding sessions, several complaints from living groups were received concerning Rudy's past work. This caused us some concern and was a reason for deciding to stick with Keith Cole.

In another meeting with the purchasing agent, which I did not attend, Warren, Dean, and myself were told that Rudy's bid had to be accepted because based on the black and white sitting fee that was included in the bid specifications, Rudy's was the low bidder and by law we were obligated to take the low bid. We did and Rudy's was awarded the Gem photography contract.

A sitting was held to set up advertising and picture schedules shortly thereafter. We gave him ideas on how to best reach the entire student body, students, did the deadline schedule, and found out how we can work with Rudy's. It was determined that Rudy's was the photographer we wanted, is relatively reasonable in price, and we were going to help him in any way we could.

Unfortunately, several senators became very upset, one of whom wrote a letter to the editor, and the Argonaut decided to get in the act with a story. The result was a mess, too complicated to describe at this time. As a result of the letter and article, Mr. Kim turned down the Gem photography contract.

I'm sorry he turned down the contract, but I can not say I blame him for doing it.

If we had all to do again I do not know what we would do differently, but it does not really matter anyway. We have a yearbook to put out and a time or two past our deadline.

To the Editor:
If the reader will kindly read the accompanying letter to the editor by Mr. Deskievitz, this letter will mean more to you. Thank you. Mr. Deskievitz for informing me that this letter would be in the Arg, this allows me to respond in the same issue...I thought of going over the letter point by point, but I couldn't find any points. Therefore, I will just say a few words on my behalf.

First of all, I hope the Moscow merchants realize that we are not trying to lambaste the entire city. I was merely pointing out that if a better product is available elsewhere, the students should be free to go out of town to get it. I believe the people of Moscow do all in their power to cater to student needs.

I was accused of calling several people crooks and conspirators. I made no mention of such things. What I did say was that a certain amount was put on both the Gem staff and the purchasing office to ensure. If anyone reacted, I thought he was not low bidder on the second bid.

You are right that the Gem staff picked an out of state photographer to do our pictures, and that we reacted childish when we did not get our choice. What you did not say was that we did get our choice. If anyone reacted, it was Rudy's.

Since Mr. Kim was in Moscow, we have been able to go up to the purchasing office and look at the last bids before submitting his third bid. This practice may be legal, but it certainly is not fair to out of state bidders.

As a senator, my first duty is to the students. When I see a situation that may not be to the best benefit of the students, I have a duty to speak out. The ASU has the responsibility to provide the best yearbook possible, and it follows that we should also have the authority to do as we see fit. When our wishes are ignored by the purchasing office, (as I think they were), we become nothing more than a rubber stamp for purchasing. It is the students money that is being spent, and the senate is responsible to make sure that it is spent to the best possible advantage. It would be hard to dispute the fact that the Cole of California has done a great many more yearbooks than the local photographer, as well as having a much larger staff. I conclude by saying that if Rudy's believed that we were wrong, he had every chance to prove it. He was offered the bid, and he has turned it down.

As it stands now, Cole of California (Keith Cole) will be the "#1" Gem photographer. I wish both he and Rudy's the best of luck in their future endeavors.

P.S. At the time I composed this letter, I had not yet received a notice that I am supposed to retract it. My statement. I stated my opinion as I saw it and although I have not had time to consider all of the possible implications, I do not think the idea of retraction of a statement of opinion, I'm sure the U of I will hear more on this.

Lifesaver

Monuments should be reserved to the frontier doctor. He battled every ailment of mankind, many of which he could do not name as he treated the deadly injuries caused by the frontier environment. He performed miracles and agonized at his inability to do more. His mind was his own and he fought the causes of his illness to prevent a recurrence. He is always honored for his contributions.

Surely that work-worn doctor would be grateful for the medical centers. Life expectancy has increased by decades and the "miracles" of Lifesaving have become everyday routine.

Growth and development made it possible for many for hospitals, laboratories, and medical schools, energy to reach the communities and build healthy economies.

It is true that the energy shortages are now threatening the economy of our nation and, indeed, the world. As a citizen, we have a duty to recognize our responsibility to supply. Power plants have been designed and proposed, but they are either delayed or delayed bystring opposed.

As in matters of public health, the well-being of the people is at stake. The understanding and support of the public is urgently needed now to sustain energy growth.

Vote Warnick before anyone else

Editor,

Over the years, there has been a tendency for candidates to "manufacture" letters of endorsement from other individuals, amounting to the vituperation and qualifications of the candidate in question. There has also been a tendency by past candidates to likewise "manufacture" letters condemning a particular candidate in the opposition camp for his or her shortcomings.

