Symms and Craig oppose drinking law

By Laurel Durrow
Associate Editor
"Blackmail" is how U.S. Sen. Steve Symms (R-Idaho) described the national law that requires states to raise the legal drinking age to 21.

"It's blackmail, but we do have to recognize that we live in the world we live in," he said at a press conference Monday at the U.S. Capitol.

U.S. Rep. Larry Craig (R-Idaho) also opposes the law. If he were a state legislator, he would oppose the federal government and appeal to the states to change the law, he said.

Symms was not certain whether he would go that far if he were a legislator because the law threatens to take away federal highway funds from states that do not raise the drinking age to 21.

"I really believe emphatically that transportation is vital," he said. "We can't do too much to improve the road system in our state and our country."

However, Symms opposes the federal law as a violation of the separation of powers between the federal government and the states. Legislators cannot fight it now, though, he said. "I think the issue's gone," he said. Symms also said the legislation is stuck and he feels sorry for Idaho businessmen who depend on selling alcohol to 19- and 20-year-olds from Washington.

He said he is opposed to drunken driving, but "it doesn't make any difference if the person who does it is 19 or 90."

He and Craig were at the U.S. Capitol for an agriculture seminar. They plan to hold similar meetings at six other Idaho cities before returning to Congress, which reconvenes Jan. 21.

At the press conference, Symms also discussed the 1986 campaign. Gov. John Evans, a Democrat, has announced that he will run for the Senate.

Symms said voters will have a clear choice between him and Evans. "When Gov. Evans' crowd was in power, the interest rates were 21 percent," he said.

Since Symms took office in 1980, interest rates have fallen from 21 percent to 9 percent and inflation has dropped from 13 percent to "a virtual standstill," he said.

Evans and he have basic ideological differences: "The governor has always been in favor of government solutions and I'm in favor of freedom and private solutions," he said.

Although Evans has said that Symms sided with wealthy outside interests, Symms said he does not. When he needs to raise funds outside the state, he goes to "people who have business interests in Idaho, basically," he said.

Registration Info.

One of the first steps to beginning the spring semester happens today in the ASU Ribble Dome registration office.

Students will enter the southeast entrance of the dome to pick up the course selection sheet.

Students register according to the time schedule listed below.

Those who miss their alphabetical group may enter at a later time or complete registration at the registrar's office.

Times to Register
8-8:30 F-GZ
8:30-9 H-HL
9:30-10 HO-MD
10-10:30 KE-LF
10:30-11 LF-MC
11-11:30 MD-NEL
11:30-NOON REM-PE
1-2 NOON FT-FF
3-3:30 NOON-12:30 RO-SL
12-3:30 SE-TS
1-3:30 SR-MS
3:30-4:30 TU-WL
4:30-4:45 W-IZ

The last day to register is Jan. 28. After that date successful petition to the Petitions Subcommittee of Council of Academic Deans and payment of a $50 late fee and $5 registration fee is required.

Jan. 28 is also the last day to change to or from pass-fail or audit basis, to reduce the number of credits in a course, to add courses or change course sections, to file "Senors in 500s Courses" and partial enrollment forms with the Graduate School, or for nonmatriculated students to obtain permission from the Graduate School to enroll in 500-level courses.

Classes begin Wednesday and will be in session on Jan. 20.

UI good buy

The education you receive at the UI is worth it.

The book lists more than 200 colleges and universities in the United States considered by Fiske to "offer a solid undergraduate education but don't charge an arm and a leg." The UI made the list, and Fiske says its highlights are "a widely praised honors program featuring small classes and close intellectual contact between instructors and the best students on campus," highly rated dorms and food, strong departments in engineering and computer science, access to the great outdoors and "a healthful, friendly and pristine environment."

The UI's shortcomings, according to Fiske, are "a modest library and business and communications departments which "could use support."

UI Pictured

The highly publicized and long awaited 1069 UI Centennial will be commemorated in a pictorial history book. It is scheduled to be published just before Christmas 1987. The editor is Keith Peterson, a free-lance writer, historian and former director of the Latah County Historical Society. He will also do researching and writing for the book. He started his work in mid-December and will spend a year on it before completion.

Peterson said the book will be fun to read and a tool that people will refer to for a long time. "There's never been a complete history of the UI published," he said.

The UI Library's special collections department will serve as a wealth of information for Peterson's research. There, he will go through an estimated 20,000 photos, boxes of past issues of the Argonaut, volumes of Gem of the Mountains, piles of written records and the few existing written histories of the university.

Peterson said he plans to research the every-day goings on of the UI since it was established.

He will also refer to an unpublished history book of the school by Cornelius Bromer, which covers up to World War II and a student history written in the late '30s.

For returning UI students, the holidays are now just blurred visions that dance through their heads. Photo Bureau/Carlye Williamson.

Amputation on the middle ground

Once again it is time to greet a new year and another semester at the UI. It would be nice if we could timistically charge this year, feeling confident that things will go our way.

It would be even nicer if this wet-behind-the-ears editor could write the traditional, cheerful, rah-rah editorial welcoming the students back to Moscow. But we cannot, 1986 is not greeted at the UI campus with “cautious optimism” but with certain dread, for the Idaho Legislature is in session.

As usual on the list of worries are the life-sustaining appropriations from the state coffers. Although last year the Legislature did give higher education an 11 percent increase so by economizing more, or not exist, forcing Gov. John Evans to impose a 2.5 percent holdback on all state agencies last fall.

As if the current holdback and the last six years of consecutive cuts were not bad enough, 1986 and the 1987 fiscal year budget that will be set by the Idaho Legislature this spring looks dismal.

After the pardoning that higher education has taken in the last ten years, the State Board intends only to compensate the legislature to the Legislature by asking bluntly for what is needed to just maintain the current level of operations. A 5.2 percent increase.

The board's request never got through to the Legislature. Gov. John Evans requested only a 5.2 percent increase of the Idaho Argonaut, as a student publication, supported by student fees, would have given the student body of Idaho. This semester, the staff of the newspaper wants your help. We will at the dome today during registration to hand out questionnaires that will help us better serve you. The questionnaire asks several details of your readership of the Idaho Argonaut, your opinions and questions on several issues that face the students, the university, the state, the nation and the world. Ask that you please take the time to fill out the questionnaire and get it back to the Argonaut staff member who will be handing them out.

We at the Argonaut wish the best of luck to all our readers, and we invite and encourage our readers to sub- mit their feedback to the editor. The Idaho Argonaut is currently seeking writers to be staff columnists; which is to say that they will write one column every two weeks. We are particularly interested in different political and writing approaches that are not usually seen in the paper. Since the paper has an abundance of columnists that are qualified to express various points of view, we hope to create an atmosphere in which we can logically communicate the conservative and libertarian viewpoints.

Letters writers want only to publish a one-time-column can arrange with the editor to be a guest columnist. The paper also needs letters in position of members of the faculty and administration to express their opinions as guest columnists. Letters to the editor should be typed, double-spaced and should not exceed 300 words. The Idaho Argonaut reserves the right to edit letters for length, clarity and mechanical mistakes: we also reserve the right to publish or not publish.

Letters to the editor will be published on a first-come, first-published basis, space permitting. The deadline for the submission of letters is noon on the day preceding publication. We here at the Idaho Argonaut look forward to an exciting semester of serving you.

Virtues of our slush

Michael Haberman

Columnist

Moscow, great place to live, especially in the winter. I think it's about time we advertised. Moscow has Mardi Gras and the Renaissance Fair, sure, but they concentrate on culture. We need something physical that captures the outdoor essence of our town at its best time of year.

