WIN THE UNDERCLASSMEN WILL CLASH
Freshmen and Sophomores to Indulge in Annual Rough-House.

After three long and more or less stormy meetings, the two lower classes have finally decided to let the annual Saint Patrick's Day fight take the form of a flag-pole rush.

An ordinary telegraph pole will be set up on the campus and the Sophomores will be allowed to host their colors. Then, at a given signal the Freshmen will attempt to keep the green with the yellow.

The agreement, as finally drawn up, is a compromise. The Sophomores wanted a cane rush such as that of last year, but with slight modifications. The progressive Freshmen did not believe in staging the same contest for two successive years. They believed that the thirty-fourth burling of the '95 world would overcome their sixty-three in such a contest. Besides that the proposition came from the Sophomores and it would behoove the Freshmen dignity to accept, rather than dictate. Their proposition involved a one hour fight, free-for-all, tie-up allowed, and climbers and splices to play a conspicuous part. The final agreement follows:

1. This fight shall be a flag-pole rush.
2. This shall be the only fight of the day between the classes.
3. The place shall be the campus, the exact spot to be determined by committee.
4. At the beginning of the rush no Freshmen shall be within seventy-five feet of the pole.
5. No man shall be on the pole at the beginning of the fight.
6. There shall be no shouting, sworn, obscene or profane language on the pole, and one end shall be free.
7. The flag shall be not to be wired to the pole, and one end shall be free.
8. The flag shall be fifteen feet from the ground.
9. No climbers or spikes shall be used.
10. The pole shall be not less than five inches and not more than one foot in diameter.
11. This pole shall be selected and set up by a committee of members from each class-appointed by the respective presidents.
12. No individual from either class shall be in any way.

INTER SCHOLASTIC MEET

May 5th, has been selected by the committee in charge as the date for the interscholastic meet. The preliminaries will be held either on Thursday afternoon or Friday morning, according to the decision of the schools interested. An opportunity will be given for the teams that are here to inspect thoroughly the buildings and equipment of the University, and the cooperation of the students body there enters into the arrangements of the visitors. The students last year supported the meet in a most gratifying way and proved that ideal spirit is the right kind. If the same attitude exists this year, the success of the meet is assured.

It is now expected that the same teams which were here last year will again enter this year, and some teams from southern Idaho besides. Any assistance in bringing these teams to the University will be appreciated by the committee.

Lundstrum is Baseball Captain.

A meeting of the baseball "I" men was held last week for the purpose of electing a captain to lead the nine this spring. Fritz Lundstrum, for three years third baseman on the nine, was unanimously elected to fill that position. This is Lundstrum's last year at the University, and he has made a creditable showing for both the Varsity and himself in the three branches of athletics in which he has participated.

Coach Griffith has the baseball candidates working out every afternoon in the new gymnasium, and the prospects look bright for a good team this spring. He is working hard to develop pitchers Robinson, Borden and Truver; as our pitching staff was very weak last year.

The committee appointed from the class of 1914 to see that no freshmen are allowed to live on the O, R, & N. and N. P. on or about March 17, reported that the trains will be thoroughly policed and the freshmen or other freshmen will be kept out of the care.

The University Argonaut
Published every week by the Associated Students of the University of...-

This issue of the Argonaut is in charge of the "Gem of the Mountains," 1919 staff. In view of the fact that the class is not large and that every energy will be turned toward the publication of a creditable yearbook from this time until the Annual is out, it has not been deemed advisable to attempt an elaborate issue of the paper. Such a course would be pleasing if the class were larger, or if the 1919 Gem of the Mountains were a year farther in the future, as in the case of a freshman class. The attempt has been simply to familiarize the 1919 Argonaut with possibly a few special features of interest to Sophomores.

