Turtles derby held tomorrow

Phi Delta Theta will sponsor its 19th annual Turtle Derby this Sat., April 6, at 1 p.m. in the basement of the American House. Activities will include a pie-eating contest, a soccer game and the annual Derby. Prizes will be awarded for the fastest turtle, the best dressed turtle, the best dressed trainer, and the best team. Mike Hartung, ASUI Secretary, will assist the Phi Delt's in the big money efforts.

The Turtle Derby is held each year as the Phi Delta Theta's Community Service Day, a day set aside by the national organization of all Phi Delta Theta fraternities for service to their communities. This year's Turtle Derby has been sponsored by the Theta Delta Chapter at Idaho State University and has raised over $10,000 for various charities since 1961. Last year, the group raised $500 for the St. Anthony's Children's Hospital in Seattle.

This year's Derby was hosted by the Phi Delta Theta fraternity and is expected to be the largest ever, averaging about 1,200 turtles.

Administration presents priorities

by MIKE MORRIS

The U of I Administration has designated a number of campus priorities and operating plans that may be used to tighten up budgetary measures. These priorities, which are stated in the U of I's budgetary procedures, are "the things we can not choose but must do."

First, we can not make a choice of the courses we will offer the university's "primary mission."

For this reason, the colleges of agriculture, engineering, business, and architecture have been termed "priority programs." These programs are listed as such in the 1976-1977 budget. The first 10 priorities, in order, are:

1. Faculty reductions and research funding
2. Faculty reductions and research funding
3. Faculty reductions and research funding
4. Faculty reductions and research funding
5. Faculty reductions and research funding
6. Faculty reductions and research funding
7. Faculty reductions and research funding
8. Faculty reductions and research funding
9. Faculty reductions and research funding
10. Faculty reductions and research funding

Second, we can not choose the courses we will offer the university's "primary mission."

Robert Clow, academic vice president, has already presented the Faculty Council with a report on how the university's 17ér

Blood drive exceeds quota

The ASUI Red Cross Blood Drive exceeded its quota yesterday and by 10 a.m. today. More than 250 units of blood were delivered to the hospital, a record for the ASUI Red Cross Blood Drive.

The drive, which lasted a total of 321 days, also insisted six new members in the "golden club." Eric Stahl, Dave Wagner, David Conner, Thomas Brown, Gordon Bruce, and David Thomas each gave enough blood to win this drive to obtain a gallon of blood donated to the Red Cross Blood Drive.

Student injured by explosion

A U of I student was injured Tuesday afternoon when a fire extinguisher he was filling exploded. According to U of I Chief Security Officer Bob Rock, a 35-year-old man, who was filling the extinguisher, suffered minor injuries. The student was hospitalized, but his injuries were not serious. When asked how long this bridge could last, a man named Bob said, "I've had this bridge for 20 years, and I've had it repaired four times. I'm not sure if it's going to last."

When asked what his new building looked like, Mr. Brown said, "It's a mess. It's a mess. It's a mess." When asked what the future plans were, Mr. Brown said, "I don't know. I don't know. I don't know." When asked how long this bridge could last, Mr. Brown said, "I've had this bridge for 20 years, and I've had it repaired four times. I'm not sure if it's going to last."

Limber lake timber sold

by HAL HOLLOSTER
Seattle Post-Intelligencer

One of the most controversial and hotly debated issues of the fall of the House of Representatives is the proposal to sell Limber Lake timber. A public meeting will be held on Monday when State Rep. Co. of Elkhorn will appear before a joint committee of the House and Senate to discuss the proposed sale. The meeting will be held at 2 p.m. in the Capitol hearing room.

The proposal would sell 600 acres of the timber for about $30,000. The sale would be made by the state's game and fish department, which manages the land. The money would be used to offset the cost of managing the timber.

The proposal has been opposed by a number of conservation groups, who argue that the sale will destroy a valuable resource. They also point out that the timber is a source of income for local communities.

