

ETV to link all parts of state

By Volene Hopper

Beginning next fall, all parts of Idaho will be able to watch the same local television network (ETV) as those located in Boise, regardless of whether they are located in the Treasure Valley, Sun Valley, or the Southern Idaho region.

Integration of ETV programs into each station's monthly schedule will be made possible through the installation of microwave relay systems by the University of Idaho's Department of Communication.

Microwave relay systems will be installed at each ETV station to relay those programs to the others. The project is expected to be completed early in 1971.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI)—

The Federal Communications Commission has approved plans for the installation of low-power television stations in 42 cities across the country, including six in Idaho. The approved stations will begin broadcasting in 1972.

The new stations will be able to reach an estimated 10 million viewers in the four-region area.

Campus Affairs passes poster display limits

A bill to limit the number of places available for poster display was presented to the Student Senate by City Council Chairman Rolland Stueb, who represents the Student Senate.

The bill, which is the result of a survey conducted by the Student Senate, proposes to limit the number of places available for poster display to five.

City Council barcodes street while construction continues

The City Council has adopted a plan to barcode streets while construction continues in the city. The plan, which was approved at a recent meeting, will allow the city to keep track of the location of construction equipment and materials.

The barcode system will be used to track the location of construction equipment and materials, as well as to keep track of the number of people working on a construction site.

The majority of University students will be leaving campus during spring break; however, some students will be staying on campus and working on campus jobs for the entire break.

The university has announced that students who elect to stay on campus during spring break will be able to use the university facilities and services, but will not be able to attend classes.

Faculty acts on bills of rights

By Volene Hopper

Boise—The Idaho Senate, on its first day of session, passed an act which would allow students to have access to the university's facilities and services during the vacation period.

The act, which was introduced by Senator John Smith, would allow students to use the university's facilities and services during the vacation period, but would not allow them to attend classes.

Students who elect to stay on campus during the vacation period will be able to use the university's facilities and services, but will not be able to attend classes.

The act was passed by a vote of 30 to 20, with five abstentions.

Confidential ASU poll to survey drug problem

A confidential drug survey designed to help the administration of the University of Idaho in the fight against drug abuse has been circulating on the campus.

The survey, which was distributed to students, has been received by the University of Idaho's Office of the President and the Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs.

The survey is being used to help the administration of the University of Idaho in the fight against drug abuse.

Bill of Rights history given

The most important of these rights is the right to freedom of speech. This right is essential to a democratic society. It allows us to express our thoughts and ideas, and to debate the issues of the day. Without this right, we would not be able to hold our elected officials accountable to the people. We would not be able to hold the government accountable to the people.

Vandals win first, but lose second

By Chuck Wiley

As the sun set behind the west side of the mountain, the Idaho State Vandals defeated the Boise State Broncos 110-98, the first time the Vandals had defeated the Broncos in over a decade.

In the first quarter, both teams played a fast-paced game with the score remaining close. The Vandals held the lead at the end of the first quarter with a score of 37-28.

In the second quarter, the Broncos came back and tied the score at 55-55. The Vandals then went on a 23-7 run, extending their lead to 88-62. The Broncos made a late rally, but the Vandals held on to win the game 110-98.

The Vandals improve to 8-7 on the season, while the Broncos fall to 10-6.

The game was held in Corning Fieldhouse and was the first meeting between the two teams.