However, this letter is none of the above. It is simply an unsolicited letter to the editor stating my personal preference for the office of ASUI President.

Over the past five years that I have been connected with the University of Idaho, I've seen a great number of ASUI politicians come and go. Within this span, students have mocked, criticized, and chastized various ASUI administrations for ineffective or petty leadership. In a great number of instances these criticisms have been more justified.

The fruit of this disillusionment has borne a number of interesting returns. Quite often the representatives of a candidate persuading ASUI office simply as a joke, or more disturbingly, to build up an overly inflated ego.

The election of these individuals only serves to further deter the effectiveness of the ASUI in the eyes of the University administration, Board of Regents and public in general.

Therefore, the real issue of this election is not the promises that a candidate has made but rather, what do we as a student body expect from our student government? It is my hope that we as a student body will select an individual among the presidential candidates who will serve with knowledge and candor rather than hide behind misguided conceptions.

In my opinion, only one presidential candidate can represent the student body without our wincing at his every remark before the public. This individual is David Warnick.

For those of you who are not newcomers to the University, you may see this as an abrupt change of affairs. Last spring, I opposed Mr. Warnick in the previous ASUI election. I do not agree with a number of Warnick's policies or statements, but how the fact remains that he is the most concerned, informed and dedicated candidate running for the office this time around. I believe that common sense, for the welfare of this university and its student body overrides ideological differences and personality conflicts.

We have the chance in this election to choose between the possibilities of effective student government or just another campus joke. The choice is ours and I for one choose Dave Warnick.

D.G. Yake

Anyone else but Warnick

Editor,

With the annual advent of ASUI political prestidigitation falling upon us once again, some comment seems in order by one who, once upon a time, thought that David's re-election might be a good thing for this student-body. Even though Mr. Warnick had the intestinal fortitude to give the Regents a certain amount of flak, his failure to consult with the people (that's you and me, folks) which constitute his powerhouse of supporters is not an option.

David's position but that of the students as well. There are a myriad of other cases which point out certain other mistakes by our president....

It is my hope that we as a student body will select an individual among the presidential candidates who will serve with knowledge and candor rather than hide behind misguided conceptions.

In my opinion, only one presidential candidate can represent the student body without our wincing at his every remark before the public. This individual is David Warnick.

Poster pestering

Editor,

I agree. Campaigning for this year's ASUI Election has been minimal. I hope to see more activity.

However, some persons have made an effort to put up posters up as you have requested, getting their name to the public. As usual, some persons have been tearing down such posters, making the candidates efforts useless. This is not the first time such actions have occurred, but in this particular election, it is even more detrimental since no other posters are up.

If a candidate has exerted the time and energy to put up posters, don't penalize him by ripping down the posters. Penalize those persons who are running and haven't bothered to campaign and work for election, but penalize them on Election Day.

Vandals prepare for annual battle

The 74th annual reenactment of the Battle of the Palouse takes place this Saturday, between Idaho and WSU, at Pullman, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

Saturday's clash has a little more emphasis and meaning than usual due to the fact of the ever-present Yarno brothers. The Vandal starting center, John Yarno will be squaring off against his Cougar noseguard brother, George. They hail from Spokane.

The last time two brothers played against each other in this annual event was in 1947. Bill Williams started at quarterback for the Vandals and Jerry Williams opened up at halfback for the Cougars. The Cougars shut the Vandals out that year 7-0.

In the previous 73 meetings, the Cougars had what you might say, "a slight edge" in wins. WSU has won 56 games to Idaho's 14, and there have been 3 ties. The Cougars 56 victories include 28 shutouts. The bleakest years for the Vandals were 1932-1947. In the 13 games played during that period, the Vandals garnered only 19 points.

The Vandals' best years were in the early 1900's, when winningest Vandal coach ever, J.G. Griffith, was able to post a 6-3-1 record in his 10 outings against the Cougars.

The Vandals haven't had a victory over the Cougars since 1965, but have been "O" so close. In last year's game, Idaho blew out to a 10-0 lead in the first quarter, only to have Washington State outscore them in the second quarter. The second half was scoreless and the game ended with a 17-10 Cougar victory.

The young talented Vandals, somewhat inconsistent this year, have a present record of 3-4-2, with two losses and one tie to three teams that are still undefeated.

On the other hand, Washington State is 2-7 on the year, having lost the last seven games in a row, with injuries playing a key role in those losses.

The Vandals are healthy and ready this year to meet the Cougars head on and want to bring home a long awaited Idaho triumph–Fight Fierce Vandals.