On the other hand, some lawmakers argue that the sale is necessary to fund other programs and that the timber is not being used effectively.

The meeting will provide an opportunity for the public to express their views on the proposal. The hearing will be open to the public, and members of the public are encouraged to attend.

Fees questions unanswered

by RANDY STAPLES

Students and administrators continue to search for answers on their concerns over fees on campus. A meeting was held on Monday to address the issues, but many questions remain unanswered.

The primary concern is the increasing cost of education. Many students feel that the fees are too high and that the value of their education is not being reflected in the fees.

The fees are intended to cover the cost of running the university, including salaries for administrators and faculty, maintenance of buildings, and other operational costs. However, some students feel that the fees are too high and that the university should be more transparent about how the money is being spent.

The university has been criticized for not providing adequate financial aid to students, and some students feel that the fees are being used to offset the lack of aid.

However, university officials argue that the fees are necessary to maintain the quality of the education offered.

The university is working with students and administrators to address their concerns and to find ways to reduce the cost of education.

Elderly workshop is focus

The problem and organization of the elderly will be the focus of a seminar on Wednesday at the University of Washington. The seminar will be open to the public and will be held from 10 a.m. to noon in the school of public health.

The seminar will feature speakers from around the country who will discuss the challenges and opportunities of caring for an aging population.

The seminar is part of a larger initiative to address the needs of older adults. The university is working with local organizations to provide resources and support to those who care for older adults.

The seminar is free and open to the public. However, participants are encouraged to register in advance to ensure a seat.

For more information, please contact the school of public health at 206-543-3333.

FRANCOIS DE BOURDON
Reflections of a college graduate

I am planning to change my environment. The move to the Profession of Life is not going to be easier than that of Moscow to your Waits. I have hope that the weather will be pleasant, and, if not, I shall take the course of the South of the earth, very cool and humid, and the climate favorable to the development of all sorts of new, very cool and interesting life forms. This is not so much a change of environment as a change of expectations and causes due to appreciate more the new life that these four or five years in beer will do for my development. Moscow's dry summer is a great danger for my growth, as in the last few months I had to work so hard at my thesis; if Moscow were much more humid, I would not be able to work properly, and I believe that I would be forced into the beer.

The sight of Howard Hughes this last December, as an interesting idea. It wasn't so much Howard Hughes's bad manner that I noticed as the fact that I felt that all my money had been spent for nothing; my desire to become a photographer and a great man of photography was not to be realized. I took these three degrees of agreement between marching through New York and being an engineer in the city which is better, and I realize now what was the value of these courses.

The reason for the Senate's cancellation of the course was the students' protest. These problems are hardest not only by the students, but also by the entire public opinion. The crisis now seems to have reached a point when we cannot expect better arrangements for the future. A measure of alteration exists, but it is not enough to meet the needs of another year. We can inaugurate our lives in society and not only continue to study, but also to be, and to be used, in programs say, the general studies program of the College, the Engineering program, or the Tulane House program. We can change these students into something else, like a new order of those special services. Then, the money was used in these areas can be taken back if they are used for other purposes. For the U.S. I and the Argus.

The editorial was interpreted by many people as a direct assault against Mr. Kibbie. The editorial was intended to inform the students that a football team meeting the standards and expectations of the student body was not a promising contribution was discussed. Survival in Moscow Edition note. Those are still hard times in Moscow. The purpose of this column is to offer the reader options on ways to celebrate the holiday season by calling attention to local opportunities to enjoy all forms of food, free services, free entertainment, etc. Charlie Brown has selected for this sub the first four issues of Janus, but no local issues. He gives thanks and thanks again to everyone who provided ideas and materials to you to use this information and to enjoy local locations. The prize is certainly right.

One last thing: we have been following the situation of the student workers at the Moscow university, and we are happy to note that they have lifted the ban on the student activities and have been allowed to engage in their studies once more. The students are grateful for the support of their comrades and are determined to continue their struggle for freedom and justice.

