Campus Affairs studies parking permit fees memo

A recommendation recommending the initiation of fees for parking permits for all students parking on the University of Idaho campuses was officially referred to Campus Affairs committee by Faculty Council recently.

Faculty Council asked Campus Affairs to take action on the matter to the point of determining if there is a need for parking permit fees and what the charge should be.

Next for a parking fee was needed because the Idaho State Legislature had not appropriated enough funds to cover necessary parking facilities and services for the University Student Union, Plantable, and Administration.

Were was asked of the University's Student Veterans Association concerning the initiation of parking fees. The decided the matter as not needed due to the University's "Ongoingly Exempt" fee status of about $3,000 worth of work fore and parking lot improvements existing at present, according to Campus.

Carter said that he had been told that the University of Washington State University charged $2 for car lots, $8 for students, $10 in dress, $2 for staff and $20 for visitors. Carter said a program at the U of I could make charge $2 for student parking ISU for more parking and now fee parking available for visitors.

C. Rob Samuelson, a member of the Faculty Council observed that Campus Affairs committee to have a recommendation on the matter.

A motion to refer the parking fees to both Campus and Faculty Affairs was made by Raymond Opperman and seconded by Dr. William Hull. Opperman stated that the thought should be considered the recommendation of the Campus affairs and Faculty Affairs committees to be disregarded.

Carter said that the motion was tabled and the recommendation of the Faculty Affairs committee was not to make recommendation or make recommendation of recommendation.

Idaho National Guard preparing for trouble on state campuses

Attention General Robert H. Belker

General Robert H. Belker has been named the Idaho National Guard is the primary service in a crisis situation on the states campuses. It is a Tuesday night meeting of conference.

"I have reason to believe that there are people on the campus on our campuses that would do something about a crisis situation,” General Belker said.

Belker said a suggested solution to this crisis has already been put forward by the university has drawn a cool reception. It has not been received by the people and some people have asked us to consider the idea of making a recommendation.

Then said the university officials in the Idaho National Guard are being trained and prepared for a specific course of action in cases of a campus crisis, as guardman, “we would know how they should handle themselves in a crisis situation.”

Idaho, Boise State, ISU to combine in 1971 for first "All-Idaho Week"

It is in the planning stage with the hope of bringing together a major week of activities. It is expected that a mention in the various campus newspapers, cinema, radio and television programs will be available on the Boise East campus.

In preparation to bring Idaho Week on the University of Idaho campus, arrangements for the 1971 All-Idaho Week have been made. It is expected that there will be a promotional period of several days before the week begins.

The period will be a week's week of activities that will be a joint effort of all Idaho institutions.

South stands offer good seats

Students attending Saturday's football game at Roggenkamp Field, should be aware of a few measures to prevent the maximum number of seats from being blocked. The seating situation at two sites appears to be much worse than it actually is, providing part-time security and the student activities committee foundation supports planning.

No seats will be covered by the grandstands and the few reserved seats.

The student seating will be reserved last spring by ASU President Orwick despite that no student has ever occupied both the north and south grandstands. The reserved seats are too close for the camera's position to be considered as a bad view of the game or the condition of the north stand is much better to the condition of the south stands, but that the actual seating in terms of being able to see the south side of the stadium to Idaho students.

Although at a glance, grandstands look like poor seating, is easily the south stand is a better seat for any student, as such seats are not out for best. If you plug in all tot, take a banner or a seat, and place them in the south stand, it still remains a poor seat.

One of the biggest benefits that goes along with the south stand is a better seat for the students, as such seats will not irritate the students.

If you plug in all tot, take a banner or a seat, and place them in the south stand, it still remains a poor seat.

The grandstands offer a much better view of the game for students who are willing to place their seats in the south stand.

Too busy to walk

A fourth session was called only this week for the old print-gone battle of the Palouse cities, the Reader's Walk, where ASU President Jim McCreary reminded the walks tradition is "too old and worn out." The conclusion of this quarter-century tradition came in my opinion and the students of the university. Boise State University has been allowed to use the city's name that may have been the best group of students to walk between the two university campuses, the traditional walk. It hardly seems possible that only two years have passed since that walk, a short time that has turned student interest away from local campus activities to those of local and national concern. Students on both campuses have done time with the political problems of the day to those with academic establish-

Over time, the walk has served as a meeting place for the students of the two schools. Idaho students from WCU and Idaho will continue to meet at each other's campuses to attend seminars and programs in both universities. This year, two new issues between both campuses will bring students together for a more purposeful gathering that.

New cutworm control sought by scientists

University of Idaho scientists are searching for better methods of controlling the in-roads cutworm, a destructive pest of clover and other legume crops. A cooperative research project between the University's Department of Entomology and the USDA-Extension Service, Idaho State Board of Agriculture, and Agriculture Laboratory is now under way to fill the空白.

One of the leading experts on the subject is Dr. F. E. Langford, USDA entomologist at the Twin Falls Laboratory, Idaho, who has been doing research on the pest for the past 15 years. The cutworm is a nocturnal insect and is not easily controlled with insecticides.

A new chemical, DDT, has been found to be effective in controlling the pest when applied to the soil. However, this method is not practical for use on large acreages.

Governor told no legal action against council

(SPOKANE) — The Spokane City Council has adopted a new resolution which allows its members to sue the city on any matter which they believe is in the best interest of the council and the city. The resolution was adopted by the council last week.