Wouldn't it be a thing of beauty to yell "Poor Cougars,"

Controversial ERA debated

by Michelle Hackney of the Argonaut staff

"The Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) is the only realistic way to insure equal treatment of the sexes before the law."

"Women, who want the ERA enforced and passed, only need it for a psychological uplift."

These were among statements made in the Tuesday Panorama Forum debate of the Equal Rights Amendment between Norma Dobler, Idaho State Representative and Oklahoma Senator Mary Helm on Tuesday.

"I want to say right from the start that I am opposed to ERA," said Helm, who believes that the amendment would not help in the field of working, because it is already covered under the 1964 Civil Rights Act and the Equal Opportunity Employment Act.

After welcoming the Oklahoma Senator to Idaho, Dobler said, "As a supporter of the ERA, it is rather comforting to me to know that the John Birch Society had to go all the way to Oklahoma to find a lady legislator who was willing to speak their piece."

Dobler added that the United States Senate Judiciary Committee said in their Report on the ERA, "Sex discrimination is a fact of life in the United States, a socially acceptable prejudice."

As far back as 1765 equal rights was supposed to be enforced. The law stated that the husband and wife are one in person. But, in 1966 Supreme Court Justice Black brought out that in reality the husband and wife are one in law, but that one is the husband, according to the Idaho Representative.

Dobler said that in unwritten law of double standards in sexual morality a husband may kill his wife's lover, but the wife is not justified in killing her husband's mistress, while in the written laws a prostitute is punished and her customer goes free.

Helm repeatedly stressed that ERA should be rescinded because of the "harm it could do. But Dobler pointed out that rescinding is not possible once ratification has been granted by the state.

"The ERA will not affect a personal relationship between a man and his wife, but it will affect governmental action to equal right under the law," said Dobler.

Some people against the ERA have used "scare" tactics, by saying that a woman would lose the right for her husband's support and be torn from her children and taken out and forced to go to work. Yet, the ERA doesn't force anyone to do this, although it is generally accepted that the man goes and works for a living, added the Idaho Representative.

Helm said, "I have worked all my life in men's fields, and I have never been discriminated against. I have never expected it nor looked for it."

The senator feels she has always been accepted on her own merit. "If the ERA is ratified nation wide, you couldn't go to your state legislatures and tell them what you want because they have no control, all they are doing is passing laws that come down from Washington in exchange for federal money," said Helm.

Dobler summed up her views saying, "Equality, according to the dictionary definition, means equal in value. It means having the same capability, and that doesn't mean sameness."

The ERA will only deal with equality under the law, according to Dobler. It will be a constitutional guarantee against second class citizenship for either sex for women, who are most often discriminated against both for men and women.

Candidates make their vows for top job

David Warnick

The choice in next week's ASUI election is between Warnick and David Hoven, both of whom have been in office for a year. I think this is the opportunity to work with the administration and Board of Regents, I have tried to improve conditions and make things better. I believe that the ASUI is being run efficiently and effectively, and I would like to continue this work.

Warnick also believes in cooperation with other ASUI leaders and in working with the administration and Board of Regents. He has been a member of the ASUI leadership team for several years and has been instrumental in improving conditions on campus.

The ASUI has done something to improve academic quality during the last eight months...
hoPEFUL UNIONS WITH THE ASUI

Mike Stamper

The ASUI has responsibilities to undergraduate education, graduate education and professional education. The ASUI must be a pressure group for the improvement of education in all three areas.

Off-campus students must be served by ASUI. Through an information drive these students should be informed of the services and facilities available.

The student government should take an active role to prevent any measures which limit students' freedom of choice. Students should have the right to decide if they wish to drink alcoholic beverages in their own homes and there should be no mandatory health insurance.

The present ASUI government is too willing to speak without the proper background information. This type of action is one that has caused the reduction in ASUI credibility. The ASUI is too willing to jump on the bandwagon in instances such as Kibbie's donation for the roofing of the stadium and the use of revenues taken in at football games.

It's time the ASUI President deals with students on a personal level. The ASUI government, especially the president, should be available to the students and responsive to student input. Now is the time to change the attitude in the ASUI and get back to the business of students. It's time to rebuild the credibility of the ASUI. The students need more than just a president interested in finishing projects but a president interested in the students and their needs.

ASUI. He respects the U of I and what it stands for. He respects the needs of every individual student who walks its campus. He wants to keep the progressive spirit moving. He wants to improve or change programs so they will provide more benefits to the student going to school here.