Our Penalty Again

Before the Argonaut report for the first semester was submitted, the business manager asked to see some former report which might be used as a model. He was shown to a drawer full of reports of athletic managers, baseball trips and other A S. U. I. papers, but no Argonaut report could be found. He then questioned members of the Executive Board in regard to the form of the report. These members opened the question of the possibility that the fund expended by the A. S. U. I., treasurer, for the Argonaut need not be mentioned because it would be included in his report as the manager made his report, omitting the A. S. U. I. apportionment as usual. This report was submitted on time.

The Executive Board rejected the report because of the omission mentioned. Such rejection was clearly within the rights and duties of the board. When, however, the board sets a one-week limit for presentation of a satisfactory report, it steps beyond the A. S. U. I., constitution, and beyond all justice, in view of the fact that at the time set at the end of that week there was no board meeting. The submission of the original report was, according to the constitution, sufficient to avert the penalty.

There is a clause in the A. S. U. I. constitution which provides that the business manager of the Argonaut shall receive fifty per cent of the profits of the paper. This is a wise provision because it places a premium on hard work and careful management. Furthermore, in the absence of the constitution, the Argonaut is on a basis which may mean either a deficit or a profit, the result depending largely on the manager. Therefore, the Executive Board deprives the management of fifteen per cent of its portion of the A. S. U. I., fund with its questionable right, it forces a deficit in the department and deprives the manager of his just reward. The rights in the case should be very clear before such action should be taken and such precedent established.

All of which reminds us that in these activities, as well as in the business world, the manager should be experienced in his own department, or should have his work so clearly outlined that there can be no doubt about any question. Ordinarily, the student manager serves for one year or for one season, and by the time he has sufficient experience to be efficient, his form of usefulness has expired.

We must look, then, to the experience of former managers for information on questions of management. If this experience, as embodied in the reports, is not so organized as to be easily available, the student manager has no precedent, no clear outline, to follow.

A graduate manager for all student activities would solve many of our difficulties and should be made a part of our system as soon as possible.

The editor of this week's edition of the Argonaut wished to thank the members of the class who contributed to the paper. We are sorry to have to omit an excellent story "The Mail Carrier," by Winnifred Brown. We hope that readers of the Argonaut will have an opportunity to read it in a later edition.

Annual Staff Busy

At a short meeting Monday afternoon the Annual staff discussed the general form of the Annual. If possible, the book will be made half leather in the class colors, crimson and black.

Manager Watts discussed ways and means to secure subscriptions. Sophomores should endeavor to sell some of the books to alumni and acquaintances.

Dr. Moore—"In what thoroughly human action does the fitnes in the play take part?"
Foster—"The quarrel between the husband and wife."

Did you ever hear anyone express sentiments like these? I'm not going to trust a man who worships under Prof. So-and-so. It's no use; he's got it in for me, and will do his best to make me flunk."

Don't! That is the gist of the College professors are a pretty decent lot, as a rule, and not one in a thousand is the kind mentioned above. Do you know of any one on the faculty who is not doing all that he can to help those in his classes to a better understanding of their work? Some of the best and most helpful college friendships are those formed with some of the instructors. If you don't believe this, try it and you will be surprised to learn that your professors are human after all. They are liable to make mistakes, but in the majority of the cases in which the student has trouble with his work the fault lies with himself. If some people would put in as much time in diligent study as they spend in kicking about the difficulty of their courses and the crankiness of the profs, their cause for complaint would soon be done away with.

No one should cling to the idea that some of the professors have it in for them. If he is earnest and conscientious, everyone is for him, and no one against him, and the sooner he finds this out the better.

Pres. Brown one on Approprations

At assembly March 5, after the excellent address by Rev. Watson, President MacLane discussed the appropriations made by the University during the last session of the State legislature. It is difficult to get legislators to take the educational point of view and equally hard to get a university to adopt the legislative point of view. When we wonder why the three-fourths of a mill voted to the University was not made a mill, we do not consider the fact that the rate was discussed at fifteen meetings of the committee before being submitted to the House.

The debate on educational appropriations was, in general, on a very high plane. It lasted twenty-four hours. The feeling in the legislature is "very friendly to the University."

