Argonaut Progress Evident; 'Father' Would Be Proud

G. W. Woots would be proud of today's Argonaut. G. W., for your information, was the ‘father’ of this University of Idaho paper. Under his guidance, the Argonaut grew from a 10-page edition 25 years ago to today’s 24-page quarterly. Six staff members work with a staff of one and a capital backing of $35.

This 18-page paper, the largest in the history of the Argonaut, is a far cry from Woots’s first tried and true edition. Changes have been made in the newspaper this year, but members do gather to discuss the future of the paper.

Asst. Ad. Sue Helmer, a junior English major, said that the changes made in the newspaper have been beneficial. Woots, who said that three years ago he was just an editor for the Argonaut, became involved in the newspaper because he was interested in politics. The Argonaut has been a political tool for some time now.

The Argonaut is now being sold in the University of Idaho bookstore. The newspaper has been sold at the same price throughout the years. In the past, the Argonaut was sold in the town of Moscow for 50 cents.

A Regretful Incident

The Idaho athletic situation is on the up-and-up everywhere, except in athletics, the court, university and national politics, it seems.

There was a professional scout in the town of Moscow during the weekend and we attempted to meet him. We met him once.

We were primarily interested in the information he had to offer us, and the athletic publicity director himself.

The Argonaut, supposed to be the official student publication, was completely ignored.

More important was to present the paper contest, a man who is vitally interested in Idaho players, was also doing this service. At the close of the game, we gave him our program, because he was interested in this service.

In the high school season the athletic director and his staff keep him informed of their activities.

Even more important was that he was quite interested in the athletes who are keeping up.

In the University, the athletic director and his staff keep him informed of their activities. There is absolutely no reason for his existence if this isn’t true.

There is no room for deadwood in an educational system, especially athletics, and the athletic director is one of them. His job is to see that the athletes are treated properly.

The Idaho athletic situation is on the up-and-up everywhere, except in athletics, the court, university and national politics, it seems.

Whether such a plan continues to be met with lukewarm or even cold reception is another matter. The Argonaut is simply a tool to make the athletes strive to do better.

In any event, Americans or any countries which continue to meet our standards of living, should receive an opportunity for a better future.

Sincerely,

Barbara Helmer

Dear Jason,

In the last edition of the Argonaut, the CPU conducted a poll to determine the future of the newspaper.

Only a Purple Cow Could Have Made This Situation Worse

The Argonaut’s first edition ran on July 8, 1912, and ran for a total of 20 years. The newspaper was published on a weekly basis.

The Argonaut was founded by John Woots, a former University of Idaho student, and was intended to be a student-run publication. The newspaper was first published on July 8, 1912, and ran for a total of 20 years.

The newspaper was published on a weekly basis, and was run by students. The Argonaut was one of the first student-run newspapers in the nation, and was a significant force in the development of student journalism.

In 1942, the Argonaut’s first editor was installed, and its main purpose was to provide information to the University of Idaho community. The newspaper was later renamed the Argonaut, in honor of the Purple Cow, a symbol of the University of Idaho.

The Argonaut has been an important part of the University of Idaho community since its inception, and has continued to provide important information to students, faculty, and staff.

When Baxter's Boots, the popular footwear store, held its annual boots sale, the store was packed with customers looking for a good deal. Customers were seen browsing through racks of shoes, trying them on, and comparing prices. The store was bustling with activity as people searched for their perfect pair of boots. The sale lasted for three days, and many customers held off on their purchases to see if better deals would come up. In the end, Baxter's Boots was able to sell over 1,000 pairs of boots during the sale, making it a huge success for the store.

The Bookstore

October 28, 1959

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the article in the Idaho Times-News of October 27th, which reported on the expansion plans for the Bookstore.

As a student, I am excited about the prospect of increased selection and improved facilities. However, I have some concerns regarding the anticipated changes.

Firstly, the expansion will alter the current layout of the store, which I find to be well-organized and easy to navigate. I am concerned that the new design may make it more difficult to find specific books.

Secondly, there is a risk of losing the character of the store. The current Bookstore, with its cozy atmosphere and knowledgeable staff, is a haven for students, providing a space for studying and socializing. The expansion may lead to a more commercial atmosphere, which could detract from its current appeal.

I appreciate the efforts being made to accommodate students, such as the increased number of books and study areas. However, it is important to strike a balance between progress and maintaining the essence of the Bookstore.

I look forward to seeing the final plans and hope that the expansion will be a positive addition to the campus.

Sincerely,

We would like, at this time, to state our book buying policy to you, our friends in mind—and ears. This procedure is used for the benefit of all students by the book store. It will be with three classes as follows:

Class 1—Students enroll in one of their classes and which professors have told us that they will resist, and on which our existing stock is inadequate for supplying next semester’s classes. We will pay 50c of the new price for books that fail to be sold by the time the fall term begins.

Suppose we take an example. Last fall you paid $6.00 for a book. It’s now worth $12.00. If you bought the same book used at $4.50 and in a sound condition, you also get $3.00.

The new year

by allyson maine

America's sentiment for the New Year is a difficult thing to grasp. In the gray of the grey-brown concrete, three people are standing. They have been standing for half an hour at the corner of the bridge. One is reading a newspaper, the other is lighting a cigarette, and the third is staring off into the distance. Suddenly, one of them turns around and walks away. The other two continue to stand there for a few minutes before also leaving. The scene is typical of what one might expect to see in any American city on New Year's Day.

I was born in China, but my family moved to America when I was ten. My parents always told me that I was lucky to have been born in America. But I never quite understood why. Now I understand. The United States is a land of opportunity. It is a land where anyone can make their dreams come true. And that is what I am doing.