Mike Stamper wants to be ASUI President. He wants to work to get the job done and done right. He wants to serve the whole ASUI and he wants to serve each and every individual member of the ASUI. He wants to handle the big ones and he was going to take care of the equally important little ones.

Vote for him, he'll do it for everyone.
Bohon, Lagrone will run together

Nile Bohon and Renee LaGrone

We recently decided to merge our no plank platforms and to name it the Creative Apathy Ticket. This story was extremely difficult to compose because we do not have parallel ideals, and it is of considerable doubt that we even have the same goals. The following excerpts from our conversation will perhaps make it clearer.

Nile asked Rene why she chose to be his running mate.

"After being informed that Nile was the only man for me, we decided to merge our two--his absurdity and my ob sensity, and conceive the Creative Apathy Ticket, our baby," Rene said.

"Baby may not be the right word, but we'll definitely be making something," Nile said.

And we'd been asked by the newspaper to take stands on various issues that are confronting the campus, but having no plank platform isn't much of a basis to start from.

"How can you take a stand on something when you are so low that your feet hang over the line in the gutter?" Rene said.

"Perhaps it is like a little man sitting in the mud contemplating a post," Nile said.

And we decided that if you're down there at the bottom you at least know where you stand.

This set the stage for a brief discussion on law and justice, which we decided should be distinct from the university and that students should be allowed to deviate from the norm in any form that they feel. We then defined the Creative Apathy Ticket as follows: It is goodness with a circular approach--that is, even when you're bad you know you're good--and of course it has a basis without planks.

It is representative of the people, you say it--we'll play it.

It doesn't support anything, it stands alone. Its perspective that is in no way directive.

A point of focus for the silent majority because it doesn't say anything either.

It stands for law and justice because it believes it to be distinct from itself. It is a ban ner proclaiming truth because it doesn't attempt to believe.

It's principles for their own sake, its purpose is self defined, it's a car in every pot and two chickens in every garage.

And off we go into student politics.

We stand behind the mountain, and we hang onto the star, no matter what color they be. Any good drunk is good for anybody and think of all the friends you've made.

And how often we forget the ever turning nuclear threat.

We feel the university's campus security should refrain from conducting nuclear experiments in the complex cafeteria. And especially at football training tables. Realize that people like them shouldn't be allowed to have children but what a sneaky way to do it.

And if they ever decide to conduct radio-active experiments at the meat lab or on the Palouse Alligator we suggest they should not sell the meat to the various living groups and should instead allocate the meat to the Palouse Empire Mall grocery store.

In an unrelated issue, we'd like to see a daycare center for the dogs set up on the U of I campus with a specialized consultant, i.e. Greyhound, to take care of all the running needs.

We have recently been asked if we would support aid packages for the wildlife program in Idaho.

We are currently involved in a saving of the local alligator drive, as was earlier implied, but perhaps they were referring to having a drunk in every room and a derelict in every hall. If that's what the people want, then we'll provide the atmosphere.

They then suggested that by atmosphere, did we mean we are continuing our support of row housing with paper thin walls and liquor by the drink to be sold in the SUB to pay for it.

We had earlier decided that paper thin walls were not necessarily desirable in the housing, but said that what we meant by atmosphere. But in clarification of what we meant by providing the atmosphere we then stated that we would Incorporation would involve signing a corporate charter before a notary public and signing a contract with the Board of Regents, delineating the powers and responsi bilities the board can give the ASUI.

The ASUI would become a legal entity, with its powers stated in writing, if it were incorporated. Most candidates have not taken a stand on this issue. Its principal proponent is incumbent presidential cand idate David Weichert.

ASUI AND ADMINISTRATION

The relationship between student government and "the guys on the hill" has been an issue at U of I for a long time. The problem areas that come into administration-ASUI relations include the alcohol policy, Blue Mountain, fee use, curriculum, and other areas too numerous to list.

Most candidates say more cooperation and communication is needed in such relations, with an emphasis on "getting things done".

However, other candidates note that conflict is a sign of progress and proves that things are being done. In this issue, as with several others in this year's campaign, the peacemakers and their more vocal counterparts have the similar goals in mind, but would use different methods to accomplish them.
YAMAHA AUDIO COMPONENTS . . .

FOR THOSE WHO DEMAND PERFORMANCE.

YAMAHA ELECTRONICS — "From end to end, the best electronics line we've ever tested!"