They build snow sculpture at McCall’s winter carnival. How about slush sculpture? Anyone can build something out of snow, given time and patience, but it takes real skill to make something nice out of slush. I can see it now, a dry, golden gobies of slush arranged by a person of real creativity to look like a car stuck in a ditch, or a skier falling as he bites a patch of gravel.

The cultured folk in town would like a cornucopia, that. But for the more physical, earthy types we need more physical, earthy activities. That’s where the slush pushing, car pushing and student winter contests come in. Contestants could be divided into different weight or age classes, and different car models and classes for the car pushing contest. Ice thicknesses might not be appropriate for the various weight classes.

The slush pushing contest could be a real favorite. Starving students would be paid a small fee to line up next to a slush lake on side streets. Contestants would drive by, testing their knowledge of slush. Trying to dent the hungriest students as completely as possible in one pass of the vehicle. Clothes could be worth $200 or a year’s worth of determination.

Or, as a variation to the slush sculpture contest, the slush-covered students could be left out overnight, and the one found frozen in the most interesting position the next morning would have a scholarship established in his or her name. A bike race would also find a place in the slush season. To make it a little more exciting, we could throw in a cross-country section, or even across the Boise State campus. No moutain bikers or fencers allowed.

And of course a ski contest. What winter carnival would be complete without that? Each skier would have a brand new pair of skis, and then turned loose on an icy, rock-filled hill with patchy gravel. The first person to totally ruin his skis without doing harm to himself would win. We might even have a sweepstakes, whereby the lucky winner keeps the skis as a prize.

The obstacle course race might be the biggest draw of all. It would start with small islands of ice amid deep, cold, slush-covered pools of water and slush. From there contestants would attempt to dodge piles of emerging organic matter. Darker before the earlier ice shining. Hot chocolate for all survivors.

I know there are risks with the plans, as with any venture. The weather could turn cold, freeze the slush ponds, and freezing rain could turn snow into ice. Who, if the weather were better, would have been keeping participants in the slush sculpture would be wasting their time ice skating or skiing.

Or the weather could get even worse, that is warm, and take all the precious snow away.

Despite the risks I'm willing to take on the front of the future. If I can get financing going. To that end I announce the establishment of the Moscow Winter Carnival Slush Fund. Any takers?

LETTERS POLICY: The Idaho Argonaut will accept letters to the editor until noon on the day prior to publication. They should be not one page in length. Typed, double-spaced versions should be printed on one side of 8.5" x 11" white bond paper. Correspondents may be included with the editor. Letters must be signed in ink, and typed or proportionately long note must be included. Letters will be welcomed at any time. Letters received by mail will not be cross-referenced in future issues. No letters will be withdrawn from publication.
To All Things a Season

Last fall as I was walking behind two students, I heard one say he'd be deer hunting but he didn't want to join his friend in shooting bear. He'd done that before and it really bothered him to hear the dying animal whimper just like a baby. It brought back to mind the question of why it is for many people that only a human sound or posture evokes much regard for an animal.

Although I'd never say things like "All hunters are callous or inherently evil," neither do I thrill to their bravado or the brat of their trophies.

Death and life are to be fairly weighed in a balance. No one gets by, literally or metaphorically, without blood on his hands. But man with his consumer appetites is addicted to the taste of it bought cheaply for the gratification of his supposed superiority. What hangs over the mantelpiece or is sewn into a fur coat is a misapplied ego.

And it comes in all sizes. For someone, it was a dozen whole bear carcasses discarded in the Snake River after keeping a few claws and teeth.

For others, it was "harvesting" herds of deer from a road in Potlatch Creek Canyons and then littering underseized parts there. For the Reagan Administration, it is laying siege to environmental budgets and appointing corrupt officials to sabotage their programs.

I greatly respect individuals who protect and nurture the natural world. They engage the courts on behalf of voices that can't speak a human tongue or a lawyer's bedevilment of it. They endure those politicians who concern themselves only with the trophies of a lucrative career. They forgo personal wealth, comfort and prestige to ensure crucial cases on Earth.

We will not know a truly productive and intelligent world as long as we wage war against the elements because that is to wage destruction against ourselves. Any animal, even human, that fouls his nest, poisons the air and water it must consume and exterminates the food chains and gene pools is steadfastly driving itself into global suicide.

This is recognized by facets of the world community, including individuals who enjoy the seasonal harvest. Ecology is today a household word if not also a well-primed consciousness. We may manage to climb again from the swamp toward a higher evolution when we finally stop stagnating in pools of toxins, industrial wastes, resource abuse and an evermore silent spring.

And almost as grim evidence of the successes of the environmental movement, some men and governments respond brutally outside the authority of their positions. There is no open season on game wardens, yet Idaho is just one spot in the world that has seen it happen. And men without weapons, while shielding defenseless animals, have taken the blows of angry men. On the tail of 1985, such inappropriate responses escalated into two distressing events.

Recently, the French government blew up a Greenpeace flagship docked in a foreign port, killing the crew's photographer. I doubt he was armed with even a camera at the time.

And on Dec 28, the Rwanda government reported that world-famous anthropologist Dian Fossey was murdered at her study site. It would appear that the pen and notepad were too mighty for poachers who make a few dollars from the severed hands of rare mountain gorillas turned into ashtrays.

There are those who malign the beasts for beauty kills, yet our greed and inhumanity greatly surpass anything in the natural world. To take life should require as much integrity as it does to nurture life. Otherwise, we become as ice that will not thaw. And from there I must ask: How green the valley with the continual losses of our wildlands and a lady like Dian Fossey?
The new building will bring more strength to the department in bringing good researchers as well, said Al Lingg, acting head of the Department of Bacteriology and Biochemistry.

Lingg said that Bruce Miller, a molecular biologist and biochemist would be starting in the spring. Miller specializes in eukaryotic genetic systems, especially fungi. He did post-doctoral research at the University of California at Davis, working with one of the premiere fungal geneticists in the country.

Lingg said that another welcome addition is Paul Friesen, a molecular virologist who has been doing post-doctoral research in Lois Miller’s lab for the past three and a half years. Lingg added that they are still looking for another person in a complementary area for a joint research-teaching appointment.

“Al three positions are a commitment to biotechnology,” Lingg said. “The facility allowed us to recruit those people.”

Both scientists expressed regret that there still isn’t enough room for all researchers to be in the new building and that some would still have to do their research in the Agriculture Science Building.

Heimsch expected the building to be opened in the early part of the spring semester, adding that they are looking forward to moving in.

Lingg added “When we finally get in there, it will be great.”

Erickson, Yarber receive post-season honors

By Greg Kilmer
Sometimes Sports Editor

Former Idaho football coach Dennis Erickson grabbed one more honor at the University of Idaho, as he was named 1986 Big Sky Conference "Coach of the Year." Erickson, now the head coach at the University of Wyoming, led the Vandals to their first Big Sky Championship since 1971 with a 6-1 conference mark and an overall record of 9-3.

The 9-3 mark edges Erickson’s 1982 mark of 9-4, in his first year campaign at Idaho. Erickson was also tabbed as "Coach of the Year" that season.

In between those two seasons, Erickson put together seasons of 8-3 and 6-5 for four straight winning seasons. It was the first time in the history of the university that they had been accomplished. With his 32-15 overall record, Erickson is also Idaho’s winningest coach in history.

In his final season at Idaho, Erickson’s "Air Express" ran up 3,492 total yards, 2,000 on the ground and 1,492 through the air. The total put them second in the nation for Div. 1-AA schools.