KATHY MARTIN
Control—within or without

As a nation, we seem to be fighting for the inner self, yet the people are being held by a system of control. We are constantly being watched and controlled. The government is trying to control every aspect of our lives. It is time for us to take control.

In the past, people were more independent. They knew how to control their own lives. They were able to think for themselves. Now, the government is trying to control us. It is time for us to take control back.

We need to stop being afraid and start fighting for our rights. We need to be independent and think for ourselves. We need to control our own lives. It is time for us to take control back.

The government is trying to control us. It is time for us to take control back. We need to stop being afraid and start fighting for our rights. We need to be independent and think for ourselves. We need to control our own lives.
Extremists hurl firebombs

Extremist hurling firebombs rampaged through downtown Baton Rouge on Thursday, stealing government offices, setting fires and car bombs, and killing and wounding law enforcement officers. The violence triggered protests across the state and a new round of political and economic turmoil.

Chinese bail appointment

An estimated 100,000 Chinese became anxious, singing revolutionary songs and burning flags, symbols of their struggle to defend their revolution and their communist ideology from the capitalist forces that have been brought to power by the Hasbro administration. The demonstration was held in a small city along the border, with thousands of Chinese joining.

Snipers defy curfew

Snipers fired a curfew Thursday and pre-dawn crackled around a,valiant station where evening curfew began. The curfew has been set in place to ensure safety and security.

Court urged on segregation

The Justice Department urged the Supreme Court on Thursday to order integration in thousands of all-white schools, many of them in the south. The court has already ruled that such integration is necessary to ensure equal educational opportunities for all children.

Ford ponders Humphrey

President Ford would prefer Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey as his opponent in next November's presidential election because Ford believes former Vice President Hubert Humphrey would give him a better chance of victory, according to sources familiar with the situation.

Judge wants blacks to know

A 66-year-old judge closed down four white bars on the town that a black man and his family had been refused service in. The judge, who is a veteran in the field of race relations, recently told a group of black and white lawyers that "we cannot afford to give up on the black man or any other minority group."

Harris out of primary

Former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris withdrew as a contender Thursday in the Democratic presidential primaries. Harris said he decided to withdraw because he would not receive a strong enough showing to be an influential force in the Democratic Convention.

Sheep doing well

The Lake Fish and Game Department says a complacent harem of sheep in Hilo Canyon apparently is doing well. The sheep, which are a cherished part of the state's natural heritage, have been controlled by the department's sheep herds for many years.
The FBI wants you

The FBI is revising the theme of their board posters, which displayed a picture of a chief busting a pipe with the words, "We want you." The FBI is looking for its next generation of agents, clerical workers, and other employees. The FBI is known for its rigorous training and strict regulations, and it is seeking applicants from minority groups, mainly Anglo-Saxon. Applicants must have a college degree in criminology, criminal justice, or a similar field, and they must be over 21 years old. Applicants will be subjected to a rigorous background check, interview, and physical examination. The FBI is seeking individuals with a strong commitment to public service and a desire to make a difference in their communities.

College costs up

New York Times

The average cost of four-year college increased by 5.5% last year, making it more expensive than ever before. This increase is largely due to inflation and rising tuition fees. According to the National Center for Education Statistics, the average cost of tuition and fees for a public four-year college was $25,340 last year, up from $23,940 the previous year. Private four-year colleges saw an even greater increase, with the average cost rising to $38,900 from $36,500.

Adding to the stress of some students is the fact that the cost of college is rising faster than the average wage. The average cost of tuition and fees at public four-year colleges is now more than twice as high as the median household income in the United States.

Warrant won’t work

David Warrick, a student at Harvard, was shot and killed in a shooting at a Harvard Law School event over the weekend. Warrick, a 22-year-old law student, was shot multiple times while attending a party at the law school. According to police, Warrick was shot in the neck and chest and died of his injuries.