The most astonishing thing about the entire lineup of Yamaha receivers, amplifiers and tuners is what you don't hear! With receiver or amplifier in 'phonos' mode, and with a turntable hooked up but not playing, turn the volume control all the way up. Listen! Then turn bass and treble all the way up. Listen some more! At this point most electronics, even some very highly rated brands, would be sizzling, humming and emitting enough random noises to drive you from the room. But not the Yamaha— and that's true from the lowest priced amplifier to the highest priced receiver!

Not only is every piece of Yamaha electronics astonishingly quiet when it's supposed to be; it is also guaranteed to reproduce the entire audio spectrum, from 20 Hz to 20 KHz, at its rated power with less than 0.08% inter-modulation distortion! This assures you of pleasing sound to begin with, and smooth, fatigue-free enjoyment during even your most extended listening sessions. And Yamaha's warranty (5 years parts, 3 years labor) guarantees that your Yamaha will keep on performing!

THERE ARE OTHER REASONS TO RHAPSODIZE ABOUT YAMAHA! HERE ARE TWO:

The YAMAHA NS-1000 M Monitor: Not an "improved" speaker!

Rather than starting with an existing speaker, Yamaha began with a speaker idea. A speaker system with the lowest distortion and rejection, and the most possible innovators 'rethought' the 'corned' of bass modifying one. Yamaha has reinvented the original speaker line, and has improved every aspect of speaker design. The result of this remarkable achievement is the new, top of the line Yamaha NS-1000 habitant-encapsulating dome, which is mounted on a pair of beryllium, the lightest and most rigid metal known. Its high performance, smooth, distortionless response is so detailed, so natural that you'll swear you're looking up at a speaker in a word of what a Yamaha has been capable of.

The YAMAHA YP-701 Turntable: Smooth, silent, professional

The 701 offers professional-level performance at a competitive price. Its ultra-smooth belt drive and Synchronous Motor provide exacting speed and low-distortion performance. Its features include: • 7.0mm platter and turntable sub-assembly "floats" in suspended isolation from rest of unit. • Auto lift and return of arm at end of play. • Silicone-capped cueing. Wow and flutter below 0.05%. and a signal-to-noise ratio of 64, the Yamaha YP-701 is at home in the finest music systems.

NOW—A HIGH PERFORMANCE SYSTEM AT A $116 SAVINGS!

Perhaps you thought ultimate performance was beyond you means. Then you haven't heard our YAMAHA, JBL, B-1C, GRADO system! The best-selling JBL Decade L-26 speakers, replete in natural oak and a choice of grille fabrics, are driven to distraction by the Yamaha CR-400 receiver. Besides the qualities lauded above, this receiver has a sensitive AM/FM section that will bring in your radio stations cleanly and without overlapping noise from neighboring stations. The B-1C programmable turntable (Model 960), with base, cover and Grado F-1 cartridge complete the ensemble.

Within the next twelve months, very significant decisions will be made concerning the course the university's administration will take in years to come. I am here to make certain the ASUI will be well-represented when that time comes. The ASUI, speaking as a voice for some 7,000 students, should have a very explicit position on these matters and must make certain these views are heard as well as heeded.

The issues now being debated should be of little concern to the voter. Rather than the ASUI beating its head against the wall on some of the old concerns in hope of a few loose bricks falling out, the ASUI should be actively trying to shape the events of the future. To be certain, the SEND campaign would have been a very worthy program. Unfortunately, University Relations failed to get the total support of the administration. Even with the support of the ASUI, I doubt we can hope to initiate a successful drive without it being a top priority item of the administration. Certainly we would say the present alcohol policy is realistic. The policy now exists for punishment rather than prevention, a poor reason for any rule to be in effect. Still, the Board of Regents does have an obligation to respect state laws, more specifically those barring alcohol in public buildings and those forbidding 18 year olds to consume. If the student lobby was to succeed in getting the state to lower the drinking age to 18, then I think we would have a very good chance of doing away with restrictions in the student residences. Finally, the Blue Mountain controversy seems pointless. Let's for once let the students decide, and abide by their wishes. I am happy to see we will have the opportunity to make that decision on the ballots next Wednesday.

Rather than dusting off the past, the voters should concern themselves with the events that are in the making. The first of my concerns is that of the quality of academic education at the University of Idaho. In 1964, the U of I was visited by a board responsible for reviewing the institutions of higher education in the North. At that time they criticized many areas, especially communication, business and accounting. Ten years later they came again, only to find little change in these departments, and if any, for the worse. It must be made apparent to both the administration and the Board of Regents that these departements must be upgraded if they are to offer a degree of any value.