Two years of "Excitement" paid off for University of Idaho’s Eric Yarber. The 5-foot-9 Yarber was selected to the Associated Press 1-AA All-American football squad.

Yarber, who also had been selected to the Kodak 1-AA All-American team and Big Sky Defensive Player of the Year, finished the year with a league leading 78 catches in 10 games. His receptions ran off 1,103 yards for a 14.7 yards-per-catch average and 10 touchdowns. He finished fourth nationally among 1-AA receivers.

Yarber also racked up 184 yards in punt returns on 13 returns for a 13.9 yard average and 51 yards rushing before going down with a knee injury early in Idaho’s 42-38 first round playoff loss to Eastern Washington.

Greg Rea, Reno’s All-Big Sky guard, was the only other BSC player to be named to the AP offensive squad. Defensively, Markus Koch of Boise State, Pat Hunter of Fresno and Mike Rose of Montana were tabbed by the AP.

Vandals show improvement in 3-4 break record

By Greg Kilmer
Sometimes Sports Editor

Idaho coach Bill Trumbo liked what he saw over the first part of his team’s Christmas break schedule, but the second half could have been better.

"From the Davis game through the tourney (Hoosier Classic) and the San Francisco and Gonzaga games, I felt we really made substantial progress," Trumbo said. "The team really started getting a feel for each other.

But Trumbo didn’t really like his team’s Big Sky debut.

"This past weekend, it was too bad we couldn’t continue,” the Idaho head man said. "You have to be a better team on the road to win in this conference."

DEC. 20-U.C./DAVIS- 5-foot-9 Chris Carey made the most of his first start of the season, as he led the Vandals to a 77-57 victory over the Div. II Aggies.

Carey hit on 10-12 shots from the field, one a three-pointer, to match running mate Kenny Lukett’s 21 for game honors.

"He’s shooting 89 percent from the foul line, he’s not making turnovers,” Vandal head coach Bill Trumbo said of Carey’s 23 of 31 and 11 of 11 shooting. "I’ve never had any doubt about his ability."

With the win, the Vandals moved to 4 and 4 on the year and ended a four game losing streak.

DEC. 27-INDIANA- It looked like the Vandals didn’t mind playing the host team and U.S. Olympic coach Bobby Knight in hoop-crazy Indiana, for a half that is.

The Vandals went toe-to-toe with the then No. 17 ranked Hoosiers for the first 20 minutes, only trailing 37-33 at the intermission.

But the Hoosiers got a little talking to at the half and proceeded to blow the Vandals out in the second half. Indiana hit on 57 percent from the field in the second half, including a 22-37 scoring spree to ice the victory 87-57.

Lukett once again led the Vandals with 14, while Carey and Brian Coleman had 12.

DEC. 28- SAN JOSE STATE- Leading 26-21, and by as many as 13 in the first half, the Vandals once again left a scoring spree get the best of them, as they fell to San Jose State 70-67 in the consolation game of the tourney.

But the Vandals stayed close to the Spartans, who had beaten Washington State 64-49 earlier in the week. There were nine lead changes and five ties in the second half before Ward Farris knocked down two free throws to ice the game for SDSU.

The Spartans, who had lost to Mississippi State in the first round 75-65, were led by Reggie Owens with 19 and Farris and Doug Wyatt with 12.

Kenny Lukett enjoyed his best offensive night of the season, as he led the Vandals with 31 points on 13 of 26 shooting from the floor and five of five from the line. Tom Stalick added 16, and Carey pitched in in 10.

Indiana grabbed the Classic championship with a 74-43 shellacking of NSU.

With the two losses, the Vandals fell to 4-4.

DEC. 31- SAN FRANCISCO- The Vandals meet out on a good note in 1985, as they downed the Dons of the University of San Francisco 85-49 in San Francisco.

Without the services of three frontline players, Ull Spears, Steve Adams and Donald Lindsey, it was 6-foot-9 reserve Paul Verrett who led the way for the Vandals’ fifth win of the season against six defeats.

Verrett, who went five-for-five from the floor, got all his points in the second half. His last bucket was the end of an Idaho 22-7 scoring spree that upped the Vandal lead to 51-42.

Besides Verrett, Kenny Lukett finished with 14 and Chris Carey had 11.

"The difference was the play off the bench," Trumbo said after the Idaho victory. "This game was important in a lot of ways, not only from the stand-
Vandal women enjoy near perfect holiday break

By Greg Klimes

The Vandal women's basketball team put four more wins into the record books over the past holiday break, but they also came away with their first loss of the season - 63-56 setback to the Temple University Owls in the Kangaroo Classic.

WHITWORTH- DEC. 20: The Vandals started the holidays on the right note, as they trounced the Pilots of Whitworth College 87-51 to move their season mark to 10-0.

The Vandals let it known early what type of night was in store for the Lady Ducks, as they knocked down their first eight shots of the game and never looked back. Idaho enjoyed a 41-18 cushion at intermission.

Krista Dunn, a 5-foot-7 junior guard, led the Vandal offensive attack for the first time of the year with 14 points on six of eight shooting from the floor and two of two from the line.

Mary Raese was the only other Vandal who finished in double digits with 12 below her 21 point average. All 11 other members of the Idaho squad scored in the contest.

Idaho also won the battle of the boards, outrebounding the Pilots 38-32. Freshman center Gwen Dighans led the way with six.

On the night, the Vandals shot 60 percent from the field on 38 of 63 shooting, while Whitworth could only manage 22 percent on 19 of 59 shooting.

Former Kendrick High star Lisa Vallem led the way for Whitworth with 19 points.

KANGAROO CLASSIC: JAN. 3

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY: JAN. 3

The New Year brought in something different for the undefeated Vandals - their first loss of the season 63-56 to Temple University.

The 5-1 Owls seven point victory stopped the Vandal's win streak at 10 and denied them the chance to break last year's 15-0 start, which went on to a history making 29-2 record.

The Owls, who led 30-24 at intermission, outrebounded the Vandals 33-34 for the game.

Many of Temple's second half comeback came off offensive rebounds.

although hindered by three first half fouls, 6'4 center Mary Westerwelle led the Vandals with 15 points. Raese was the only other Vandal in double figures with 14.

Center Faw and Kia Johnson with 17 led the Owls.

With the loss the Vandals faced a consolation ball game with New Mexico State, a first round loser to host San Diego State.

NEW MEXICO STATE: JAN. 4

The Vandals returned to their winning ways against New Mexico State 69-59 for the consolation championship in the Kangaroo Classic.

The Vandals, led by Raese with 20 at the half, broke away early and never looked back, as they improved their overall record to 11-1.

Mary Raese led the Vandals with 24 points, while Robin Behrens added 14. Neitra McGregor with 13 points and Mary Westerwelle with 10 were the only other Vandals in double figures.

For the second straight night, the Vandals were outrebounded soundly, New Mexico State grabbed off 43 boards, compared to Idaho's 26. Raese and Westerwelle led the Vandals on the boards with seven a piece.

It was the second tournament for the Idaho women. Having won the Mid-America Classic in Missouri earlier in December.

With the conclusion of the Classic, the Vandals prepared to defend their Mountain West Athletic Conference championship.

Opening up the MWAC title chase, the Vandals played host to Weber State and Idaho State.

WEBER STATE: JAN. 10

The Vandals picked right back up from last year's MWAC conquests, as they rolled over Weber State 89-45 in their league opener.

Mary Westerwelle led the Vandals with 15 points, followed by 12 from Neitra McGregor.

Idaho guard Robin Behrens put pressure on Idaho State's Nancy Ingham during Idaho's victory over the Bengals.