Petitions due

Petitions for seven senior positions and three faculty council positions must be submitted by April 1. At this point, only 8% of people have signed petitions for six of the ten positions. The candidates must sign a petition by April 1 to be considered. If the candidates do not receive enough signatures, they will be excluded from the final round of voting.

Students gain experience on "Inverter"

Of a group of students at engineering firms, the most popular experience is the "inverter". An inverter is a device that converts direct current (DC) to alternating current (AC) for residential and commercial purposes. The device is used primarily in the following fields:

- John Lawson, associate professor of electrical engineering, said that it is a popular field due to its present and future market potential.
- Wasem's People, which is currently working on inverter projects, sees the field as a promising area for future development.

NICHE offers workshop

A workshop on electrical engineering will be held on Friday, April 13, at 7:30 p.m. at the University Center. The workshop is open to anyone interested in learning about the field. The workshop will cover the basics of electrical engineering, including circuits, power systems, and electrical machines. It will be taught by Neil Phillips, NICHE director.

Summer forestry research available for undergraduates

Eight undergraduate summer research programs in forestry and related fields will be available to students this summer. The programs are offered by the University of Idaho's School of Forestry and the School of Biological and Agricultural Engineering.

- Participating in any of the programs will be a great opportunity for students to gain valuable experience in the field and to make valuable connections with professionals in the industry.
- Applications for the programs will be accepted until May 15.

More information on the programs can be found on the University of Idaho's website or by contacting Neil Phillips, NICHE director.
Hughes’ death promises investigation

by MICHAEL H. URTZ

HOUSTON AP—Doctors were planning an autopsY in at least some of the remains surrounding Howard Hughes, according to a source who had been granted a request for the autopsy. He said he would observe the remains which was being performed Tuesday.

The doctor said there was no specific cause of death, but that the cause of death would be determined by an autopsy. The doctor said he would be at the hospital Tuesday, but that the hospital would not be able to confirm the identification.

Dr. Joseph Jachnun said Tuesday he had no “compromise” of body, but that it was clear that Hughes was dead. The doctor said he was not sure whether Hughes was dead or not, but that he had observed the remains which was being performed Tuesday.

Hughes was found dead on Tuesday at his home on the outskirts of Houston. The hospital said it would be at the hospital Tuesday, but that the hospital would not be able to confirm the identification.

Many other remains continue to cause the Hughes story, including, who will become his former, a woman, as 2 billion, and exactly who Hughes decided to step out of public view in the 1950s when he was regarded in both a wealthy and famous figure. Greg Basler, Hughes’s stepson, said Tuesday he does not know what Hughes did with the money. Basler has not said whether Hughes was dead or alive since his story broke in 1997. At a news conference, Hughes is said to have been in love with Hughes. Hughes is said to have been in love with Hughes.

In Los Angeles, Basler said Hughes was always secretly interested in medical research and that Hughes was dead. Hughes’s stepson, however, did not live as long as Hughes. But Hughes’s stepson, who died at 89, is believed to be dead.

NEW YORK AP—Food scientists convened Tuesday to sort through and new proposals for sustainable and energy-efficient biological systems and policies.

The world has a chance to lead and lead, said Dr. Robert R. Spitzer of Food Policy, one of the Projekt for Development of the U.S. Drive Committee, speaking at the American Chemical Society’s convention meet.

“We have an unprecedented wealth of thoughtful ideas on food and food policy,” said Spitzer. “This is how we might use this knowledge to develop this significant agenda.”

Spitzer’s project involved education students in technical projects and introduced projects into a neighborhood where they grew vegetables that became part of the students’ diets.

Local horse research continues: Appaloosa champ returns

As a result of the generosity of Dick and Sharron Deardorff of而不is, the late Robert Deardorff, former Pullman Rodeo Director, a new Appaloosa Horse Program has been established at Washington State University, the home of the Appaloosa Horse and the National Appaloosa Horse Show. The program, which has been in operation for several years, is now entering its third year. The program is administered by Dr. John Deardorff, a former Pullman Rodeo Director and a long-time Appaloosa horse enthusiast.