A bill was introduced to change the State Board of Education, both in number and constitution. In conclusion, Dr. MacLane said, "It pays to make good in college life as well as in business. The people of the state will judge the University by the students she puts out."

Prof. Thiel—"Mr. Teed; what is a nature faker?"
Teed—"One who differs with Mr. Roosevelt in his views."

COLLEGE POLITICS

"The boy is father of the man." This trite proverb holds true in many combinations. The government tomorrow is the natural result of the government today. As truly is the college of tomorrow molded by the college of today. For not the buildings and not the faculties make colleges, but the students, as our president has said. Therefore, while Idaho is yet a boy, one of the youngest in the family of colleges, let us place about it such an atmosphere as shall force its boyhood to parent a stately upright, honorable man.

Our greatest element—at least a primary component of this atmosphere—can be well termed "College Politics." Broadly speaking, such a term would include all the processes whereby any plan or scheme or project is completed; whereby any plan, good or bad, is perfected. However, we will confine ourselves to the tangible, every day politics of elections. This includes club, class and college elections with their discussions, resolutions, contracts and various manifestations.

In politics, as in every institution of life, we find two extremes—the radical and the conservative; those who believe in combination and compromising against those who abhor everything but individual action. College politics, alas too often has been actuated by the former, and equally or perhaps often by the latter.

From our viewpoint here, in Idaho we can calmly review some political situations in college, weigh them pro and con and deliver our righteous ultimatum with no semblance of partiality. For example let us recall an actual occurrence in a much larger school than Idaho's. The election of certain officials had narrowed down until the decisive die rested in the number of ballots contained in a certain derby hat, yet unmounted.

If the number were under a certain figure, and yet all for the other fellow, still the game would be won. How easy it was to duplicate the hat with a more suitable content and do it distinctly enough to avoid detection too. The election carried.

But all is not fair in Idaho, the extrim activities of the recent campaign have revealed that we all know that it is human nature for "birds of a feather fly together," but too often we know men who would add to the figure.

Birds of a different feather

Must always war together.

These have surely forgotten that God is no respecter of persons, that rain and sunshine fall on high and low alike; that the bright plumage does not always mark the shrewed bird, in fact more often, the opposite; but these conditions are known to exist even in colleges, where the sole aim is the building and expanding of character, with its attendant toleration and broadmindedness. So doubt each of us has read or been told of club, class or even college elections where such a spirit was not dominant. Based upon compromise and unfair tactics are the result. "Our boy will help you if you will return by helping us." We'll scheme to split the vote of that bound, etc. If there is advantage in numbers, then the latter is more plausible politics than the sleight-of-hand performances. Certainly there are more guilty, but as certainly did they attain the same end as the rigger. However, the very inscrutability of the guilt seems to make the crime less offensive.

We could expand to much length on this phase and discover an enormous amount of real political graft in many institutions, ranging in degrees from the derby class down to the subtle favoritism about election time. But, having so many illustrious examples before us which depict college politics as they ought to be, and many pointed right at home, too, we can not but renew ourselves, or how club, class and college elections in a nation with these securities should be carried on.

Even in clean politics there are two extremes, between which we must try to strike a happy medium. As an elected officer is supposed to represent the choice, not of one leader, nor one club, but even should represent the combination of these, 'tho' quite possibly he will. He is supposed to represent the choice of the majority of all the individuals in the entire college, fraternities, clubs and all. Now one means of receiving this result would be individual independence. Each man might see his cards and choose his trumps, with no reference whatsoever to his neighbor's. Opposed to this, and as inadvisable and much more practicable is the method of slating the officers beforehand. This latter is a very natural procedure, for unity is the soul of action. And unity is the result of such meetings. Right here is where the happy medium must be struck. We do not desire hermitage of choice nor blind assent to the choice of some leader, man, clique or club. We want the combination of both. That is, first above all things, be a man and not part of a machine, have convictions and stand for them. Secondly, work in harmony, not as fighting units, nor as a horde, here.