Ul prepares for indoors

By Chris Schulte

The Idaho men and women's track teams are rapidly approaching the first meet of the indoor season for the famed Vandals Indoor, which is considered the premier event on the deck.

The main attraction of the meet will be the renowned event, the sprint relay, which will feature an all-star team of sprinters.

The meet will also feature a number of standout events, including the long jump, high jump, and triple jump.

The women's team will be led by senior Susan Dumes and veteran Dan Martin.

The men's team will be led by senior Roger Norris and junior Dan Martin.

The meet will be held at the University of Idaho Indoor Track and Field on Saturday, January 19. The meet is open to the public and admission is free.
Vandal athlete-scholars

Five Vandal football players and one cross country runner were chosen to the 1984 Big Sky All-Academic teams.

The five football players were offensive linemen Earl Taggart and Dave Thorsen and quarterback Darrel Tracy on offense, while linebacker David Parker and Tom Hennessy were chosen on the defensive team.

Tom Bohannon was the only Vandal runner to be named to the academic cross country team.

Taggart had a 3.62 GPA in Accounting, Tracy had a 3.37 in Civil Engineering, while Thorsen, who has made the team since 1982, had a 3.34 in Business Management and Computer Science. Parker finished with the 3.22 in Marketing, while Hennessy, the Big Sky "Defensive Player of the Year," had a 3.13 in Agric-Business.

Bohannon was selected to the team because of his 3.35 GPA in Finance.

Below are the other members of the Big Sky All-Academic team.

Pictorial Tribute to M.L. King at WSU

By Sarah Kerruish

Entertainment Editor

This exhibition of black and white photographs of Martin Luther King is a humble and unpretentious tribute to a great man. It traces the life of King as a family man, minister, civil rights leader and Nobel Peace Prize recipient. Further it attests to the impact King had on others, black and white, before and after his death. The eighty pictures are taken from a special edition of the magazine Ebony. The chosen photographs commemorate the fact that for the first time King's birthday anniversary is celebrated as a national holiday. There is a photograph of President Reagan and Coretta Scott King at the signing ceremony for the Martin Luther King Holiday, and a photograph of stamps issued by countries all over the world in his honor. The most touching pictures are those of the man himself.

King clearly remained very attuned to his family despite his vigorous campaigning for black civil rights. One simple photograph of Coretta King comforting her husband after he was stabbed shows the strong bond that existed between them. Another picture shows them marching together in the rain.

Juxtaposed with the pictures of King at work are pictures of his funeral. The black and white photography is most effective in capturing the blackness and despair surrounding King's death. The photographic symbols of the symbolic mute-drawn wagon carrying King's body, along with the hundreds of thousands of celebrities and ordinary folk who followed the procession and of Jacqueline Kennedy expressing her condolences to Coretta King.

The second series of pictures are entitled: "A Lasting Impression." Some photographs capture lighter moments in King's life. There is one delightful photograph of King smiling and clearly enjoying himself while giving one of his church sermons. Another demonstrates King's time for everyone, even children. In this picture, King has stopped his motorcade and is shaking the hand of a young child.

One of the most poignant photographs of the exhibition is of King playing in a slum on Chicago's west side, drawing attention to the terrible conditions endured by blacks.

Finally, there are two pictures from the Black Study Program at WSU.

This exhibition, showing at WSU's CUB Gallery until Jan. 11, is an impressive photographic survey of King's life. The photography itself, as an art, is unobtrusive. The photographs let King speak for himself.

KUOI’s Pedaxing predicts music scene ’86

By Dave Hanson

Staff Writer

New trends in music are continuously coming and going, usually fading into oblivion or occasionally having a lasting influence on popular music. 1985 saw the decline of punk, the impressively visible influence of reggae and African rhythms and a resurgence of the psychedelic rock sounds of the 60’s.

Of these trends, the resurgence of psychedelia is probably the most visible. Everyone from Prince to Hound Dog Harp to Du is taking the ‘60s sound and molding it to his own needs. Today’s equipment and production techniques are making it possible to create a psychedelic sound further than its original creators could have ever imagined. Paisley music will continue to be abundant in 1986.

Another result of state-of-the-art equipment is that funk music has entered a new realm. In the old days, when a producer wanted to manipulate vocals or other sounds, he had to record them on tape and then cut and splice to get the effect he wanted. Today’s digital equipment allows sounds to be stored in a computer, where they can be manipulated and played back at will.

The possibilities are endless, and the new year will bring wild dance mixes that use voices and other audio files as instruments.

The decline of punk music stems from its stylistic limitations. After awhile one hardcore song sounds like any other hardcore song: fast and loud. The idea was that it didn’t matter if you could play, just that you got out and played. That’s all right for the musician, but it leaves the listener out of the picture.

The anyone-can-play attitude is now being funneled into the psychedelic garage band sound or doom-and-gloom funk. Much of the “punk” music to be heard in 1986 will sound either like heavy metal or ’60s garage music.

The biggest influence in 1986 will be technology. Digital music computers and synthesizers are providing musicians and producers with the capability to create sounds and images that boggle the imagination. There will also be several briefly Interesting and short term trends that have no permanent influence.

If you enjoy blues, then Alligator records has a great new blues album called Showdown. This record features blues greats Albert Collins, Johnny Copeland, and Robert Cray in a performance of Chicago-style blues that grabs you by the feet and makes you move. Although many all-star records suffer from a lack of coherance, these guys play like they’ve been together for years.

Spring into fashion: local buyers predict new styles

By Christine Pohanka
Staff Writer

Step into a time machine and travel back to the winter of 1985. It is a cold and rainy night in Moscow, and a fashion-conscious young man and young woman discuss the movie characters Rocky and Rambo and drink cappuccino.

She flinches nervously with the glittering timeround brooch at the corner of her oversized padded shawl. She is most of a popular set of hipster pants tucked neatly into short, leather boots.

She stares intently at her through proply, turtleneck frames, shivering a bit, because his "Miami Vice" dark gray jacket isn't quite warm enough for the Moscow chill.

He crosses and recrosses legs covered by faded Levi's, wishing he hadn't worn the argyle socks that make his feet sweat — at least not with his boat shoes.

That trip backward was a review of a portion of the history of fashion in 1985 according to fashion merchants and designers in the local area and Seattle. New steps back into the time machine and show forward for a preview of the fashion spring of 1986.

The same couple is sprawled on the Administration lawn, beating the freeze, sunning underneath and enjoying a picnic lunch in the sun.

Two pairs of espadrilles, his red and hers tan, are casually hung over a pile along with a pastel version of his fall blazer. She sported a scarf from "Casablanca" and the tragic death of James Dean, but he is wondering if he can hack his Swatch to buy that over-sized pastel polo shirt, and she is hoping her pop-art teeshirt isn't too bright.

The look for spring fashion is relaxed, featuring overstated but not sloppy clothes and updated fashion themes, according to Mario Bisio, owner and men's buyer for Mario's, a men and women's clothing store in Moscow.

"A reinterpreted, unlined jacket "picked up fast" at Moscow's Myklebust's, according to to owner and buyer Rod Myklebust. The look will continue through spring and will be seen in white, yellow, pink and light gray with two-button, crew-necked, short-sleeved shirts to layer underneath.

Cuffed cotton pants, pleased or not, are also a spring wave-drobe staple, Myklebust said.

"Person to go with this look will be flat, very soft and semi-sheer and will be worn with no socks or very bright colored socks," he said. "Also patent leather boat shoes and beanie shoes with palm trees and shell prints are on them here.

A "return to nostalgia" is how Myklebust described last spring's look. It features cropped V-necked sweaters in red and white or blue and white, plaid pants and saddle shoes or loafers.