The new year brings with it a sense of hope and possibility. It is a time to make new resolutions and set goals for the future. But sometimes, the new year can also bring a sense of sadness and loss. This is particularly true for those who have experienced the loss of a loved one. In these moments, it is important to remember that the new year can also be a time of healing and renewal. With time and support, it is possible to begin to find hope and meaning again.

The new year is a time for new beginnings. It is a time to set aside the past and look forward to the future. But sometimes, the new year can also bring a sense of uncertainty and fear. In these moments, it is important to remember that the new year can also be a time of strength and resilience. With courage and determination, it is possible to overcome any obstacle.

Red coach Ed Knoechle, who won't even be at Idaho next year, puts today's Idaho football in perspective, saying, "We want to use this game to clean up some things that we have to clean up in order to get ready for the last of the season." We asked him what he thought of his team's showing at the end of the year and he said he was pleased with it. "We wanted to show our stuff and we did," he said. "We're proud of the way we did it and we're looking forward to next year."

From Homecoming to Dad's Day, the SUB controversy is just the beginning of the controversies that the Student Government is facing this year. The Student Senate, the University Student Union, and the ASUI Executive Directors have all faced hurdles in the past, but this year they are facing a new challenge: a strike of the cleaning staff. The strike began last week when the cleaning staff, represented by the United Food and Commercial Workers Union, began picketing outside the SUB. The strike has lasted for five days, with no end in sight. The cleaning staff is demanding a higher wage, better working conditions, and more respect from the university administration. The university has offered a counterproposal, but the cleaning staff has rejected it, saying it does not address their major concerns. The strike has caused disruptions on campus, with the SUB closed to the public and many campus services unavailable. The university administration is hoping that a resolution can be reached soon, but the strike has already lasted longer than expected. Two coeds recited tales of reality in the annual Artemis competition. Miss Melba Moore, a senior, and Miss Barbara Lepley, a junior, were the winners. Miss Moore recited "Glass Bead Game," and Miss Lepley narrated the story of the Vikings and the Normans.

A SPECIAL MOMENT — Constance McCollum registers surprise on the numbers the Miss University Idaho seniors of the future collegiate Knight's beauty pageant in March. She will represent the campus at the Miss Idaho contest in Boise this summer.

One of the most exciting events of the year was the spring pageant with the theme of "The Mikado." The production was directed by Dr. George A. F. Frazier, Idaho's first dramatic advisor. The pageant was scheduled for March 12th.

Idaho coeds wore hats in their hair and were adorned with gold and silver tiaras, and they were dressed in gowns and beaded dresses, typical of the oriental style. The pageant was staged in the auditorium, and the audience was seated in the front two rows.

The cast included Miss Jean Zeller, Miss Frances Green, Miss Betty Stone, Miss Joan Kibbey, Miss Mary Lou McEwen, Miss Mary Lou Johnson, Miss Barbara Lee, Miss Barbara Moore, Miss Barbara Lepley, Miss Barbara Moore, Miss Barbara McEwen, and Miss Jean Zeller.

The opening number was "Tales of the Orient," and the costumes were magnificent. The gowns were of various colors, and the hats were adorned with jewels and feathers.

The pageant was a tremendous success, and the audience was rapt in its beauty.

Idaho Coeds' World Full Of Activities

Idaho's campus is alive with activities throughout the year. The university is known for its vibrant social and academic life, and there are always exciting events taking place.

For example, the university hosts a variety of concerts and dance performances, such as the annual Foresters' Ball which was held on Feb. 12. The ball was attended by a large number of students and was a great success.

In addition to the Foresters' Ball, there were also several music events on campus, including a performance by the Vandaleers. The Vandaleers are a popular band on campus, and their concerts are always well-attended.

The university also has a strong drama program, and there are often performances of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice." The performances are held in the university's auditorium, and they are always well-received.

Another popular event on campus is the Miss University Idaho pageant, which is held in the spring. The pageant is a highly anticipated event, and it always draws a large number of participants and spectators.

Idaho's campus is truly a melting pot of cultures, and there are always exciting events taking place to celebrate this diversity. Whether it's a concert, a pageant, or a drama performance, there's always something happening on campus.

Controversy, Issues

Controversy, they say, is the life of a newspaper—and the Argonaut is no exception.

Take any campus newspaper, ask some students what they like about it, and you will almost always hear the same thing: the newspaper is controversial. And if you ask, why so controversial? you will hear that it's because the newspaper is so controversial.

Controversy is, in fact, a necessary component of a newspaper. It is through controversy that issues are raised, problems are identified, and solutions are sought. It is through controversy that the public is made aware of the issues and problems that affect their lives. It is through controversy that the public is able to make informed decisions about the issues and problems that affect their lives.

In the Argonaut, controversy is not a side issue, but a central part of the newspaper's mission. The Argonaut is committed to covering all issues and problems that affect the campus and the community. The Argonaut is committed to providing its readers with the information they need to make informed decisions about these issues and problems.

The Argonaut is committed to being controversial, because it is through controversy that issues are raised, problems are identified, and solutions are sought. Joe King's father, Joe King Sr., was a member of the All-American football team at the University of Idaho in the mid-1930s. His son, Joe Jr., mimicked his dad's performance on the gridiron and in basketball.

Joe Jr.'s selection as the top athlete of the year is well deserved. He not only excelled in football but also in basketball, leading his team to a championship in both sports. His leadership skills and strategic thinking played a crucial role in driving the Vandals to success.

Experienced Quarterbacks

The Vandals' quarterbacking is giving Idaho its seventh straight win, and it is the key to the Vandals' success. The Vandals' quarterbacks are not only skilled in passing, but they also have the ability to make plays with their feet. This combination of skills has made the Vandals a formidable team in the Pacific Northwest.
