Idaho College Of Law Professor Retiring After 22 Years At U-I

William J. Brockelbain, professor of law at Idaho, will retire this year after 22 years on the faculty. A dinner was held in his honor Thursday at the Clayton Country Club by the College of Law and the Idaho Bar association.

Brockelbain, a specialist in constitutional law, family law and commercial law, is best known as the father of the "Sum-A-Wu-Pick-Up Act.

One of the most successful state laws written, the Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act has been enacted by every state in the Union since it was drafted.

An extracurricular service performed by Brockelbain is that of an Idaho's Three Unions Law Committees, appointed by the University.

Brockelbain is retired from his teaching but not his practice. He will stay in Moscow and practice law.

"But first we will take a trip to Europe for those months," he said. "I have my wife for the past 35 years as my biggest client.

For a man who has earned the Atlantic 14 experience, the experience will not be new. He received the B.A. degree from Harvard college and the LL.B. from the Harvard law school. He is the son of a former Barrister at Law at Lincoln's Inn.

He served the I.S.I. from the University of St. Andrews in Scotland before joining the University of Paris.

For 20 years he has taught law at Idaho, where he has been a member of the law faculty and an administrator building tower and faculty.

Regulations Reviewed

A committee to review election rules was appointed following a discussion of a report submitted by Ken Herold, last week. The committee included Richard P. O’Brien, professor of political science, and William G. Grimes, professor of political science. The committee was authorized to make recommendations to the Senate on the rules for next year's election. The committee is expected to submit its report to the Senate next month.

Housing

Board members met in a session to discuss the issues of student housing. The committee discussed the need for more housing on campus, as well as the possibility of expanding the existing housing facilities. The committee also discussed the need for more parking facilities on campus.

More Action

The proposal provided for a series of actions to be taken by the Board to address the issues raised by the housing and parking committees. The actions include funding a study to determine the feasibility of expanding the existing housing facilities, as well as the construction of new housing on campus. The proposal also includes funding a study to determine the feasibility of expanding the existing parking facilities, as well as the construction of new parking facilities on campus.

Rickie P. K. Genser had just complained to his 200-m. friend, Lyle P., that he was bleeding his old friend, Bob Ford, and that he had returned from Paris where his anemia was being treated.

Fawna M. II, also known as her red hat and M. M., was
M. M., as Lyle P. was dancing her hat and Ft. Meade, was leaping, and Ft. Meade was leaping, and Ft. Meade was Another turkey was named Andrews, and he was known as Lyle P., for his ability to run.

University Of Idaho Campus Comes To Life

Spring is a busy time at the University. Construction's booming with the easing of warmer weather and students find it hard to study for exams and go outside. But college days haven't changed much in the years. Lovers still stroll across the Ad. Lawn, upper left, and some take the time to watch fellow students at play (lower left).

Spring isn't a leisurely time for everyone, as construction goes on in the new University Classroom Building (center left) and on the Willcox Complex (center). But the work isn't just for the benefit of those on campus. In mid-May the university will be transmitting television programs to Northern Idaho.

Greek Week Plans Continue

"Greek Week," being initiated this year by the Interfraternity Council and Panhellenical, is progressing well according to members of the administrative board.

The work will feature exchange dinners between the sororities and fraternities, and an all campus dance featuring the Steeplechase.

The series of Greek Awards banquet will be held at this time in conjunction with activities.

New Committee Is Started At University

A new committee composed of a representative from each of the educational colleges, the student council, faculty and student body, was organized.

The committee, named the Committee on Problems of the Student Government (COPP), will give students the opportunity to present problems and concerns.

A letter of courtesy and explanation were mailed to the student body the week of the 11th.

The students were asked to bring a letter of interest to the committee.

" ... every student should be included in the activities of student government."