"The only label that carries this, that we know of is Union Bay and they call it DMOC — Big Man On Campus," Myklebust said.

The woman's silhouette remains basically the same, according to to Jay Jacobs manager Jane Quinn.

"You'll see a large top or jacket over a slim skirt or pants," she said.

Mixed patterns and rhinestones will still be visible at Jay Jacobs, but with a new element of pop-art design, seen mostly on tees-shirts, sweatshirts and earrings. Quinn describes pop-art as being "like the Power Station video."

Body conscious clothing makes a strong statement for women despite the populari-ty of oversized clothing. Bisio said, "This important part of that accent continues to be worn on our floors."

The range of colors for both men and women is almost unlimited.

"Black and white is very popular for women still, and there are many different color palettes," Bisio said. "Paints, jewel tones and basic colors are still valid."

Charlotte Buchanan, owner and manager of Moscow's One More Time, said there is a new attitude in fashion for both men and women: "Fashion outlaw."

"You can now dress according to what you look good in: you don't have to follow the dictates of fashion," she said. "If you don't look good in mini-skirts, then you have other choices."

Wide in color and style that appeal to men and women, young and old, are the statement for 1986, Buchanan said. "It's neat to see both generations come into the store and find something they like."

Major components of One More Time merchandise are variations with separates, plenty of accessories to accent the basics and well-structured clothing lines, Buchanan said.

KUOI to broadcast live at registration

KUOI will be broadcasting live from the Kibbie Dome Tuesday during registration. The regular music program featuring the station will be interrupted by news of the latest class closures and interviews, with univers- ity celebrities. During registration, KUOI reps will be giving away shirts and albums at the Dome. Anyone interested in becoming a DJ for KUOI should stop by the station on the third floor of the SUB, and pick up an application. KUOI also needs people to fill positions for news programs. Workstudy positions are available.
Advance Screenings of local movies

Out of Africa

Out of Africa is not for those who enjoy only action-packed, thrill-and-spills movies. Rather it is for those who savor life.

Out of Africa can be reasonably compared with the classic A Passage to India except the former has the advantage of Meryl Streep.

The movie tells the story of one woman's extraordinary relationships with Africa, the African natives and two men. Screen as the Danish Karen, the Baroness Von Blixon, is resilient, passionate, independent and courageous.

Karen says, when her husband (Klaus Marci Brandan) goes to war, that in war men are tested for courage and women for patience, but she shows great courage when she takes supplies to the troops across the desert.

Karen's relationship with the baron is ambiguous. Their marriage is one of convenience, but despite the fact that the Baron loves Karen syphilis and leaves her to run the farm singlehandedly, they develop a strong friendship. Brandan is boyish and charming as the pleasure-seeking baron.

Robert Redford as Karen's lover. Dennis, is undeniably gorgeous, but the character of Dennis pales in insignificance beside the remarkable Karen. Redford serves as a beautiful foil to the brilliant Streep.

The movie captures the intensity of the breathtaking African landscape. Some of the highlights are the safaris and the plane ride Karen takes with Dennis.

Out of Africa is almost certain to scoop several Oscars this year.

Mary Streep and Robert Redford in Out of Africa, which is currently showing at the Nu Art Movie Theater in Moscow.

A Chorus Line

A day in the lives of dancers auditioning for A Chorus Line becomes atypical when the choreographer, Zack (Michael Douglas), takes the dancers back to their dancing roots and into their personal lives. Taken from the successful stage play of the same name, now in it's eleventh year, the film A Chorus Line is given three and a half stars by Ebert.

Jewel of the Nile

Michael Douglas, Kathleen Turner and Danny Devito do it again in this delightful sequel to Romancing the Stone. Turner finds herself swept off her feet by a self-made king of the Nile and taken to his fortress to write his biography. However, she soon finds herself prisoner. Douglas and DiVito set off to rescue Turner, and the fun begins. An attempt to do large scale special effects like those in Temple of Doom cheapens the story. The movie is entertaining, but they took the beat out of Romancing the Stone and overdid it.

Nightmare on Elm Street II

Like its predecessor, Nightmare on Elm Street II consists of bad acting, a poor plot and excessive gore. Despite all this, it is thoroughly entertaining. The film continues the story of Freddy Krueger, the demonic antagonist of the movie, who slays innocent high school students with a glove that features razor-sharp blades protruding from the fingers. Unlike other movies of its genre, Nightmare on Elm Street Part II is unpretentious. Realizing the ridiculous nature of the situations it invokes, it makes fun of itself by adding humor here and there.

Casey Jones and Allen Batts provide the rhythm and keyboards that tie this group into a blues-rock sound of guitar battling it out.

Every cut on this album is outstanding, although my favorites are the steamy "Moon is Full," and the fabulous cover of T-Booie Walker's "T-Bone Shuffle." If you have ever considered owning a blues album, this one is the one to get.

Kate Bush's new album, "Hounds of Love," is her first in three years. The three songs spent in the studio is apparent in the layered, dreamlike feeling of the songs. Past efforts have sounded a bit too theatrical, but this album is easy to listen to.

"Hounds of Love" is actually two records in one, each having its own title and sound. Side one is titled "Hounds of Love," and sounds much like her earlier releases. "Running Up That Hill," is the most notable cut, demonstrating the beautiful and control of her voice.

The songs on side one are separate and independent of each other, but there is more of a unified concept for side two, titled "The Ninth Wave." The songs run into each other without a break, and the images move seamlessly, smoothly, much like dreams.

"Waking the Witch" stands out as the most visual part of side two, evolving the description and emotional reaction of waking up into a nightmare. The entire side is successful at capturing elements of extreme emotion, when imagination and reality are indistinguishable.

"Hounds of Love" is a beautiful, complex vision. The music is pleasant to listen to and stands up to repeated listenings. In fact, it gets better with repeated listening, and in this double album, this is a chance to really get your money's worth.

show starts out strong with some good one-liners and assorted Chevy Chase silliness, but deteriorates quickly into a desperate attempt at satire.

It looks like the producers just hired two comic geniuses, Aykroyd and Chase, and then threw a script together. It is certain that with two proven greats together on the screen, Bob Hope had to make a guest appearance for comic relief.

In all there were a few good lines, but this movie must rank as one of the worst Christmas gifts of the season.

101 Dalmations

This Walt Disney film Wallace of the last of the full color animation features produced before his death, and it holds up quite well a quarter-century after its initial release.

Based on the book of the same name by Dodie Smith, the plot centers on the efforts of a wonderful baddie (Crissula de Nervosa) to destroy a black and white New Wave hairstylist, who reveals in wearing furs and wants to make coats from the hides of adorable, anthropomorphized dogs.

Her efforts are thwarted by the Villain's best friends (the parents of 18 of the Dalmations). They are aided by the dogs of London and the surrounding countryside who relay messages via the "Twilight" communications network. Of course, the good guys—er—dogs—win in the end. A delightful film that entertains young and old alike. — John Hecht

White Nights

Mikhail Baryshnikov, a Russian ballet star who defects to the West, finds himself imprisoned in his native land when the jet he's on crashes in Siberia. Gregory Hines, an American who defected to the Soviet Union during the Vietnam War, is assigned to help convince Baryshnikov to resume his career there. Hines and Baryshnikov have their own ideas and attempt to flee back to the West.

Dim Sum

"Dim Sum is a little piece of the Orient in a heart warming piece. It is the touching and humorous story of a Chinese mother and daughter who live to San Francisco. We are given an intimate insight into one Chinese family, their culture and their conflicts. Although the film is ponderous, its fabric is as rich as the fabric of the wedding dress the mother so wants her daughter to wear."