The second concern of mine deals with the collective bargaining proposal the faculty will soon be bringing up. There are definite advantages to it but there may come at the expense of the academic programs. Collective bargaining has been initiated in Oregon and has had results I feel are not in the best interests of the students. Before, I am quick to criticize the administration's ideas on this subject.

I see the vice-presidential position as doing a lot of 'grunt' work for the ASUI, the president and somewhat for the senate. I also see the vice president as being able to follow up on special projects. At the moment I have two such projects. One being the Shattuck Arboretum expansion and the other is to turn the office into an Ombudsman.

The "Shattuck Arboretum Expansion" idea was spurred because the field house is being torn down. My idea is to expand the arboretum to include the site of the field house. I would like to see something that would maintain the environmental and aesthetic values of the arboretum. One way to do this would be with an outdoor band shell. Possible funding could come from the University of Idaho Foundation or from a yearly budgeted item on the University president's budget for major construction and remodeling.

Two alternatives for the field house site are feasible. One is parking lots but they would probably be faculty and staff only. The other alternative is tennis courts. I am not against tennis, however, the three proposed tennis courts would just as easily be installed on the roof of the swimming pool. The original architectural designs were drawn with this in mind. Also there is room for nine courts in the ASUI-Kibbie Activity Center. I would also like to see all the present tennis courts improved to include a permanent, lighted, night playing.

My second project would be to set up the vice president's office as an Ombudsman. This means that the vice president could visit his office to find out answers to problems that students may have other than legal or academic. This could result in expanded to include problems with landlords or the city. The office of the vice president has the power to cut through red tape. The vice president should use this power to help students. This is something I would like to see if not elected.

Presently, I am on the Activity Center Board. I feel that as vice president my effectiveness in maintaining student control of the Activity Center through the board would be that much greater. For further background, I have worked in and around the ASUI for the past two years. First with the veterans on the Western Regional Veteran's Conference, which according to Senator James McClure was instrumental in raising the GI Benefits; next on the Issues and Forums committee, Faculty Council reporter for the Argonaut and on Communications Board.

If elected, besides my specific proposals, I would bring to the vice president's office an open mind, an open door policy, aggressiveness and imagination.
Gene Barton

A powerful student voice, solicited by the students, encouraged by the ASUI and truly represented by the Senate could ensure us a role in the decision-making process and a role in deciding our own academic future. First and foremost should be the prevention of administrative decisions being passed over our heads and stroked into our pockets. Representation in faculty-oriented concerns, such as tenure review and approval, and have the right to be represented, and as 8000 strong, we have the power to initiate that right.

Even with a favorable legal decision against the Board of Regents concerning the alcohol policy, the city of Moscow would still stand in the way. As a federal land grant institution, the U of I should not be subjugated to the wills of a community. Any effort to change city ordinance will be paramount in establishing the university's autonomy.

To keep a favorable outcome of the Nov. 19 resolution, we must oppose and stop actions within the city of Moscow and the U of I that are against the reoccurrence of Blue Mountain.

John Burlison

Why do students attend University of Idaho? If it's to get an education, then this campaign has been one of sidetracked issues. Blue Mountain, alcohol policy and use of fieldhouse property have little to do with student education.

The forestry, drama, and music departments have expressed interest in an outdoor amphitheater that would be built on the fieldhouse site. Leon Green favors tennis courts, but there is room for those elsewhere and there is only one place to expand the Arboretum.

John Burlison does. Through his Senate experience and future plans, he can help students gain increased academic responsibility.

Burlison is seeking Senate office because he believes the ASUI and students can improve the quality of University of Idaho education.

Burlison says the ASUI isn't meeting needs of over half of the student body, including students in professional schools, off campus students, named students and "anyone whose voice isn't being heard."

He offers a unique answer to the problem. Under his plan, students in each college (and perhaps each major field) would form student associations. These groups would work to have a voice in curriculum, choice of professors, tenure and goals and objectives of the college. They would work with faculty and administration.

"Every student at the University is mature enough to have a voice in his education," Burlison says. "Students deserve an educational Bill of Rights." If I can't keep up with expanded competition and demands for improvement without a better vehicle to present student views..."

Student boards aren't new to U of I. The Student Bar Association has been functioning for some time, and architecture and speech-communication students are forming unions now. Several major fields, like English, have groups which could easily be organized into student unions.

This program could be expanded so Senate representation would be based on student associations, not voting groups. Thus, on and off campus students would have a voice in their education and government, through representatives involved in their interests.

If you aren't being effectively represented; if you'd like a voice in how your education dollars are spent, vote for Burlison.