The program, which was established in 1980, is designed to provide a research and educational opportunity for students interested in Appaloosa horses. The program is open to both undergraduate and graduate students, and provides an opportunity to study the genetic, biochemical, and physiological aspects of the Appaloosa horse. The program is funded by a grant from the Appaloosa Horse Foundation, and is administered by Dr. John Deardorff.

The program currently includes four research projects, each of which is focused on a specific aspect of Appaloosa horse research. The projects are:

1. A study of the genetic and biochemical aspects of the Appaloosa horse
2. A study of the physiological aspects of the Appaloosa horse
3. A study of the economic aspects of the Appaloosa horse
4. A study of the cultural aspects of the Appaloosa horse

The program is designed to provide a unique opportunity for students to gain valuable experience in research and to contribute to the understanding of the Appaloosa horse. The program is open to both undergraduate and graduate students, and provides a unique opportunity to study the Appaloosa horse in a research setting.

For more information about the Appaloosa Horse Program, please contact Dr. John Deardorff at 509-335-5555.
Vandals upset in final innings

The weather was bad and so was Idaho's luck, as the Vandals dropped two games to Gonzaga. The Big game was away, and the game was played in 1 1/2 hours. The game was won for the silver and gold, as Idaho dropped the game 13-7 and suffered the loss of third baseman John Kikuchi. Kikuchi started extremely strong in the first inning. Roger Vandenberg, senior at the business with a base hit, and the Vandals won on seven errors. The starting pitcher for Gonzaga was Lance Woodworth, who was unhurt on the mound by Dan Peddock. The winning pitcher for Idaho was Mike Humphries, who was relieved in the ninth. Jack Wicks was the man who got the hit.

A missed pick by the catcher, and a hit and run play, gave Gonzaga two runs in the third and made it 2-0. Idaho got three hits and two runs in the inning. Idaho got three runs in the last inning. Idaho scored three runs in the third and scored two runs in the last. But the win was the string that spelled disaster for the Vandals as they saw their season end. The game was scored 13-7 and bunt, and the final score was 13-7 in their favor.

It was the second of the third that Idaho scored the last of the hits. John Kikuchi, who was hit in the eye while attempting to hit. He will not return for the remainder of the season, a season in which he will not return. The Vandals will have none more slate as a victory when they make it all six. The Vandals tied an Idaho record.

Boise back honored

John Smith, Boise State University running back, became the first player from the Big Sky Conference selected in the National Football League draft Thursday. Smith, a 248-pounder, was picked in the third round by the Dallas Cowboys. He was the team's third pick in the third round.

Our newest Vandal coach

Maggie Tosh head football coach, William J. Sprinkle has been named the new defensive backfield coach. He is a graduate of the University of Idaho, according to Dr. Dean Brown, director of athletics. The 7-year-old graduate of the University of Washington coached Arizona State and the Los Angeles Rams, and he was on the coaching staff of the University of Idaho.

The former Husky, three year senior, will assume his new duties on Friday evening, April 9, which marks the end of the final week of spring drills in Idaho.

We are very happy to tell this to our program, Football is his life, and we are pleased that this player is going to stay with the University of Idaho.

Sprinkle and his wife, Center, have 1-month-old daughter Dana. His family will join him later this year.

Idaho team goes to Montana

Two months of competition at the U of I Track and Field meet in Moscow.

The silver and gold will go to Missoula, Mont., on Monday, April 10, to take part in the University of Montana's Invitational. This meet is being held in conjunction with the Montana '76 Invitational.

Six events are entered in the men's invitational which will begin with high school field events at 11:30 a.m. (MST). Competing for collegiate teams and individual athletes will be Spokane (Whitman College Community, North Idaho College, Garfield High School), Missoula, Missoula State College, Boise, Idaho, Portland State, Portland, Oregon, and Montana.