Mardi Gras

Mardi Gras is going to be bigger and better than ever before, according to the event's main organizer, Patricia Buchanan.

"Moscow's largest party, on Feb. 22 this year, is being restructured. The two main bands, who are already booked, are going to perform in different places, taking mardi gras back to campus, said Buchanan. "We are spending more money on music than ever before."

"The Crazy Eights are a twelve-piece band from Portland who play everything from reggae to rock. Buchanan said they have a really good stage show and a large following."

In addition, The Big Sky Mudflaps are a jazz, swing band who have had great write-ups in Esquire and Playboy, she said.

In the Silver and gold room there will be two cabarets during evening. No alcohol is permitted at the S.U.B., but Buchanan does not foresee a problem attracting an audience. A regular service will be able to take people to the four sponsoring bars, as yet unannounced. Buchanan said that last year people loved riding the decorated, must-built floats.

Also there will be a sophisticated bar at the S.U.B providing exotic mocktails.

"We will open for the whole evening. A continental "breakfast" will be available for the late night revelers."

Both the Moscow and Palouse Malls will be participating with sales and music. Buchanan said the parade will be as spectacular as ever with a big name parade marshmellow. The attitude is black and white and the proceeds of the event will go to the Prichard Gallery in downtown Moscow. Special eight dollar tickets be available to students, ten dollar tickets to non-students.

Extraordinary classes

Did you know you can take unusually classes in winetasting and Creole and southern cooking? The Community Free University is now offering its 44th semester of un-conventional educational experiences. And the courses they offer do not just satisfy the palate. They cater to the soul, too, with classes such as Magic without Tears and Relation Development. For information, you should offer and registration contact Paul Briant at 908-4045.

Nearly 100 non-credit courses are being offered this semester by the University Continuing Education Division. Some examples of the more esoteric offerings are cream puff making, S.D.1 Star Wars, square dancing, massage and real estate marketing. For information contact continuing education at 885-6484.

Two up-and-coming authors will teach workshops at the UI this spring. One is the recently published, Glenny Furtwangler, and the other is Virginia novelist, Kenny Martin.

Those interested in enrolling for the courses should contact Tina Fortes at the UI English department.

Habib to chair Borah 86’

Philip Habib, a Middle East peace negotiator and a 1942 UI graduate, will chair the 1986 Borah Symposium, according to Jim Owens, Borah Committee chairman.

The symposium’s topic will be “The Search for Peace in the Middle East.” It is scheduled for March 24 and 25.

Owens has recently talked with Habib, the former special envoy to the Middle East under President Reagan. “I think he’s certainly excited about returning to Idaho and about chairing the symposium,” he said.

At present, the Borah Committee is still negotiating with people to take part in the symposium. Owens said, “Within a couple of weeks into the semester we’ll have a pretty clear idea of who will be here.”

The Borah Committee has set up an essay contest for high school and college students on the symposium’s topic.

Owens said, “The topics differ for those in college and those in high school.” Cash prises will be awarded, the winner of the contest will receive a trip to Moscow to participate in the symposium.

The essay contest, according to Owens, will begin sometime in January, after students have returned to school.

Evans to run for senator

Gov. John Evans will be in Moscow Wednesday at 2:45 p.m. at the Moscow Hotel to announce his candidacy for the United States Senate.

This will be one of more than 70 stops he is making in Idaho communities during a two-week tour. His family will accompany him.

“I don’t believe you can run a campaign from behind a desk, or by using tax money to distribute political propaganda,” Evans said. “Idaho people want to see and hear their candidates, and that’s the way we’re going to do things.”

Lit mag accepting submissions

Snapdragon, Moscow’s only literary and arts magazine, is now accepting submissions for the spring 1986 issue. Deadline for submission is Feb. 28.

The University of Idaho Library, the Department of English, and the School of Communication sponsor Snapdragon which showcases works of poetry, short stories, essays and art work.

Poetry, short stories, and essays should be typewritten and double spaced. Interested writers may submit work to Tina Fortyes in room 120 Brink Hall at the University of Idaho. Writers should include a self-addressed and stamped envelope with their submissions. Black and white photographs, pen and ink drawings, and black and white prints should be brought to the Humanities Office at the UI Library. Art work should be accompanied by the name of the work, if applicable, and the name, address and phone number of the artist. For more information, contact Tina Fortyes, associate professor of English at 885-7121, or Karen Buxton, at 885-6584.

King remembered

James Farmer, the founder of the Congress of Racial Equality, will speak at Washington State University on the contributions of Martin Luther King to American civil rights.

Farmer will give a public address Jan. 20, the first official national holiday recognizing King. The address will be at 8 p.m. in the Condon Union Building Auditorium.

WSU’s celebration and recognition of King includes a display of photographs depicting King’s life. This exhibit runs Jan. 13-22 in the CUB Gallery from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day.

Tomorrow, a 35-minute film, “I Have a Dream...The Life of Martin Luther King,” will be shown all day at Clevenger Lounge at the CUB.

Farmer is considered one of the “Big Four” in the desegregation movement of the late 1960s. He was the national director of Congress of Racial Equality from 1961 to 1969. The three other key black leaders were Martin Luther King of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Roy Wilkins of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and Whitney Young of the National Urban League.

In addition, Farmer headed the Center for Community Action Education, a private agency that worked to combat illiteracy.

On Jan. 20, Farmer will have an autograph session from 2:15-3 p.m. at the Student Book Corporation. He has written an autobiography “Lay Bare the Heart,” about the civil rights movement.

- After Wednesday you can phone the number of the in-
  - structor listed in the course description of the Community Free University Spring 1986 newsletter. If there is no limit in a course you may sign up by phone immediately.
- Leased? Now you own!
  - During the Christmas vacation, a decision by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) made thousands of cur-
    - rent Idaho phone leaseholders the owners of their phones.
  - On Jan. 1, 1986, General Telephone Company turned over the title on all single-line regulated lease telephones to
  - the customers in accordance with the FCC's decision to deregulate the telephone industry.
  - Customers with phones under an unregulated lease are not affected.
  - Those now owning a phone are responsible for the repair or replacement of the phone.
  - There is still an option for an unregulated lease for those who prefer to lease rather than own their phone, according to GTE. They can turn in their old phones at Phone Marts or Ser-
    - vice Centers and receive a $5 credit.
  - Customers who may be uncertain whether their phones are on regulated lease should check their phone bills. This in-
    - formation is noted in the local service portion of the bill.

UI Greeks go for the ‘dry’ look

At fraternity rush weeks of the past, there was booze, booze everywhere. But there won’t be any more to drink for rush.

Rush parties will be dry because the fraternity system wants to improve its image, said Mark Brigham, UI fraternity adviser.

The Greek system has had a bad image because parents hear about the drinking done at rush parties and think fraternities are just like “Animal House,” he said.

Now, with dry rush, maybe more parents will say it “isn’t so bad,” and they will let their sons go Greek, he said.

The fraternities have been moving toward a dry rush for seven years. During rush in 1984 and 1985, they were allowed to serve alcohol only 1.5 days.

This has been a nationwide movement, and “no one has gone back to wet rush since they’ve gone dry,” Brigham said. “There really isn’t any good basis for having wet rush.”

One problem with serving alcohol is that some rushers feel forced to drink, so they can make a good impression and get into their house of choice, he said.

Bruce Pittman, dean of students, said the rushers will probably feel more at home and more welcome without the pressure to drink.