I’m interested in running for ASUI Senate, on the platform of student involvement. I see it as every individual’s choice to try to get involved in the ASUI in one way or another. Right now there are numerous committees for a student to get involved in, and I’d like to see a little more student involvement.

I don’t run under the old cliche of "better student representation" that has been used too many times and the facts are that there has been no change either better or worse. I’m in favor of the SEND program, I think that the students need this program--to me this program is a necessity. I don’t stress other issues, such as Blue Mountain or alcohol policies in my campaign, because I find that these are very controversial issues. They will be brought up every semester, every election, and chances are, they will have to be handled differently every time.

A point that should be brought up is that a senator is just another student. He needs to be able to communicate with the students and express their points of view. He by no means can promise that he will improve things around the university, he must be able to compromise to both sides.

I see no room for apathy in the Senate, but rather a working system. Therefore I’m willing to talk to you but more important--I’ll listen.

Gary Kidwell

One of the main problems of the ASUI now is the inaccessibility of the senators. As the constitution is now worded, 20 per cent of the ASUI (or approximately 1200 students) must sign a petition simply to have a recall election. I feel that this tends to separate the Senator from the Student and limit student control. I would propose submitting to the ASUI a change in the constitution which would require 20 per cent of the number of people who voted in the previous election in order to have a recall election.

My interest in the ASUI and my desire to serve is obvious when it is remembered that this is my third attempt for the Senate. I can serve the students, but most importantly, represent them.

Jim Manning

The key word in student government is communication. Without it, there is no sure way to carry out the student’s wishes. With it, the ASUI can truly be a student government. I think the communication between students and their representatives has broken down lately; and with it has gone much of the effectiveness of the ASUI.

Communication is the most essential ingredient of effective student government. That is why as an election issue I think it should take precedence over issues like Blue Mountain and the alcohol policy. If the senate becomes just a group of people expressing their own views, then

Communications go beyond the student representatives relationship. ASUI officers must communicate with each other. The Senate cannot be bogged down with personal disputes and grandstanding. A legislative body can only be unified in purpose to be effective. The only purpose the ASU Senate should have is to satisfy the needs of the students. If every senator concentrated on that, I think personal disputes would be kept to a minimum.

The third level of communication that involves the senate is relationship to the administration and the Board of Regents. This relationship can be kept healthy. The senate should use a way to deal effectively with the Board of Regents and the administration, while trying to keep the best possible relations with them.

I am saying that an ASU senator should do the job as it was meant to be done. If elected, this is what I would concentrate all of my efforts on.

Ralph Myers

In the short space allowed, I will only give some of my gut feelings about the way things are and the way things should be.

Meat ticket system is in a bad way. The University forces the on-campus residents to buy their food from the same place, the University. Sometimes the student's money is not enough and they want to purchase food from other places.

There have been complaints that the kitchen facilities are too small. The system is impractical, and it is impossible to accommodate a large system with the student's actual needs in mind.

There should be a plan to allow students to use the meat ticket system at the SUB or the cafeterias. The bookstore is a ripoff. The student gets no real benefits out of owning a piece of the bookstore.

Complaints I have heard and experienced range from the low trade-in values to poor service, which is a lot worse than our own bookstores. We have to have a bookstore that serves the students.

In working with an alcohol policy, we have to work with the Board of Regents, the city council, the administration, and others trying to make the decision that should be made by the individuals.

Some guidelines will have to be set, perhaps by the groups themselves, or the administration committee that should be made by the individuals.

During the campaign it is hard to tell how a candidate really feels. Does he really think that or is he saying that just to get in office? I urge you to look into the candidates a little further than their initial exposure. My phone number is 852-1527, and I invite anyone who is interested to give me a call.

Mike Limpbaugh

Nothing is less stimulating than to be involved. Sincerely hoping air or his personal political views during election. No one listens and no one cares - no one should.

The Senate isn't a platform for one's views, nor is it the forum for public careers. The Senate's chief task is to maintain relations between the campus and the student government. It is the intersection of the students' views, and somehow it got lost in the crowd.

It's not the easy way - maybe that's why so few have been doing it. If the Senate properly develops a lot of time and effort - asking living groups what they want, this may lead to a solution. The Senate should involve interpreting some bills to students and should have the time to interpret them themselves.

The Senate is an important role in student involvement, and student involvement is what the ASU is all about.

Tarl Oliason

Focusing on issues in the campaign, it is difficult to find a way to bring forward. There are general topics concerning student representation, attitudes of the various senatorial groups and finally, the actual "issues" of the candidates their election, the number of students and living groups complaining about the campus library and the Library's candidates may face in their election. The number of students and living groups complaining about the campus library is high. An important constituency should be aware of the importance of the Library in the student's life. The Library can be recycled back into a fund that is used to provide the University with the Library's services.