A large cosmopolitan audience listened to Dr. D. B. Hibbard Sunday at 3 p.m., with interest, as he pictured the conditions and prospects of the bananas of the Philippine Islands. He spoke from personal contact and experience, for he has spent some time at Dumaguete and is now on his way back to take up his work there again in the capacity of teacher and religious instructor.

By way of explaining the condition of these people, Mr. Hibbard said that there were two political sentiments prevailing. The one is the idea that the United States has no right to interfere with their affairs more than a wise family has a right to dominate over an ignorant one. The other belief is that things are right as they are and that if the Philippines were given absolute freedom the country would become a veritable Babylon of bloodshed and destruction. It is this last view that the United States is compelled to accept. But, on the other hand, Dr. Hibbard showed that practically a very few of the natives have any convictions at all, as to political affairs—are indeed entirely blank and indifferent on the subject.

"Of course," said Mr. Hibbard, "there is little education and less religion there is plenty of vice and lawlessness." But in spite of these conditions it was brought out that in the character of the Philippines there is a rudiment of justice and a strong and fundamental adherence to that principle.

Briefly stated, the needs of the Philippines are: first, something to base civilization on—a ground floor; second, better freethinking than Christian principles of morality; then, secondly, they need education, and lastly they need a good check business standard.

The Philippines present a vast field of opportunity to the unselfish man and woman. The nation has adopted the chief use of the soil, but the task of learning to work with it, is great. Will we meet the issue?

Next Sunday, another interesting and vital question to those interested in the highest development of character will be presented. Probably the cause for the most frequent failures in business and in all professions is simply the lack of serious consideration of one's natural inclination and aptitude. This very question of "What Line Shall You Take?" will be discussed.

You will have to hurry, just a few minutes left in the Hotel Barber shop.

Athletes of the Class of 1913.

The class of 1913 is well represented in all branches of varsity athletics, and has two captain spots and one head coach spot in each of next season's teams, Harry Changnon, who will lead the football eleven and Ernest Loux, who will head the basketball five. In Changnon we have one of the best all-round athletes that the University has produced as he is a very hard and consistent player of football, basketball and baseball. Besides Changnon, we are represented on the gridiron by E. Ferguson and Hillman. These three men will be the oldest "I" men who will work for positions on the team next fall, as there were no juniors on last season's eleven.

On the varsity basketball team we were represented by Loux and Changnon, who will be candidates again next season for the team. Besides these two men there is "shorty" Ruth who will be eligible to play next year.

In track we are represented by "humble" Watts, a sprinter with little ability, "Nute" Hunter, a fast short distance runner and broad jumper and Denning, a halfback. Watts and Hunter both won honor "I"'s in their freshman year.

Those of the class of 1913 who won the baseball "I" last spring are Harry Changnon, E. Ferguson and Hillman. Ferguson and Hillman are candidates for this year's team.

We demonstrated our supremacy in basketball this year by winning every game in the inter-class series by a good safe score, which entitled us to the championship pennant.

The Freshmen.

They're still among us, the Freshmen. Each poor, belated chap, They still do make their voices heard To show they're on the map! Did you see a Freshman New from the woods or farm, With his antique ways and his foolish pride And his trembling fear of harm? But after he has been in college a month Oh! how bold is he! Then the Senior hall is nothing Compared with the Freshman Glee. Upon all subjects his superiors find He tries them to enlight, And he even enters a pool room Or stays out late at night. But of all the freshest freshmen That we have ever seen We give the prize to this year's bunch. The verdant class, fourteen.

Elmer Sugg, '12, will captain the U. of W. basketball five next year. Of this year's team, Clementson is the only man not to be back next year.

The W. H. U. committee on interscholastic track meets has asked the cooperation of the U. of W. in giving up the annual meets, leaving them to high school. GE other management. This action was suggested by the fact that the Tacoma stadium committee will hold a conference meet one week after the U. of W. interscholastic. The committee faces a deficit annually.