Besides, wet rush has been expensive. Norm Semanko, assistant rush chairman, said some houses spend up to $700 on alcohol during rush.

And Brigham said that some of the alcohol has been drunk by people who aren’t even going through rush. “Everyone and his dog” came to the parties, he said.

When the parties are dry, they will probably plan around themes such as “fancy” night, movie night or Hawaiian luau, Brigham said.

Semanko, an ATO, said he thinks the fraternities will plan “something spectacular” to attract rushers to their houses.

Rush might be shorter, and it will definitely be more structured, Semanko said.

While he does not think any fraternities will break the rules and serve alcohol during rush.

Everyone of the houses is eager toward the “sight that ah is the big ear of the u,” and they will “keep right on going” to the party, he said.

CI the Appeal

Students anxiously awaiting FICA refunds for money mistakenly withheld from student paychecks should calm down. They may be in for a long wait.

Confusion over missing information is the latest cause of delay, but even if that is cleared up, officials aren’t optimistic that the matter will be resolved quickly.

Charles Severn, manager of the Social Security Administration, said he has no idea when refunds approved for refunds will be granted: “Two months to two years or five years. Who knows?” Between 8,000 and 10,000 students are owed a total of $400,000. The university is owed an additional $470,000 for money paid to match student contributions.

An audit of the UI in 1982 determined that FICA deductions, money earmarked for social security, were still being taken from full-time students’ checks, even though full-time students had been exempted in 1979. A communication lapse resulted in the UI’s continuing deductions until Jan. 1, 1985. Now there is confusion over a missing column of information requested by the Social Security Administration in Baltimore. That is the agency that must grant approval for refunds.

Jeff Eisenbarth, UI payroll officer, said the UI deals with the SSA indirectly, through the state auditor’s office in Boise, and that office did not request the additional column of information.

When it turned out that the SSA needed the additional column, Eisenbarth said the state auditor’s office told him the matter would be taken care of there. But Severn said he was waiting for the UI to provide the missing column. Eisenbarth believes the audit was a mistake....
Gibb says raise in student fees likely

By Megan Guida
News Editor

UI President Richard Gibb thinks an increase in student fees is likely because the Idaho Legislature will probably not grant UI's request for a 16 percent increase in state appropriations this session.

"Realistically, I don't know how we can avoid a fee increase because I don't see it in the cards to come close to that 16 percent," Gibb said in an interview with the Idaho Statesman.

But despite the fact less than half of UI's budget comes from the Legislature, Gibb said he will be fighting hard for funding for higher education in Boise this week. He said the budget is the biggest issue the UI faces.

"We do the best we can to get UI's budget approved by the Legislature," Gibb said.

Gibb said the best reason for 16 percent in state funds, it would be wrong to ask students to make up the difference. Gibb said he thinks the 16 percent which we do, and we get 5 (percent) and there's an 11 percent gap. Do we still have a student fee? No. That would be unreasonable to expect the students to make up the difference? Would we expect the students to make up a little of the difference? Yeah, I'd have to." —UI President Richard Gibb

"Let's say we really need that 16 percent, which we do, and we get 5 (percent) and there's an 11 percent gap. Do we still have a student fee? No. That would be unreasonable to expect the students to make up the difference. Gibb said he thinks the 16 percent which we do, and we get 5 (percent) and there's an 11 percent gap. Do we still have a student fee? No. That would be unreasonable to expect the students to make up the difference? Yeah, I'd have to."

Gibb said Gibb said it was the 16 percent of UI's budget comes from the Legislature. Much of the remaining 40 percent comes from private donations and student fees. "We're spending increasing giving more money to higher education is the current economic problems that are confronting forestry, mining and agriculture in the state. He said research is needed to help these areas.

Gibb said there is no room for cuts in UI's budget. "I don't know what we could eliminate at the university and still be the same university," he said. "We eliminated the fat and got in to the meat and the bone (during the six years of budget cuts and holdbacks) that's what makes it so difficult."

In March, UI received 11 percent in state appropriations from the Legislature. Then in September, the state imposed a 2.5 percent holdback. Gibb said he is "cautiously optimistic" UI will not suffer another holdback this year.

"We're trying to sort of grope our way through this year hoping it will at least get good enough that we don't have to make any further cuts and we can maybe start filling some of the positions that have become vacant. That's why it's critical we get at least something close to what the Board has asked for."

Gibb said if the Legislature does not give UI as much money as requested, he will look at the situation as "a matter of we didn't get much of an increase, but where are the most important needs and where will you put the increases you got. And I guess still, my first priority is salaries. And then next would be equipment and then maintenance at the Physical Plant.

"Sure, you can always do it for less. You can always find a way to do it cheaper. But that's just a matter of diluting the soup. You don't have good soup."

In another matter, Gibb said he has heard "no talk" about the issue of in-state tuition being brought up during the legislative session. "If we had the proper safeguards, I wouldn't oppose tuition," he said.

Gibb is will be in Boise in front of the Legislature until Thursday. He said, "I will be down there often enough to let them know I'm interested but I won't spend a lot of time down there during the session."

He said, "I truthfully do like most legislators. I just don't like legislative sessions."
Mike Trail fined $150

During a pre-trial Jan. 7 for Mike Trail, former ASUI Vice President, a charge of failure to stop at a stop sign was dismissed while he negotiated on another amended charge. The second traffic misdemeanor originally stated as failure to leave information after hitting an unattended car was amended to striking an unattended vehicle. Trail was fined $150. The first pre-trial hearing was Dec. 3. The purpose of the pre-trial was to decide on terms of defense. The trial was held in front of the city prosecutor and the dismissed charge was See Trial, page 23

Gov., Mayor Hold Contest

The Idaho Governor’s Committee on Employment of the Handicapped is inviting students to enter the 1986 Employ the Handicapped College Poster Contest.

The goal of the contest is to publicize the fact that disabled people in college and in the workplace are capable of producing efficient, reliable and productive work.

It is open to any undergraduate student in colleges, junior colleges, universities or technical schools in Idaho.

The entry should be a drawing showing how disabled people are “doing something” in their communities, according to contest coordinators.

Prizes are provided by the Governor’s Committee on Employment of the Handicapped. First prize is $100, second prize is $50 and third prize is $30.

The deadline is Jan. 24, and an official entry blank must be glued to the back of the poster.

Entry blanks can be picked up from Ron Slusser at Job Service, Dianne Bagumgar at UI Special Education or Dianne Mithoff at UI Student Advisory Services.

For more information, call Diane Bassegart, chair of the Moscow Mayor’s Committee at 885-6150.

In addition to the governor’s committee, the Moscow Mayor’s Committee on Employment of the Handicapped is promoting the contest.

More men educated last year

Last year more men than women graduated from four years of college and received a diploma, according to American Demographics magazine.

The percentage of men aged 25 to 34 with four or more years of college in 1985 was up to 25.2 percent compared to 19.6 percent of 1980. The Census Bureau speculated last year when this decline first showed up in the 1984 statistics, the Vietnam War encouraged men to go to college in the 1960s and early 1970s to escape the draft. American Demographics said, “Today’s younger generation of men does not have this life-and-death motivation to enroll and stay in college.”

The percentage of women aged 25 to 34 with four or more years of college was 22.3 in 1985, up from 20.9 percent in 1980.

The percentage of women aged 25 to 34 with a college diploma in 1980 was 16.6. In 1985, the percentage for this age group jumped to 21.3 percent.