The library vending machine issue I think I should be beneficial. Right now, the library looks like a bus station from its lack of personalization. The reasons for my stand are as follows:

I support the health insurance because students that will be required to buy it will be required to buy some other policy, either by their parents or by a policy provided by a different company. I think the current insurance policy should be modified, and for the obvious reason that it is a far country, and students don't want insurance, who are they to tell them not to buy it?

Conversion of the fieldhouse into a recreation center would enhance the campus facilities and bring people back to the fieldhouse. The conversion of the fieldhouse would be a positive move, which would offer the University a new facility.

As for the ASU, it is the best interest of the ASU that student leaders work closely with faculty, administration and Board of Regents. I support the idea of local education for all students.
Senate candidates list goals

Tim Sampson

Tim Sampson, a second semester sophomore architecture student, is a candidate for senate. Since February, I have followed Student Services and the Senate as an Administrative Assistant. I have completed the ASUI Student Survey for all registration and noticed a need for better knowledge in that a Competency Review Board exists for each department.

On the Competency Review Board, a student votes along with a departmental staff vote on the capability of a professor to teach. This student is not selected by his peers.

As an elected lobbyist for the consumers of the University of Idaho services, I plan to increase the student power by voice and awareness. By organizing the campus student body to an effective level that a lobby can come about for better scheduling, curriculum, professors, and equipment.

On the administrative level, the non-voting board for out-state students should be responsible to the student body and the number of dwellings in existence.

The student population increased by 8 percent this fall, but it was apparent from this September's ARGONAUTS that housing had not increased as much. The overflow has subsided now, but students are being taken advantage of.

Concerning more known "issues," alcohol on campus is like "Mom and Apple pie" - I am for legality of alcohol in the dorms and the Dome. I urge Jane Hays "Pressure groups from around the state" to stand up to clarify their positions.

The first Sunday in May, I hope to enjoy Blue Mountain in the Arboretum without the extreme people that give it a bad name. By restricting the advertising to a smaller radius from Moscow, these outside people would not disturb us.

David Vest

There are three types of candidates: 1) He reads about the election in the paper and decides to run for the fun of it; 2) Those who read about it three years ago and are still running-for the fun of it; and 3) Those who are really interested in school politics. I believe that I am one of those.

I was appointed to the senate in September, and since then I have been involved in many projects, ranging from the Committee for Student Rights to Blue Mountain Comeback. I have seen that things can get done if someone has enough interest to continue. And I believe that I have that interest.

A few weeks ago, the ARGONAUT published a list of campaign promises that were found flowing from the mouths of the candidates. I listed three-1.) A plaque for U of I students who died in Vietnam. I went to work on this, and thanks to the aid of AFROTC, it will soon become a reality. 2.) A WATS line for Idaho students. Since that paper came out, I have made considerable progress in getting free in state phone calls for students. Many universities have this across the nation, why can't we? 3) Allocating profits from football back into the University. This current will not be able to do it, but it should be done.

Go back to that ARGONAUT and see how many of the candidates were really serious about what they promised. If they were, not how much good will they do as your senator? If they were, don't you think they deserve your vote?

The state legislature can't amendment to the

The opinion was issued

Antigone to be staged on Wednesday

"Antigone", the first full-length Greek tragedy staged by the U of I Theatre Arts Department, is set for a four-day run at the PAC
Directed by Forest Sears, associate professor of theatre arts, the classic drama is the second production of the 1975-76 season.
Sears characterizes the tragedy as the latest in the series of great political plays of dramatic history.
"This led us to consider the temporary relevance and to the treatment of 'after the fall' and vice versa the re impuls of American life of the past 10 years, he said.
Sears feels that "Antigone"
"is a great classical drama and contemporary overtones will be a substitute enhancement rather than a dominant theme in the production.
"A classic contains certain universal truths that don't change, but also says something new to each generation, because we interpret it in terms of our experience," Sears said.
"Antigone" will be staged in the first run of the theatre or environment in which the audience is aware that antigone is a classic.
"The audience will first be aware of sounds from an original musical score compiled by the production
by Jeffrey Fox,
major from Idaho Falls.
"A class is that the audience will be immersed in images of our own or the Greek period, said Sears.
One of 1 students will be admitted free with their ASUI activity card.
Tickets are available in the U of I Student Union with prices at $2.50 for adults and $1.00 for children under 12.