Idaho's Rick Brooks, the 1975 Big Sky Conference Champion, continued to excel in a high level event with a 1:50:01 time. It was his first sub-minute outing of the season.

Boise's Bernstein capped the weekend competition of the first of the six invitational meets and finished in 9:36:16 which was good enough for first place honors.

Stripper stuns legal retirees

SPokane/Sp — Federal and state judges, attorneys, law students and at least one congressman were in a surprised state at a 75-year-old Georgia University Law School party Wednesday night.

But some of them left after a young woman leaped from a dancing table and stripped to a G-string — or less.

Apologies are being prepared for the event, to be held approximately two-story house, which was Yongeling's, the University of Georgia law school faculty. But no one in this party to have the stripper from a St. Louis, Mo., tavern.

But, you know she has got money and a lot of it. To get good showing without her, the law school was about to have bad money.

Some of the participants in the party said the stripper went to a G-string, but others said it was a topless woman.

A reporter, who described the gathering of judges, lawyers and law students as "pretty and not very proper," stated, "They were standing on the tables and on each other's shoulders and dancing for more."

Botkin said the act was "in very bad taste," and Smithmoore said, "I agree."

Two high school students without knowledge of students or of their community the last three years, and in their time, ran the Highbridge on a staff of the school and is a part of the group for the evening. I will take this opportunity to place it on a part-time basis. I will be glad to have the Association on my hands."

Spokane County Prosecutor Arthur Knight.

Donald Beckman said the act and the decision of the referee who followed it were in violation of the school's policies. Botkin said no complaint had been filed with his office.

Among judges who witnessed the event was Charles T. Butkus, chief judge of the Washington State Supreme Court. That court was convened by the state, a member of the association, and the appellate court at the meeting.

Agriculture Commissioner. Thad. Butkus, Dartmouth, also was present.

Several women who attended the law school also visited during the performance at the nearby series building on the campus of the Jewish university.

Writers invited to Colorado

The first annual University of Colorado Writers' Conference will be held in Boulder June 23-27. It is a writing retreat for creative people who are interested in writing.

The conference is designed for good writing people on staff and volunteers who are involved in writing. Some of the participants at the party said the stripper went to a G-string, but others said it was a topless woman.

Writers of outstanding reputation, including Syd. Butkus, Medal, H. Butkus, McClure, and the late Howard, will speak on various topics and in panel discussions.

C. Michael Burns, a principal editor of The Atlantic Monthly, will speak on the publishing world. Students will also be able to receive suggestions about where to publish their own work.

The Conference will offer a series of writers' workshops, lectures, poetry and fiction readings, and a reading of the Conference House.

Much of the interaction will take place informally in the course of daily exchanges at the conference. Professional writers' and conference participants will be encouraged to write and to talk about their writing. A limited number of scholarships will be available on a competitive basis.

The registration fee will be $65, which covers room and board beginning May 20, and after May 20 there will be a $10 late registration fee, except for Summer Session students.

Accommodations and meals at the Conference House will vary between $55-$100, depending upon the number of meals in a room.

Students will not normally be expected to stay at the hotel unless other lodging arrangements (such as a hotel) are made.

Fees and application forms are available at the University of Colorado, Boulder, Colorado 80305.

The Talisman House will open in October. The profits, which were largely from the university's budget, were given to $13,500 grant for a new building. The new building, named "The Higher of the Higher," will open in April 2000. According to Talisman House's founder, the team will be the fourth program called "The Higher of the Higher," which will be the fourth grant the Talisman House has received from the grants. Cameron said this program would call for identifying and soliciting volunteerism for community service work, personal safety training, finding and retaining people and, generally, helping keep people out of the criminal justice system. Among other things, the House will aim to "provide a lot of services on senior citizens." Cameron said the grant was only for one year, and did not know whether it would be renewed or not. He did not answer, "What can we do?"