The biggest percentage point increase has been for men aged 35 to 44, up from 25.1 percent in 1980 to 31.2 percent in 1985. According to American Demographics, the gap in college attainment between men and women has narrowed slightly.
Exchanges to countries available

Two separate exchange programs are offering American families unique opportunities to host high school students from Scandinavia, Germany, Switzerland, France, Spain or Australia. Students can also participate in a five-week summer Host Family stay throughout Western Europe.

ASSE International Student Exchange Programs (ASSE) is seeking host families for students between 15 and 18 years old from Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Holland, Belgium, Austria, Switzerland, Germany, France, Italy, Brazil, Ecuador, Australia and Japan. The students are all fluent in English and have spending money and medical insurance. Host families are also able to deduct $50 per month for income Tax purposes.

ASSE is also looking for American families with boys aged 15 through 17 who would like to sponsor a student from Norway, Denmark, Finland, Sweden.

Taus Beta Pi is offering students a chance to save a little money at the UI Bookstore this semester.

During registration today, UI's engineering honor society will sell raffle tickets for a $100 gift certificate at the UI Bookstore. The name of the winner will be announced Friday.

The UI's chapter of Tau Beta Pi has been around for 13 years, but the organization itself is 100 years old, according to Bob Miliman, Tau Beta Pi member.

The top eighth of the junior engineering class and the top fifth of the senior engineering class are eligible for membership, but membership is also being considered on the basis of the applicant's grades.

areas, which include federal state and private land, lie within 60,000 acres of forest where a tussock moth outbreak has been projected. That area ranges from Moscow Mountain north to Plummer and east to North-South Ski Area.

In unprayed, low risk areas, Storack expects the moth to do some selective thinning, something he says may have to be done manually among trees protected by the forest service.

It will be the first time this virus has been used in a large scale project, although bacterium has been used success- fully in Oregon to combat spruce budworm.

UI grad to intern with National Geographic Cartography got her there

By Sara Donart Staff Writer

"Cartography is really neat," says Tana Ray. "It takes you a lot of places. It can take you anywhere you want to go.

Next week it's taking Ray, 23, a recent graduate of the geography program, to Washington, D.C., where she will work as an intern in the map-making department of National Geographic Magazine.

Ray, who received her bachelor's degree in December, applied for the internship along with thousands of other students nationwide. She was one of only 12 selected for the program.

Money in the form of credit on future FICA payments, and it will issue refund checks to those full-time students who worked for the UI from 1970 to Jan. 1, 1985, that officials can't do anything until they get that approval.

Eisenbarth said the university will be ready to act once the time comes.

Virus to be sprayed

By Sara Donart

Of the Argonaut

Government foresters plan to spray 30,000 acres of Palouse forest this spring with a virus intended to combat the tussock moth, but UI professor of forest resources Karel Stoszek says the most direct way to get out over a billion board feet of lumber 12 years ago, "is really not a pest."

According to Maynard Miller, dean of the College of Mines, the award "is sort of the Rhodes Scholarship of the cartography world," and National Geographic, he says, "has the most advanced cartographic facility of any agency in the world."

The program, initiated in 1981, is intended to give qualified students a place to apply what they have learned in we just don't know if they're accurate or not," Eisenbarth said. He said parents' addresses will also be used in attempts to get the refunds out, after approval is granted.

Board to meet

The Idaho State Board of Education will meet Thursday and Friday at the Boise State campus to approve new minimum standards for admi- ssion to the University of Idaho and decide on financial goals for the Board's Five-Year Plan.

Meanwhile, the Office of the State Board will be presenting the Board's budget requests for the fiscal year 1987 before the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee (JFAC) today through Thursday at the State Capital.

The Board is asking for a 16 percent increase in state appro- priations for higher education, almost two times as much as Gov. John Evans has asked for in his budget.

UI President Richard Gibb, along with universities president of BSU, ISU and CSC are scheduled to present their re- quests before JFAC tomorrow morning.

JAPC is the usual source for all appropriation bills in the Idaho State Legislature.

Stoszek, part of a research team that spent five years study- ing the tussock moth, appli- duces the use of the virus and the concept of integrated pest management (IPM), which favors biological control agents over chemicals. But the tussock moot, which mainly attacks Douglas and grand fir, is "part of what makes the forest tick," he says, since a moderate bug- kill is nature's way of thinning trees. He says to some degree it may be necessary "to substitute the tussock moth with an ax."

In the past, DDT and other chemical pesticides have been used to control the moth, who's nutrient-poor or shallow soil are most susceptible, as are single- species stands. Within more vulnerable stands the moth can kill up to 60 percent of the trees and weaken others, making them easy prey for pests and disease.

By spraying only this high risk, high loss areas the U.S. Forest Service and Idaho Dept. of Lands hope to save roughly $750,000 in the spray project scheduled for June. The target

TSU Moscow A year ago today this week, on Jan. 16, 1986, Tana Ray got a call from a representative of the National Geographic Society saying she had been awarded a $7,250 grant for the summer to work as an intern in the map-making department of the magazine.

The grant is part of a larger national program sponsored by the National Geographic Society and is designed to give the young woman a taste of the real world of magazine publishing.

Ray, a senior at Boise State University, is one of 12 students nationwide selected by National Geographic to receive the $7,250 grants.

The students will work on magazine projects, office tasks and will participate in numerous activities during a five-month period that ends in May.

Winner of the national grant for 1986 is from Idaho, too. Tana Ray was born in Buhl and graduated high school in Twin Falls.

Tana will be working in cartography at the magazine's offices in Washington, D.C., during the five-month period that begins Feb. 16.

In an interview, Ray said she was surprised to receive the award and that she had only been writing articles for the Argonaut for six months.

"It was not expected," Ray said, "but I think that's what the scholarships are for, to reward hard working students."

Ray said her time at BSU has been filled with adventures and a lot of hard work, but she has found the work enjoyable and rewarding.

She said she has been influenced by her more than one hundred publications in the past. One of these was "The State's Natural Resources," which she wrote last year. Another was "The State's Natural Resources II," which she wrote this year.

Ray said she has also been involved in other projects during her time at BSU, including a study of the effects of the 1980 eruption of Mount St. Helens on the environment.

Ray said she plans to return to Moscow in May for graduation, then work for a few years before go- ing on to graduate school where she plans to get her master's degree.

Ray said she has been involved in many activities at BSU, including the Argonaut, BSU's newspaper, and has also been a member of several clubs on campus.

Ray said she is looking forward to her time at the magazine and hopes to learn as much as she can before she returns to BSU in May.

Ray said she has learned a lot about the world of magazine publishing and hopes to apply some of what she has learned to her future endeavors.

Gino's ASUI priorities

A Vietnam Veteran Memorial is on the list of priorities for 1986 ASUI projects, according to Gino White, ASUI president. The memorial will honor people of the Vietnam war who not only died during the war but also participated in some way, he said.

White plans to set up a committee that will determine goals the memorial fund should work towards. He said that they will be looking for contributions from various organizations including the ASUI and veteran organizations throughout Idaho.

The memorial will be an ongoing project this term. White said, so it can eventually become a long term project.

Other projects planned for 1986 include creating a new ASUI symbol. White said that an art contest will be held on campus to decide on a design for the new symbol.

However, according to White, the ASUI symbol will have to wait until the memorial gets underway.

signed by Judge Hamlin. Trail was originally cited for a traffic misdemeanor on Nov. 17.

1985. The misdemeanor was for failing to leave information after hitting an unattended car. According to police reports, Trail hit a car owned by Frank Williams Nov. 17. He then left a blank piece of paper on the vehicle.

According to Idaho Code, the owner must be contacted in some way if an unattended vehicle is hit.

More than just a few cola were tossed down the airport telephones as students searched for rides back to school.