There is no action on the city's General Ordinance, which deals with the procedures for filing lawsuits and for contracting with the city. The meeting was held in the University Center's lounge, and the speakers discussed the importance of hospitality in today's world. They highlighted the need for responsible tourism and shared stories of their own experiences in the industry. The speakers emphasized the importance of providing quality service and maintaining a positive image for the hospitality industry.

The meeting concluded with a question-and-answer session, during which attendees had the opportunity to ask questions and engage in a lively discussion. The speakers were pleased to hear the enthusiastic participation of the audience, and they encouraged everyone to continue to support the hospitality industry and promote its growth.

Overall, the meeting was a great success, and the speakers were grateful for the opportunity to share their insights with the attendees. They hope to hold similar events in the future to promote the importance of hospitality and encourage continued growth and development in the industry.
Old posters found in U-hut

By Donna Ellis
Assistant Staff Writer

First posters of World War I vintage were found this past week when the U-hut was reinstalled. The posters were found in the attic of the attic.

The posters, bearing designs such as, "Wait Here — Make the World Safe For Democracy," were found unter the stage of the attic.

According to reports in the library, St. Joe was built in 1910 by the National White Stock Council of the Young Men's Christian Association.

The posters were put up on the Interchurch World Movement of North America. The magazine on the other posters are seemingly very molding.

WSU enrollment may total 14,600

PULLMAN — First semester enrollment at Washington State University was announced for summer registration. The number is well below the 15,000 expected by the registrar's office.

Pulled registration until last Friday with 1,020 officially enrolled, and a spokesperson in the registrar's office said approximately 900 may register by Friday, which brings the total to 2,020.

Registrar Claude Thingarry, in figures released today, said 1,020 freshmen and 1,272 sophomores were enrolled during summer registration.

There were 1,020 freshmen, 1,272 sophomores, 121 juniors, 56 seniors and 38 others in special classes.

There were 2,020 new students and 8,655 returning students enrolled in most registered fall week.

"This year's movie is a long time, but when you get it, it's great. A movie, adapted from a Columbia book series, it is an excellent example of the enthusiasm and energies being channeled into the film industry, especially given the current climate of the industry.

The movie is a classic, and it has been well received. It is a film that has been the talk of the town for years. It is a film that has been praised by critics and audiences alike.

Of course there is interest, but if you can't connect with the movie, then it is not for you. You will try to follow it properly to your political preferences.

Harriers ready for competition

Ed Trenel, head track coach, announced today an opening schedule for the 1981 Fall Cross-Country team.

Trenel said that this year’s team would be a potent combination of seniors and youth. The team would be stronger this year than any previous team.

The team will be coached by Bob Lowry, who has been with the Harriers for the past two years. Lowry取代了休斯顿·德利安, who left the program at the end of last season.

Lowry said that he looks forward to working with the new team members. He added that he believes the team has the potential to be competitive in the conference and at the national level.

The team will hold its first practice on Monday, September 7, at 4:00 p.m. at the Eagles Nest Golf Course.

Freshmen begin football practice

Coach Ed Trenel has greeted the freshmen football players at the Idaho Vandals’ first practice of the season.

The freshmen were welcomed to the team with a warm and friendly atmosphere. They were encouraged to work hard and make the most of their time with the team.

Trenel said that he believes the freshmen have the potential to make a significant contribution to the team this year.

The freshmen will be integrated into the varsity team over the next few weeks. They will be given the opportunity to show their skills and earn a place on the roster.

The freshmen will be welcomed into the team with a special reception on Friday, September 11, at 7:00 p.m. at the Eagles Nest Golf Course.

The reception will provide an opportunity for the freshmen to meet their new teammates and get to know the team.

The freshmen will be an important part of the team this year, and Trenel is looking forward to seeing what they can contribute to the team.

The team will begin its official practices on Saturday, September 12, at 9:00 a.m. at the Eagles Nest Golf Course.

WSU professor gives report on muscles

Dr. Kenneth Penner, associate professor of physical education at WSU, will give a report on muscles at the Physical Education Association meeting on Wednesday, October 10.

Penner’s report will be titled “The Role of Muscles in Physical Education.” He will discuss the importance of muscles in the development of physical fitness and the role they play in various activities.

The report will be based on research conducted at WSU, where Penner has been a member of the faculty since 1975.

Penner said that he is excited to share his findings with the audience and that he hopes the report will be of interest to anyone who is interested in physical education.

The report will be held in the Physical Education Building at 1:30 p.m.

Intramural touch football starts

Wednesday marks the beginning of the WSU intramural touch football season with 11 games being played on campus.

Each team will be made up of members from the same college or university.

The championship game will be played on the weekend of November 15.

The intramural touch football season is open to all students who meet the eligibility requirements.

The season will run from September 17 to November 15.

Sports car club to stage contest

The University of Idaho Sports Car Club is starting a new season with an annual contest on the perimeter road at Idaho Falls.

Vandals target battlefield

The offices of the Vandals, located on the campus of Washington State University in Pullman, were the target of a grenade attack in recent days. The incident, which occurred at approximately 11:30 a.m. on March 13th, resulted in widespread damage to the building and the loss of several important documents. The police are currently investigating the case, and anyone with information is encouraged to contact them immediately.

Hansen district opposes 18-year-old vote

WASHINGTON — Residents of the Hansen district have expressed strong opposition to the proposed 18-year-old vote initiative. According to local officials, the initiative would allow teenagers to vote in local elections, which is not currently allowed in the state. The residents of Hansen believe that young people should not have the responsibility of voting before they have matured and gained enough life experience to make informed decisions.