The students of the Forestry de- partment of the University of Michigan have begun the publication of a quarterly magazine de- voted to their interests. The name adopted is "The University of Michigan Forester."

A "Fraternity," the newest type of college organization, has formed at Indiana University. The members of the "fraternity" are made up of both sexes of the University, and its purpose is mainly one of social nature.

Now that the 17th of March is approaching, many of the Fresh- men think they could "make good in track."

It is rumored that the president of the Freshman class for the first semester, took a ride into the country with the intent of par- chasing land in this, the great wheat belt of Idaho, but after spending the hours of the night in looking over many of the farms, returned to Moscow and bought shoes instead.

In men's special luncheon class will serve tea at the regular dormitory reception, Sunday afternoon. March 19.

Hints for Freshmen.

We have long wanted an opportunity to give some advice to the freshmen and here it is. These hints come rather late, but they are too good to keep. (Yes, we modestly admit that they are good.)

When you first come to college, take it all as a matter of course. Remember that it is all much smaller than your high school and cut little too anyway. Remember that you are doing the institution a great favor by attending it and if you fail to win proper deference, promptly withdraw.

Go to a class meeting and if you get elected to an office, take it and then refuse to work, which is the customary thing. If you are not elected, attend no more class meetings and tell everyone how slow the University is and what unproductive and undesirable people they have here.

If you get into a fraternity or sorority, be a snob and a pinhead and a sport; if you don't get in, be a grouch and a sorehead, run down the frat fellows and show your self-sufficiency. It will hurt their feelings.

Never attend any athletic events and criticize those who so far forget themselves as to shout and root in a display of college spirit.

Run down the University to all your acquaintances and make yourself generally an undesirable citizen.

Do all these things, follow these simple rules and you will certainly succeed—in getting nothing out of your University life but a little book learning.

More than half the members of the senior class at Wellesley College are reported to be engaged to be married. "The conditions of girls at Smith and Vassar ought to be interesting."

Washington seniors have inaugurated the custom of rising when President Kats enters the assembly hall.

A celebrated soprano was in the middle of her solo when Little Johnny said to his mother, referring to the conductor of the orchestra, "Why does that man hit at the woman with his stick?" "He is not hitting at her," replied his mother. "Keep quiet." "Well, then, what's the hollerin' for?"

The citizens of Syracuse, N. Y., will give a sum of $100,000 towards beautifying the campus of Syracuse University.

Yale has lost ten football men this year by graduation, Harvard six and Princeton two.

"Devotee--"You are the first Freshman I've danced with this evening."

Freshman--"En-n! really? Why, what is there about you for a Freshman to avoid?--Lampoon.

What is your opinion of Harvard?"

Lampoon--"I don't know. I've only been there half a year."

My bonnet spreads over the ocean. My bonnet spreads over the sea. To modestly spread over the sidewalk is not enough bonnet for me.

but as united individuals, each recognizing his own prerogatives and exercising them, at the same time realizing that "quod homines, tot sententiae"--as many men, so many convictions--and striving to harmonize those convictions.

Here lies the keynote to such a harmony, founded by Gov. Folk: Honesty is not only the best policy but the best politics as well. Not only the best theory but in addition is the best practice. The derby dealer no doubt has the theory. Honesty is part of a man, but so is pride and ambition. These latter we have to conquer. But he did not practice honesty.

Now let us start at the bottom. Be honest to yourself and you will be honest to your fellows. How can one be true to his fellows if he cannot be true to himself? Then will our college policies give the fresh, free, embracing, healthful quality to the over-hoisting atmosphere. And then will we have parented noble men, and thereby will we build Idaho, one of the youngest in the College family, into a grand waist and vigorous institution, from which yeasty men will be leaving to fill their place in social, country and world politics, the better for having grasped the true principle. Honesty is the best policy, and honesty must begin at home.

At Washington, fraternities are planning to give medals to winners in the coming intercollegiate meet.
